"Further study of the theoretical advantages and practical objections of taxing natural resources on the basis of output is recommended."

In its final report rendered to the General Assembly of 1927, the same Commission said:

"In view of the importance of realty in the plan of local taxation special attention should be directed to the fact that there are certain lands, which, if assessed at fair market value, will probably result in a tax burden on the owners too heavy for successful business. Lands which contain coal, oil, and other minerals and metals, or forest lands which are devoted to the raising of a crop which is only marketed at long intervals belong to a special class and should be so treated. Many of the States in which a like condition exists have worked out a plan of assessment for purposes of local taxation, in which the emphasis is laid upon the output of the land in determining the realty tax basis. Where, for instance, the surface is farm land but there is a valuable bed of coal underneath the surface the assessment should be based upon the value of the surface for farming purposes and the output of the coal mine, rather than the market value of the coal in the veins."

The Mineral and Forest Land Taxation Commission recognizes the application of a tax upon production in substitution for the present system of taxation in this Commonwealth as not only more equitable to the natural resource industries but as otherwise possessing distinct advantages to such industries and the public. The Commission, however, has reached the reluctant conclusion that the system of taxation of real estate for local government needs, with its development over the life of the Commonwealth, and with the taxing power vested in numerous small governmental sub-divisions, and with the adjustments which natural resource industries have made to it, presents such a complex situation that it is impracticable to hastily introduce a production tax applicable to such industries or at all without radical changes in the Commonwealth's taxing system.

The adoption of such a production tax in a new community where natural resources have not theretofore been taxed and the industries to develop same have not theretofore been established, would present no difficulties comparable with those existing under conditions presently prevailing in this Commonwealth.

The advantages of such a form of taxation are obvious. It would defer levy and collection of the tax until the period of realization, when the return from production would afford means for its payment. Relieving the natural resource from the tax burden until production is commercially and economically feasible, with the production tax as a factor, would tend to a conservation of such resource. Until the period of production a natural resource enjoys no advantage and receives no benefit from local taxation, such as other classes of real estate do, and there is therefore no sound reason for it so to be taxed.

The Commission believes that the introduction within the Commonwealth of a taxing system which combines a moderate assessments upon present worth of the natural resource with an assessment upon output at the time of production is entirely feasible, and recommends its further consideration, but it is not prepared at this time to recommend its adoption due to the existing delicate situation affecting both industrial and public revenues generally and other practical considerations which are involved.

Among the practical considerations which present themselves as a present objection to the adoption of such a tax, the following are mentioned:

(1) In states and countries where such a form of taxation is in effect, the tax is levied as a state rather than a local tax. Pennsylvania is one of but four states that do not levy a tax for state purposes on real estate, and with the authority to levy real estate taxes distributed among the various municipal subdivisions of the Commonwealth,—counties, cities, boroughs, poor districts and townships—the introduction of a production tax presents a very complex study.

(2) This Commonwealth was a pioneer in the development of natural resource industries and their importance within its borders has not materially diminished. Such industries have developed and the ownership of the natural resources in the land has become vested under the system of taxation above set forth, so that any change to a production basis should have very careful consideration from the standpoint of such industries.

(3) Municipal subdivisions of the Commonwealth presently vested with the taxing power, have based their policies upon their power to assess as real estate the natural resources within their territorial limits, and have incurred indebtedness on the basis of assessed valuations of which such resources frequently constitute the major item, so that a system of taxing the output of such resources, in lieu of the existing system, would do violence to the municipalities from which there is no output unless a carefully devised plan of allocating the tax could be introduced .

(4) In devising a plan for allocating the tax to the present municipal subdivisions probably nothing short of a county unit would be feasible, but the basis for the allocation among the subdivisions of the county would still remain a very difficult matter.

(5) The rate of taxation would necessarily have to be determined by the municipal unit in whom the taxing authority was vested but without legislative limitations it could more readily be abused than assessments under any existing system.

(6) A production tax, even if based upon an average output over more than the year immediately preceding, or the value of such output, would necessarily involve uncertainties as to the revenue to be realized therefrom and of the tax burden which the producing industry would have to bear.

(7) A production tax would fall on producers to the exclusion of non-producing owners of a natural resource, and in comparison with existing taxes, more heavily upon small producers who generally have small reserves of such resource than larger ones who generally possess larger reserves.

(8) Applied to a given or all natural resources, there would be no advantage either to the producing industry or the public in merely changing the form of taxation unless the burden thereof itself were reduced.

In its public hearings and other deliberations the one insistent demand presented to the Commission has been, not different taxation but less taxation. Its study of the taxation of mineral resources has involve dthe consideration of the taxation of real estate and has most forcibly directed the Commission's attention to the unbearable burden of taxation which realestate generally is called upon to bear.

The basis for taxation of real estate in this Commonwealth has always been market values. While assessments have not always reflected such values the only legal basis for such assessments is the true market value of the property, whether it be a house, a lot, a farm, a factory, a tract of timber land, or a mineral deposit such as anthracite or bituminous coal or petroleum.

This basis for taxation became established before the development of the mineral resource industries and before the separate ownership of the mineral deposits became prevalent, and by decisions of the Courts the basis of assessment was extended to minerals in the land which, where the title thereto was not severed from the surface, were taken into consideration as adding value to the land, and where severed from the surface were assessed separately. As the mineral resource industries developed to the gigantic proportions which have been realized in this Commonwealth and as they passed through periods of prosperity such as prevailed during their early development and during the World War, the assessed values of mineral deposits were, based upon actual selling values whether speculative or otherwise, raised to previously undreamed of levels and there for the most part have remained, leaving a crushing burden of taxation upon the industries which largely control such mineral resources in the regions of their development and upon the individual land owner who still retains same. The foregoing is particularly true of the bituminous coal deposits of the Commonwealth. It is not wholly true of anthracite in that assessed valuations on this deposit have not been materially increased since around 1911, although due to increased millages the tax burden on this industry has since been greatly increased.

County, school and municipal subdivisions wherein such mineral deposits lie and which are vested under existing laws with the power to tax same for their municipal needs or desires, have, by reason of the past advance in actual values, been quick to advance assessments and thereby increase their local valuations as a basis for taxation and municipal indebtedness, with the result that such municipal subdivisions have built up a basis for local revenue largely upon the assessment of the mineral resource which, at least until its development, has shared no part of the benefits from local taxation.

The Commission is most profoundly impressed with the need for the reduction of governmental expenses as a relief from the burden of taxation generally, and particularly with the need for the reduction of such governmental expenses as are supported by the taxation of real estate. In all of its public hearings and in all personal contacts by members of the Commission this need has been most reiterated. Suggestions offered to the Commission in its public hearings of methods for reducing the cost of county and other local municipal governments, deserving of special study, were the following:

1. Reduction in the cost of public schools by lowering salaries, combining districts to make larger units, even making the county the school unit, and reducing school activities not a part of the necessary curriculum.

2. Reduction in the cost of highways, through a direct reduction in the amount of money spent on local highways, doing away with the present road districts in favor of larger units, thereby making possible the elimination of unnecessary duplication in expensive road equipment now not being used to full advantage by the small units. The proposal also was made to abolish local road taxes by turning over the township roads to the State, to be maintained by an additional gasoline tax.

3. Limiting further the power of local authorities,—county, township, school and poor districts—to increase the bonded indebtedness of the units under their control.

4. Combining municipal subdivisions to form larger units of local government with a consequent doing away with many local paid administrators and officers.

5. Reduction in cost of collecting taxes, by eliminating the present fee system and centralizing the tax assessing and collecting agencies in fewer and larger units. The proposal that there should be in any one county subdivision, but one assessing and collecting agency, instead of separate school, township, and poor district assessing and collecting agencies as at present, was persuasively urged.

The Commission recognizes the difficulty of curtailing municipal expenditures to meet a commercial depression such as now exists and the consequent liability of the taxpayer to continue undera burden which he might have borne in more prosperous times, but at the same time is impressed that there has not been sufficient effort to do so nor an adequate realization by governmental authorities generally of the present crushing burden borne by real estate owners. The tendency to continue extravagant expenditures for what were conceived to be public needs in more prosperous times has been too persistent and, without charging bad faith on the part of governmental authorities, there has been too much of a tendency on the part of those controlling its various activities to consider each respective activity as of such publi cnecessity as will not permit of any retrenchment in the expenditures necessary to support same. Many counties and townships are most insistent that the improvement of highways shall proceed without any interruption. Other activities to which they have become committed in recent years are also reluctantly and but partially, if at all, susepended.

The growth in local expenditures has most noticeably extended to the public school system, where the universal approval of public education has permitted and encouraged excesses that would have otherwise been checked. In many communities the tax burden to support this generally worthy cause has become a staggering one on account of over elaboration of buildings, plant, and curriculum and the imposition by law of minimum teachers' salaries and increments thereto.

Specific recommendations of the Commission covering some of the above enumerated suggestions, and bearing generally upon the taxation of real estate will be hereinafter set forth.

The different natural resources which have been the subject of specific individual study by the Commission, call for individual discussion under the following respective separate headings: Anthracite; Bituminous; Coal; Petroleum (oil); Natural Gas; and Forests.

II. Anthracite

In order to carry out the purpose of the Commission's work in connection with the anthracite industry, the Commission held a meeting in the City of Scranton, on October 19, 1932. This meeting was attended by a representative group of the interested citizens of the anthracite community, including delegations from the various chambers of commerce, taxpayers' groups, representatives of the press, county commissions, assessors, civic groups, and anthracite operators. The views of these various interests were presented to the Commission fully and adequately, both formally and informally, so that it is the Commission's view that it has been made acquainted with the entire situation from the standpoint of the various elements of the region.

The anthracite industry is the chief and nearly the sole basic industry in five counties in the northeastern part of our State, and extends into portions of other counties. It includes the populous counties of Lackawanna, Luzerne, Schuylkill and Northumberland; and such cities as Carbondale, Scranton, Pittston, Wilkes-Barre, Hazleton, Nanticoke, Pottsville, Lansford and Tamaqua. It embraces a community with a population of about 1,250,000, and affords employment directly to 150,000 workmen, and represents an investment of several billion dollars. Practically all the commercial and industrial life of the region centers around this industry.

The situation with regard to this industry has undergone a fundamental change in the last few years. Anthracite was formerly regarded as a necessity of life but, by reason of changing conditions, other fuels have been found which offer strong competition to it and today anthracite is not a necessity but must fight for its markets in keen competition with various other fuels. The result has been a radical falling off in its production.

The situation with regard to this industry has undergone a fundamental change in the last few years. Anthracite was formerly regarded as a necessity of life but, by reason of changing conditions, other fuels have been found which offer strong competition to it and today anthracite is not a necessity but must fight for its markets in keen competition with various other fuels. The result has been a radical falling off in its production.

Anthracite in the land, like bituminous coal, is at present assessed as real estate. While production and earnings have decreased, its taxes have not measurably declined, and taxation today constitutes a menace to the solvency of the business.

The reduction of taxation, in the judgment of all of the various elements of the communities in the anthracite region, can be effected best by a reduction in the cost of government, and such reduction would reflect in reduced taxes not only to the owners of the coal but to the people in general owning real estate within the entire region. It was a revelation to this Commission to ascertain the extremely high cost of government in some of the municipalities within the anthracite region, and we are impressed with the necessity for a very radical reduction in that cost.

All elements of the communities unite in the following views:

Such taxation for local purposes, in the municipalities in the region, as the coal in place should be called upon to bear should be continued as a tax upon such coal considered as real estate. Experience with an ad valorem tax in the application of the recent State-imposed anthracite tax on production seems to indicate that such tax is particularly obnoxious from the standpoint of the purchasing public. Furthermore, to change the present method of taxation might require a constitutional amendment, not deemed advisable at the present time.

They offer the suggestion that numerous municipalities are absolutely dependent for governmental function upon anthracite taxes paid by the owners of the coal in place and that the cost of such government could be radically reduced if economically administered. In addition, they have convinced this Commission that legislation should be enacted reducing the cost of the collection of local taxes and reducing the cost of the administration in the various municipal bodies, poor boards, and school districts. It seems to be common practice in the municipalties in this district that large salaries are paid to officers, such as secretaries and treasurers, who are members of the various councils, boards of supervisors, school districts, and poor boards, while, as a matter of fact, the work usually connected with such offices is performed by clerks or by banking insttiutions in the case of treasurers.

III. Bituminous Coal

The bituminous coal industry is one of the oldest, and most important, natural resource developments of the Commonwealth. Much of the area of thirteen counties in Western Pennsylvania is underlaid with bituminous coal and in nineteen other counties deposits underlie part of the area of the individual counties. The principal deposit under past and present commercial exploitation is the Pittsburgh Seam, having its outcroppings in the vicinity of the City of Pittsburgh, from whence its name is derived, and underlying a large part of the counties of Alegheny, Washington, Westmoreland, Fayette and Greene. At the present time, in the counties of Washington, Westmoreland, Fayette, Green and Indiana the taxes derived from the assesment of coal lands is the major individual source of public revenue for the counties and their respective rural subdivisions such as townships and school districts. Roughly, the southwestern part of Pennsylvania west of the Allegheny mountain range, due to the commercial exploitation of the bituminous coal deposit and the development of its taxation, is dependent for county and local government revenue, to a large extent, upon its taxation in the land. The percentage of assessed valuation of coal lands and related improvements to tatal assessed valuation of real estate in several of the counties, for 1931, was as follows:

	Total Assessed Valuation of Real Estate (Dollars)	Assessed Valuation of Coal Property (Dollars)	Percentage of Coal Property to Total Real Estate Assessment (Per cent)
Fayette County	88,339,843	44,601,996	50.5
Greene County	54,065,083	*36,443,994	67.4
Indiana County	46,553,056	13,059,323	28.1
Washington County ...	142,907,423	50,645,923	35.5
Westmoreland County..	156,602,280	30,952,490	19.8

*Note: Does not include related improvements but does include value of surface in an item of $2,264,772, representing assessment of coal and surface together.

The bituminous coal industry of the Commonwealth has experienced several periods of comparative prosperity and depression, the most marked of which were the period of prosperity during and following the World War and the period of depression since succeeding, which is at present at the lowest level yet attained.

The assessed valuations of coal lands went up with the last period of properity to the highest level that has ever been attained and have not been reduced materially with the decline in the industry, so that at the present time taxes are actually paid by operating companies for county, township and school purposes, to the amount in the aggregate, in some townships, of more than $56.00 per annum per acre of coal therein. While commercial production was being carried on at a profit the producers were able to pay such taxes and, with the attendant prosperity in the industry, farmers and other individuals owning small or large blocks of coal under their lands in the same localities were able to meet the taxes imposed on the coal. But with the decline which has been under way in the industry for the past six or eight years, these taxes have become a burden beyond the ability of both the small and large owner to continue to bear.

The decline in the profit from production has led to a delnie in production itself and a cessation of sales of coal properties, excepting in distress or execution, with the following results:

1. Operating companies which had developed their properties for a large annual production and had acquired reserves of unmined coal based upon such development, find themselves carrying much larger reserves than the present production warrants which, with the attendant tax burden and other carying charges and the lack of profit from operations, renders their position most perilous.

2. With the decline in industry and the consequent stagnation in the sales of coal properties, and with the present results of operations showing an actual financial loss, market values of coal lands (on which assessments for taxation are deemed to be based) have practically ceased to exist, with the inevitable result (although it will take considerable time for such result to be registered) that the municipal subdivisions which are dependent upon this source for taxation will find themselves as certainly without revenue as though the coal had been mined out.

One of the most distressing situations which developed in the hearings of the Commission, and which appears to exist in countless cases, is that of the farm owner who, due perhaps to an error in judgment at the time the opportunity to sell was presented, or due to the decline in the industry, is still left holding the coal under his land, which is assessed at the same value as surrounding coal and added to the value of the surface as a basis for his taxation.

The decline in the returns form agricultural pursuits has left such a land owner caught between the upper millstone of a crushing tax on unproductive real estate and the neither one of the fixed Constitutional rule of uniformity of taxation, from which there is no estate so long as the present method of taxation, from which there is no escape so long as the present method of taxing coal lands like other real estate is continued. There are undoubtedly a vast number of such land owners who will not only lose their coal, but their farms and homes, on account of such taxation, unless relief is afforded them. The decline in industry has rendered the possible sale of coal so held so remote that there is practically no hope, within the period of the present or the next succeeding generation or two, of realizing on the property by way of sale to an operating company.

With the operating companies, the present rate of production is so reduced that the normal reserves of ten to twenty years ago are now so far abnormal that the taxation of the lands for the period that they will have to be carried before realization, renders them worse than valueless to the holders. In the case of one representative company it was testified that its 1931 taxes on coal properties amounted, over a five-county average, to 25.87 cents per ton of production and the 1932 average would be 69.83 cents per ton of production, which is more than fifty per cent of the gross value of the product at the mine. Another company reported its intention to abandon a portion of its reserve coal lands from inability to continue from year to year to pay the taxes imposed thereon; and indirectly reports came to the Commission that other companies plan to take similar courses. The Commission is further advised that there are at present both small and large holdings of coal on which the local taxes for the current, and in some cases preceding, years have not been paid and these lands will doubtless, on that account, soon pass into other ownership and perhaps to the counties wherein they lie, in sales thereof for taxes.

Especially serious are the conditions reported to exist in Fayette County, in which the coal area is perhaps the most highly developed, due to the early intensive development of the coke industry in that locality. The older high-cost-of-operation mines are being abandoned and no new mines are being opened, and the production from the existing mines decreases constantly the reserve of unmined coal. The development of the by-product coking processes has not only removed this industry largely from the county to the industrial plants which use the coke and gas produced, but has made possible the utilization of other coals in place of that for which this county was famous. Under these conditions not only the commercial but taxable valuation of coal lands and plants is decreasing, with a corresponding decrease in taxes received; while the population, attracted to the mining and coke-producing communities during the prosperous years, in large part remains with their needs for school, road and other governmental facilities and expenses incident thereto as a burden of the local government. Conditions such as these might have been in a measure foreseen by local authorities but could not have been wholly foreseen and guarded against.

Bonded indebtedness has been incurred by the county and other municipal subdivisions in the bituminous area, based upon assessed valuations of which coal lands constitute the major part, with apparent assurance on the part of the local authorities that taxes derived from the coal lands guaranteed the due and proper payment of such indebtedness and without taking into account the decline in taxable valuations due to the decline in the industry which has taken place, or to the extraction of the coal through mining.

Thus a condition has developed which is fast not only periling the industry itself but in a measure periling the local municipalities, which have grown to depend upon the coal as a source of tax revenue. The only present answer to this situation is to drastically reduce taxes through drastic reduction in the cost of government within the county and municipal subdivisions where such situations exist and such relief of both the industry and the local governments as may be afforded by legislation. Reduction in the cost of government alone will not afford relief due to the fact that sinking fund and other irreducible fixed charges are so high that revenue must be had to meet them.

In order to give a picture of the relation of the taxes derived from the coal lands to the various public expenditures within a typical county, the Commission has selected Washington County, which has large acreage of both developed and undeveloped coal, and submits the following analysis of the revenues of that county and their appropriation for the year 1932:

While a campaign of governmental economy is strongly urged by the Commission to meet the situation with respect to the bituminous mining industry and the non-operating owner of coal, measures for immediate relief are hereinafter set forth in the recommendation of the Commission.

IV. Petroleum (Oil)

The peculiar characteristics of legal title to petroleum (oil) and natural gas in the land, and particularly as distinguished from similar title to coal, should be noted preliminarily.

Oil and gas holdings are usually combined in the same owner. This results from the fact that in the early days of development gas was a by-product of operations for oil and to some extent still operations may be conducted for one mineral and result in developing the other, or both. The right to such holdings, when separated from the fee or land itself, is generally sceured by a lease giving hte lessee the right to both the oil and gas produced. The right can be conveyed in fee, for a fixed consideration, but such instrument is seldom used. If conveyed in fee, the title of the grantee to the oil or gas is identical with the title of the owner of such mineral deposits as coal, clay, or other solid substances. Due to the uncertainty as to the existence of these mineral deposits, the lease is the accepted form of securing or transferring the right to prospect for and remove oil and gas.

The Supreme Court of the Commonwealth, in a case construing a so-called "lease" of coal, which gave the right to enter the land and mine the coal to exhaustion, decided that such an instrument amounted to a conveyance of coal in place, notwithstanding that it was called a lease and required the payment of a consideration described as rentals. Such decision has since been consistently followed as to coal. The same Court, construing an instrument which gave the lessee the right of going upon land and searching for oil and gas, one-thirdof which, if found, was to go to the lessor, decided that it did not amount to a sale of the minerals and differed from a coal lease and conferred only an incorporeal right upon the lessee. Apparently on authority of these decisions, it was argued before the Commission that an oil and gas lease in the hands of the lessee must be regarded legally as but a chattel interest of personal property, though a coal lease in similar terms was to be regarded as real estate. However, the Commission is otherwise informed that subsequent lower Court decisions in the oil and fas producing counties hold that the usual form of lease effects a sale of the mineral in place, severs it in title from the surface, and renders each assessable to their respective owners. The Commission also knows within its own membership that the custom in such counties is in accord with such lower Court decisions.

The production of petroleum and the petroleum industry, as it exists now throughout the world, began in Pennsylvania with the drilling of the famous Drake well near Titusville in 1859. Production in Pennsylvania increased steadily until 1891, when it reached 31,424,000 barrels per year, following which there was a gradual decline until about 1924, when production was 7,486,000 barrels, when the process of flooding or forcing water into the oil sands in previously developed territory was adopted. This process has increased greatly the production of several districts within the State, particularly in the Bradford field, and has prolonged for many years the life of the oil producing industry in Pennsylvania. The 1931 production was 11,844,441 barrels.

At the present time McKean County, of which Bradford is the principal town, produces about 70% of the oil produced within the Commonwealth, although Venango, Forest and Warren Counties are important enough to derive considerable revenue from taxation of oil-producing properties. In several counties where development has existed for many years and with a present commercial production, such as Butler, Washington and Allegheny, there appears never to have been a definite taxation policy regarding this mineral.

Pennsylvania oil, because of its superior lubricating properties, commands a higher price per barrel than the western oils. Were it not for this fact, the smaller high-cost producing properties in this State would probably have been abandoned with the years following the World War, Pennsylvania crude oil comthe development of the mid-continent and other fields. During manded a market price as high as $5.00 per barrel, whereas the present price is about $1.47 per barrel.

In considering the taxation of this mineral deposit in the land, it should be remembered that at the present time the Federal Government levies a tax of 4c per gallon on lubricating oils derived from petroleum and a tax of 1c per gallon on gasoline, while there is at present a State tax of 3c per gallon on gasoline. Pipe line companies which are largely owned by, or affiliated with, oil producing companies, pay a Federal income tax amounting to 4% of the transportation rate charged, so that the industry and its commodities are not unknown in the field of taxation.

However, this Commission is charged only with studying and making recommendaions on the taxation of petroleum in the land before it enters the pipe line for the market. Since McKean County at present produces the major part of the petroleum produced in the State, the taxation of oil properties in that county is most important and probably has there received the most attention.

McKean County has a population of 55,167. It is situated in a rough, mountainous country, with little agricultural or other natural wealth. Outside of a few local industries, a large part of the population, both rural and urban, is dependent, either directly or indirectly, upon the oil industry. In 1931 the total assessed valuation of the conuyt was $32,123,434, of which $14,638,146, or 45%, was assessed against the oil producing industry. Total production in the county for 1931 was 8,909,872 barrels, on which local taxes amounted to .0788 cents per barrel, or 3.89% of the average selling price.

As has heretofore been noted, the present basis for the assessment of real estate is market value and petroleum in the land is part of the land and is assessable as real estate. It is comparatively easy to arrive at the value of surface and surface improvements; and in the cast of a solid mineral deposit like coal in the persistent formations in which it exists in the fields of commercial production, no insuperable obstacles in arriving at its valuation have been encountered. A fluid or fugitive mineral deposit like petroleum and natural gas, however, has been described as "ferae naturae" by the Courts in determining the rights thereto between adjoining land owners, and therefore incapable of definite legal ownership and possession until brought to the surface. One owner striking a producing well on his own land may draw these mineral substances from under the land of his neighbor by their own natural flow, even to the point of exhaustion, without liability to the neighbor therefor.

Notwithstanding that a tract of land containing producing oil wells has a value as real estate in excess of a similar property in which oil has not yet been developed and therefore is not known to exist, no one can say with any accuracy what quantity of oil the land will produce and therefore what value should be placed on the property with respect to the oil, nor on other property in the neighborhood with prospective or possible oil content. It is probably for this reason, and also because of the legal situation which exists between the owner of an oil and gas lease and the owner of the land, that more definite and consistent atempts to tax this mineral deposit in the land have not been made.

In McKean County a method for taxation purposes has been worked out apparently to the mutual satisfaction of the taxing authorities and the petroleum producers, and the Commission is informed that the same or a similar method is used in six other counties of the Commonwealth. While at its public hearing some very conflicting views were presented by producers and representatives of the taxing authorities of the county, the Commission understands that a producing oil property is valued on the basis of the daily oil production during the preceding year or portion thereof that it was producing, as disclosed by reports of oil received by pipe lines, the present valuation being $600 for each barrel per day of production. That is to say, a well producing a barrel a day is estimated to give a valuation of $600 to the oil property on which the well is situated. Thus the average production of a property in barrels per day multiplied by $600 gives the value of a producing oil property for taxation purposes, and the county and other local millages are applied to such value in arriving at the amount of taxes payable on the property. Some of the producers describe this as a production tax, while the local authorities stated that it was in no sense a tax assessed on the oil produced, but a tax assessed on the oil property as land, which latter appears to be the legal aspect of the method.

While the Commission is impressed that there are existing inequities between the taxes thus assessed on the owner of property which is producing oil as compared with an adjoining owner on which there is an oil development that is shut down, and as between the owner of a small area which is producing and the owner of a larger area having the same number of producing wells, and while in such comparisons it may be questionable whether the method meets the constitutional requirement of uniformity in taxation, inquiry develops that there are no appeals by the oil producers from the assessments thus made and the Commission is impressed that the method of valuation is the best which can be arrived at under the existing conditions with respect to minerals of this character and the laws of the Commonwealth governing their taxation. The Commission is also impressed that, this method has all the advantages and, in its result, all the essential characteristics of a production tax.

It has been suggested that dormant, unexhausted oil properties, known to contain oil, should be subject to higher taxation, but this suggestion is met with the uncertainty attending their valuation and with the assertion that production would thereby be forced in order to meet the tax burden, and this would be undesirable, particularly in the present overproduction and consequent condition of markets in the industry. The Commission, therefore, does not believe that any sustained public or private benefit would result from taxing at a higher rate such dormant properties. It is also stated that most of the dormant properties in which oil has been developed are held under leases by producing companies which require the payment to the land owner of "delay rentals" in lieu of royalties and that such delay rentals are a material and constant source of revenue to the land owner and enable him to better carry his properties and function in the community, particularly in regions such as McKean County, where income derived from agricultural or other uses of the land is very scant.

When Pennsylvania crude oil was commanding a market price of from $3.00 to $5.00 per barrel, the local taxes paid by the oil producer were comparatively small, but the Commission believes that with the present price of oil fluctuating below $2.00 per barrel, the tax burden on the average oil producer is heavy and demands relief. Since McKean County depends so heavily on the oil industry for its taxation, it does not seem possible to shift the burden to other forms of real estate. Here, as in the counties producing coal, relief must come through lower cost of local government. The problem in this respect is essentially the same as in the coal producing counties and the suggestions for relief from the present burden do not differ from the suggestions for relief from the present burden do not differ from the suggestions made with regard to such coal producing counties.

V. Natural Gas

The peculiar characteristics of the legal title to natural gas in the land, as distinguished from title to the surface, and considered as a subject of separate taxation, have been heretofore treated in this report in the preliminary portion, under the heading of Petroleum, as the rights to the two minerals are usually severed from title to the surface and joined in the same owers by the same instrument. While some differences may exist in the opinions of different lawyers as to whether a usual form of lease giving the right to explore for and remove natural gas so long as produced in paying quantities creates a separate estate in theland, the Commission has reached the conclusion that generally speaking and under the usual form of lease, natural gas in the land exists as a separate estate in the lessee and is taxable as such, and that there is no sound reason for any other conclusion any more than in the case of petroleum, bituminous coal, or anthracite. Admittedly, however, the difficulty of measuring the quantity and value of the deposit while still in the land is greater than with solid minerals, and even than with petroleum.

Generally speaking, the areas producing natural gas are the same as those producing petroleum, forming a part of the Appalachian System extending from New York to West Virginia, although the oil areas are more pronounced in the westerly and gas areas in the easterly portions of this territory. The most prolific gas fields today lie in Tioga, Potter, McKean, Elk, Clarion, Jefferson, Armstrong, Allegheny, Westmoreland, Washington, Greene and Fayette Counties.

The commercial exploitation of natural gas and its distribution in the Commonwealth has for many years been one of its important industries. Beginning with its first use on a commercial scale at Titusville in 1872, its introduction as a domestic and industrial fuel spread until consumption within the Commonwealth reached its maximum of 200,000,000 M. cubic feet in 1917, when it gradually declined to about 120,000,000 M. cubic feet in 1921. This drop in consumption was due both to the cutting off of large industrial consumers and the substitution of gas from by-product coke ovens, especially for steel mills, and to some extent mixed with natural gas for domestic consumption.

The Commission is advised that, based upon figures compiled by the U. S. Bureau of Mines and from a summary of reports filed by public utility gas companies with the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth, the total proudction of natural gas in Pennsylvania for the year 1931 was 74,797,000 M. cubic feet. Of this amount 11,555,000 M. cubic feet, or about 15%, was exported to Canada and the states of New York, Ohio, and West Virginia. On the other hand, there was imported into Pennsylvania from West Virginia 29,381,000 M. cubic feet, which was a little over 39% of the amount produced in the State. The total consumption in Pennsylvania for the same year was 92,-629,000 M. cubic feet, having a value of 47.8 cents per M. cubic feet.

The Commission is also advised that there are 86 natural gas companies reporting to the Public Service Commission in Pennsylvania, two-thirds of which are classified by the Commission as A-B companies. These 86 companies in 1931 produced 35,641,000 M. cubic feet of gas and purchased 38,182,000 M.cubic feet in Pennsylvania and 32,432,000 M. cubic feet outside of Pennsylvania. Of their total sales of 108,432,000 M. cubic feet 99,566,000 M. cubic feet were sold in Pennsylvania and 8,-871,000 M. cubic feet were sold outside the State. These 86 companies held under lease 1,442,903 acres of unoperated territory upon which they paid approximately $1,106,570 in delay rentals, (i.e. rental accruing prior to production). The smallest companies do not report delay rentals or royalties paid, but the total sum includes an estimate of such rentals based on the average rental per acre paid by other companies. There were also held under lease by the reporting companies, for the same year, 1,051,975 acres of operated territory, upon which were located 13,884 gas wells and the royalties paid on such wells amounted to approximately $1,481,223, this figure also including an estimate at the average rate per well for smaller companies.

The Commission was also furnished an estimate that of the amount of gas purchased by reporting companies probably two-thirds, or 25,454,000 M. cubic feet, was purchased from non-reporting or non-utility companies. From the foregoing figures it is estimated that there are a total of $3,631,407 paid as royalties and $4,000,000 as delay rentals, distributed widely over the counties of Western Pennsylvania wherein gas is produced. Domestic consumers are given at 613,531, industrial at 1,800, or a total, including certain miscellaneous classifications, of 618,072. By applying an average of five persons to a family of domestic consumers, upwards of three million people were enjoying the use of natural gas for various purposes.

A few years ago production of natural gas had declined to such an extent that the distributors sent out a warning that other forms of fuel should be substituted for industrial purposes so as to conserve the supply for domestic consumption, but at the present time in most areas of consumption there is no shortage and in adjacent producing fields there are many wells held in reserve. The last important developments are in Tioga and Potter Counties, the discovery well in Tioga County coming in September, 1930, and the discovery well in Potter County coming in in December, 1931. There are completed in Tioga County 72 wells of which 38 are producers and 34 dry holes, the average depth being 4,000 feet and the cost of drilling each about $25,000. In the Potter County field there are completed 8 wells of which 6 are producers and 2 dry holes, the 6 wells having an initial aggregate flow of 78,000 M. cubic feet per day. The depth of these wells is approximately 5,000 feet and the cost of drilling each $30,000.

The Commission is advised that, owing to its remoteness from other consuming territories not now supplied, the Tioga and Potter County development is being largely exported or held for exportation into communities in the State of New York.

The Commission is impressed that the development of these two latest fields indicates that probably other producing territory will be found in the Commonwealth so that the predicted decline to extinction of the supply and the industry is not as likely to be realized as seemed probable a few years ago.

The foregoing roughly summarizes the importance of the natural gas industry within the Commonwealth. The Commission recognizes the unusual hazard attending the producing end of this industry and the amount of capital necessary in its prosecution and that no action should be taken by governmental authorities that would tend to impede or discourage the industry. In pursuing the inquiry with which it is charged with particular reference to this industry, the Commission has been impressed, however, that it occupies a peculiarly favored position with respect to taxation. From the figures hereinbefore stated, it is apparent that a large part of the production and, of course the entire distribution within the Commonwealth, of natural gas is by the 86 companies reporting to the Public Service Commission. It may be fairly assumed that these companies are organized under the law as utility or public service corporations. Such corporations, by decisions of the Courts of the Commonwealth, have for a long time enjoyed exemption from local taxation as to all real estate, improvements, and works necessary and indispensable to the exercise of their public franchises, even as to the holdings of producing gas lands. Such companies, also, are as yet exempt from the gross receipts tax imposed generally upon corporations which would come under the same general classification of public service corporations. In its first report hereinbefore referred to, the Edmonds Commission recommended the extension of the gross receipts tax to a few classes of public utilities, including natural and manufactured gas companies which were then exempt, and the Legislature has since followed its suggestions as to several classes of utility companies theretofore omitted, but has not as yet extended the tax to gas companies. Owing apparently to the fact that utility companies which own gas lands necessary in the pursuit of their public sevice are exempt from taxation thereon and the further fact that it is difficult to measure the value of a producing natural gas property other than on the basis of its production, which latter method has not yet been adopted so far as the Commission has been able to ascertain, natural gas in the land, either as a part of the realty vested in the same ownership or as a separate estate, has not generally been the subject of local taxation as real estate. Thus the Commission finds this industry practically subject only to taxes assessed upon capital stock, and that only in so far as it is controlled by corporations or joint stock companies, while other industries exploiting mineral resources are all subject not only to the capital stock tax but also to the real taxation of such mineral resource as real estate.

VI. Forest Lands

It is axiomatic that the 46 per cent. of our State Land area which is now potential forest and the 7 per cent. of idle land* impossible to farm any longer, must be put back into thrifty forest crops. A crop of trees takes from 30 to 60 and more years to mature. Taxes during the growing period must be almost nominal to permit private land owners to produce forest crops. To this end in 1913 the General Assembly enacted the "Auxiliary State Forest Tax Laws" permitting forest lands to be dedicated to growing tree crops and having such lands pay annual taxes on one dollar per acre assessment during the growing period, and ten per cent. of the final crop as a production or "yield" tax. The State may order cutting at maturity. The State pays the local government 4 cents per acre to help cover a deficient tax income until the production taxes begin to comein in adequate quantities. In general these are satisfactory tax laws, but there are two inequalities apparent at present. First—merchantable timber now is generally found only in farm woodlands and is denied listing as "Auxiliary State Forest." It pays an annual tax based on full value. This results in maximum forest land taxes of from $.54 to $7.40 per acre per year, in eight counties surveyed by the Commission. This is confiscatory and must force cutting. All forest land dedicated to forest crops should be permitted registering as "Auxiliary State Forest," and the owners be allowed to select the time of cutting instead of being subject to the order of the State forest officers. This would relieve the farm real estate tax burden somewhat. In registering timber lands the yield tax should be fixed on a sliding scale and it should pay one-half per cent. for each year registered until the maximum of 10 per cent. is reached.

The second inequality is the penalty imposed on township governments when forest land is bought by the State for State forests (now 1,608,000 acres) and State game lands (331,112 acres) or classified as "Auxiliary State Forests" (50,000 acres to date). In the former case the local government receives 5 cents annually (2 for roads, 2 for schools, 1 for county) from the State in lieu of taxes, while in the latter the contribution is 4 cents—2 for schools and 2 for roads. The 5 cents per acre was fixed twenty-five years ago. Since then local government costs and private forest land taxes have risen, so that this sum is no longer adequate (See note below). Taxes on private forest land now average from 8.1 cents to 51.0 cents per acre in 8 counties studied. The State payment should be increased to 8 cents per acre (3 cents added) and divided 4 cents for schools, 2 for roads, and 2 for county purposes, unless the State removes the entire township road tax from real estate, in which case it should be four cents for schools and two for county purposes. This payment should be extended to the "Auxiliary State Forest" lands since the owners' tax is reduced to 3 to 6 cents per acre ($1.00 assessment).

There are 373,000 acres of Federal forest land in the Allegheny National Forest, on which the State pays 5 cents per acre temporarily in lieu of taxes to the local government. A 3 cent increase in lieu of taxes on these government forest lands would require an additional State appropriation of about $60,000 annually (the Game land contribution is paid from Game funds). If the township road taxes are abolished and the State tax contribution is made 4 cents for the schools and 2 cents for county, the additional appropriation would be $20,000 instead of $60,000.

With these changes the Commission believes all taxation bars to private reforestation in Pennsylvania are removed:

VII. Conclusions and Recommendations of the Commission

From its survey of the particular subjects of its inquiry, outlined in the foregoing portions of this report, the Commission has reached the following conclusions and submits the following recommendations:

(a) Anthracite

The Commission finds here neither a prosperous nor a contented industry, but one that by reason of its training and the experiences attending its development is self-contained, although oft-times in the past and now beset by many difficulties. Its attitude toward the substitution of a production tax for the existing method of taxing this deposit as real estate is perhaps actuated by its recent sad experience with the State-imposed anthracite tax, which in Legislative purview appeared to be entirely harmless, and makes it "rather bear the ills it has than fly to other that it knows not of." There is, at the same time, a recognition by the industry of the need for continuing the present tax system in order to support the local government. It was the unanimous request of all representatives of the industry at its Scranton meeting that the Commission should do nothing to change the methods of taxation, and the Commission makes no recommendation with respect to this industry other than the general ones looking to the reduction in the cost of local government and a reduction of taxes on real estate.

(b) Bituminous Coal

The deplorable condition in which the Commission has found this industry and the non-operating holder of coal lands with their relation to the local government sub-division in the bi-

*Over two million acres of cleared farm lands have become idle since 1910.

Note: The table below shows that the present average annual forest land tax per acre in 8 counties varies from a low of 8.1 cents in Chester County to 51.0 cents in Crawford County. Further the State purchased in the period 1930-32 247,000 acres of forest land in 24 counties. This land in the hands of the former private owners paid an average annual tax of 10.9 cents per acre. On acquisition by the State the tax income was reduced to less than 50% by payment of 5 cents per acre in lieu of taxes to the local government.

tuminous field imperatively demands tax relief in order to avoid the possibility of a total collapse. The Commission is impressed that the industry and non-operating owner of bituminous coal would welcome some form of production tax if it could be carefully worked out so as to avoid the objections thereto which have hereinbefore been enumerated and so as to render certain the future of such industry and the municipal governmental sub-divisions which are largely dependent upon the taxation of coal lands as a means of needed revenue. In its public hearing on bituminous coal the opinion was openly expressed by some of those attending that the only time to tax coal is when it reaches the top of the ground. However, the Commission recognizes that such a method of taxation requires further study and the return of more normal industrial conditions before it can be applied. The commission has concluded that the immediate means of affording bituminous coal relief from its present burden of taxation is to afford real estate generally such relief, and as particularly needed by this natural resource it makes the recommendations stated in its general conclusions in the following portions of this report.

(c) Petroleum (Oil)

The Commission is impressed that the oil industry within this Commonwealth is already over-burdened with taxation and that some relief from this burden should be afforded it, rather than that is should be subjected to additional taxation. Under existing laws, oil lands held by operating companies for the most par are legally subject to taxation as real estate. While the Commission believes that a tax upon the production itsself might well be substituted for the existing system of taxing the oil in the land as real estate and that such a production tax would more readily lend itself to the taxation of oil and natural gas than it would to other mineral deposits such as coal, it believes that the substantial results of such a method of taxation are being accomplished, apparently to the satisfaction of producers and taxing authorities, by the methods employed in McKean and some other counties, which have already had the approval of the Courts in decisions rendered. This method has some doubtful legal features, in that it calls for valuation annually rather than tri-ennially, and might offend the Constitutional rule of uniformity in the taxation of a producing tract and exempting a proven but non-producing one, but it appears to be the most pratcicable method that can be devised without a radical change in the taxing system applicable to such properties.

From facts developed in the public hearings of the Commission, and information which it has otherwise obtained, the Commission believes that local authorities have not adjusted the valuations arrived at on the basis of production to the selling price of oil as they should have done, and at the present time this imposes an unjust tax upon the producer and should be corrected. The annual adjustment of valuation to production during the preceding year renders this readily possible.

The Commission desires to register its disapproval of the invasion by the Federal Govrnmnt of this field of taxation in the imposition of the 1c per gallon gasolne tax and 4c per gallon tax on lubricating oils, by the Federal Revenue Act of 1932.

The Commission most earnestly believes, in common with a great many other persons and in common with the recorded principles enuniciated by a great many organizations, that such taxes upon petroleum products, and particularly upon motor fuels produced therefrom, should not be imposed except as a means of revenue for the improvement and maintenance of the public highways, and that the imposition of such a tax is peculiarly the province of the several states. The invasion of this field of taxation by the Federal Government could in no circumstances be justified as a means of raising general revenue, but only by the expenditure by the Federal Government could in no circumstances be justified as a means of raising general revenue, but only by the expenditure by the Federal Government on the highways within a given state of the entire proceeds of such tax collected within such state.

The Federal tax of 4c per gallon on lubricating oils imposes a very heavy charge upon Pennsylvania producers, whose oil is of such superior quality that it is largely devoted to the manufacture of lubricants. This tax was probably intended as a further tax upon the motorist, but pleasure cars consumed but 22%, while commercial motor vehicles consumed 21% and industrial plants and arts consumed the remaining 53% of such lubricants. On the lower grade oils, such as used by railroads, this tax amounts to a sales tax of 40%, while on some other grades it amounts to as much as a sales tax of 50%. On a minimum yield from crude of 25% of lubricating oil, there would be recovered 10.5 gallons from a barrel of crude, and the Federal tax on lubricating oils would therefore amount to 42c per barrel on crude oil which is now selling at about $1.47 per barrel.

The Commission recommends that the General Assembly now in session bring to the attention of the National Congress, at its present or forthcoming session, this unjust invasion of a field of taxation occupied by the states, by the imposition of the Federal tax on gasoline and lubricating oils.

(d) Natural Gas

As hereinbefore indicated, the Commission's studies have led it to the conclusion that the natural gas industry as a whole has thus far, in this Commonwealth, escaped its just share of taxation. The Commission is not charged with the duty of finding new sources of revenue, but it construes its functions to include calling attention to inequalities that may exist in the present taxing system so far as affects natural resources and suggesting corrections thereof. The Commission is informed that at several past sessions the Legislature has had under consideration the imposition of a gross receipts tax upon natural gas companies but that, owing to the complexity of the situation, legal and economic, no such tax has as yet been imposed. The Commission can see no reason why, considered by itself, a tax on the separate estate in natural gas in the land cannot be imposed on a value arrived at on the basis of production, such as is applied to the production of oil in McKean County, but is mindful of the fact that under existing law, so far as this separate estate of gas in the land is controlled by utility companies and is necessary to the exercise of their public franchises, it would be exempt from local taxation, on the apparent theory that subjecting the properties of such public corporations to assessment and consequent sale for non-payment of taxes, would possibly defeat the corporate purpose to serve the public.

The exportation of gas from the Tioga and Potter fields, and perhaps from other fields, raises the peculiar situation of one of the Commonwealth's most useful natural resources being produced and exhausted for the comfort and advantage of foreign consumers, without either the locality of its production being benefitted in local taxation or the Commonwealth receiving direct or indirect revenue therefrom. The application of the gross receipts tax to corporations engaged in producing and exporting gas would have the legal limitation that it could not be applied to revenues derived in the interstate sale and transportation of the commodity, but the Commission is not informed just what the situation is with respect to the Interstate Commerce rule as applied to the most recent exportation into New York Sate.

However, it is the Commission's conclusion that probably the best means of meeting the situation with respect to the ownership and production of natural gas, and its distribution within and without the Commonwealth, would be by following the recommendation heretofore made by the Edmonds Commission, of subjecting all natural gas companies—or at least all that are utility companies—to the gross receipts tax, and in addition thereto by subjecting producing natural gas properties to a local assessment as real estate, based upon metered production, or the production thereof to a severance tax imposed by the Commonwealth, with the possible further provision that a credit be allowed on the gross receipts tax for the amount of local or severance tax paid, to the extent that the gross receipts tax is derived from the sale of natural gas as to such companies as may also be engaged in other lines such as manufactured gas or electric energy.

(e) Forest Lands

The conclusions of the Commission with respect to taxation of forest lands are summarized as follows:

The present law permitting private forest land dedicated to growing tree crops, to be classified as "Auxiliary State Forest" and taxed with a low annual property tax and a 10 per cent severance tax, affords tax relief to private lands with young forest.. It should be extended to cover merchantable forest with the severance tax placed on a sliding scale—one-half per cent for each year of classification until the maximum of ten per cent is reached at twenty years of classification, after which the severance tax remains at ten percent of the stumtpage value. The owner should decide the marketing time.

The State should increase its payment in lieu of taxes from 5 to 8 cents per acre on government owned and "Auxiliary Forest Land" more nearly to approach the taxes paid by private forest land of the same type. The payment should go 4 cents per acre to schools, 2 cents to roads and 2 cents to the county. In case all roads are maintained by the State the payment should be 6 cents per acre, 4 cents to schools and 2 cents to the county.

(f) Final Conclusions and Specific Recommendations

As hereinbefore stated, the Commission and its individual members in all contacts made in the study of the subjects referred to it have been impressed with the disproportionate burden of taxation which real estate is bearing, and numerous suggestions have been offered particularly aimd at a reduction of local governmental expenses in order to relieve this burden. While these suggestions fall short of meeting the existing emergency with respect to the taxation of real estate, the Commission regards some of them as of such merit, although of minor importance, as justifies them being made the subject of specific recommendations. The Commission accordingly recommends the following specific changes in the existing law or methods for its administration:

(1) Under existing law, counties are responsible for all property damage claims resulting from State Highway improvements. Damage cost should follow all other costs, and it therefore is recommended that the State assume all liability for such claims.

(2) Counties are now responsible for all bridges on State highways exceeding a ten foot span. The State should assume responsibility for all bridges on State highways.

(3) In counties of the first, second, and third classes, property is assessed under a centralized authority, whereas in other classes of counties it is assessed by many elected property assessors. In the interest of uniformity of assessment, it is recommended that in the latter classes of counties the assessment of property also should be made under a single authority.

(4) The elimination of the fee system in the collection of taxes.

(5) The review by the Court of Common Pleas of the proper county of all municipal and school budgets with authority to modify or change the same, on grounds other than that of abuse of official discretion, upon the petition of a taxpayer within the particular municipality to which the budget under review relates.

(6) The release of counties from the mandatory provision of the law requiring the purchase of voting machines.

(7) The further authority or requirement for the appointment of incorporated banks, both State and National, and Trust Companies or any corporation duly qualified and legally authorized to transact a fiduciary business within the Commonwealth, as municipal treasurers, except for cities of the first and second class.

(8) The reduction in the charges for maintenance of inmates in State institutions to a level comparable with similar costs in County institutions.

(9) The fees and charges for mileage of Justices of the Peace and Constables that are charged as costs in summary conviction proceedings is in the aggregate a great burden on counties. It is recommended that such fees be reduced and that counties be released from liability therefor, either by requiring the placing of such costs on the prosecutor or defendant or by charging same to the municipality electing the particular officers who respectively issue and serve the process.

(10) The practice of personal quarterly returns by constables to the Courts of Quarter Sessions imposes a charge for fees and mileage that is out of proportion to any advantage realized and should be abolished and in lieu thereof such returns should be made by mail.

(11) Some Boards of Viewers in counties not having a County Board, greatly increase their per diem costs by piecemeal performance of their duties. To prevent payment of per diem rates for trival services, either the allowable fees should be reduced or a specific allowance should be made for each required act.

(12) The County salary boards should have control of all salaries paid to appointed County employes.

(13) There should be more rigid restrictions imposed by law on the power to exonerate taxes.

(14) Removal of limitations on the consolidation of the duties of different County offices in the same person, so as to permit such consolidations and a saving in salaries wherever practicable.

(15) Abolition of fees as a compensation in whole or part to County employes and the substitution of fixed salaries; the fees, if any, charged under the existing laws, to accrue to the County and not to the office.

(16) Provision that fines for automobile violations shall accrue to the County rather than the State, or that costs for prosecution under such laws that are payable by the County shall be deducted from the aggregate fines for which the County must account to the State.

(g) Primary Recommendation

As hereinbefore indicated, the Commission does not regard the foregoing recommendations even if they are all adopted, as measures that will afford adequate relief for real estate from the burden of local taxation. Previous to the present widespread business depression and even prior to the marked increase in public expenditures which has taken place during the past decade and a half, it was recognized that real estate was called upon to bear a disproportionate share of taxes. With the expanded program of highway construction, public schools, and other local municipal improvements, the greatly increased burden upon local governments has been met with necessarily greatly increased taxes upon real estate.

Rising values during the early post-war period justified raising the assessments so that many properties of all classes are today assesed above normal selling values. The decline in business activity and values generally to the present critical state of depression has left the holders of real estate and real estate securities in such a desperate position that the Commission feels the entire economic structure is threatened. Real estate which has been always regarded the basis of all wealth, and mortgage securities which have been regarded the standard of all sound investments, have never perhaps in the history of the country been placed in so perilous a position as at present. All classes of society are affected by this situation and society as a whole is threatened with the impending results. The Commission is profoundly impressed that the situation calls for drastic action, and while it is primarily charged with the study of methods for the taxation of natural resources, its study has necessarily led it into the field of taxation of real estate generally and therefore the consideration of the particular problem as connected with the general one. While it would prefer to make specific recommendations with respect to the particular problem, it has found the existing situation such that its recommendations primarily relate to the general one, so that such relief as may be afforded by its suggestions in the taxation of mineral resources is a relief that will also be enjoyed by other taxable real estate.

As the most effective and immediate means of relieving the tax burden upon real estate, the Commission makes the following primary recommendation:

That legislation be enacted to take away from local authorities the power to levy taxes upon real estate for the future construction and maintenance of highways, at least in all second class townships, leaving any such municipalities only the power to levy and collect taxes for the liquidation of existing indebtedness. Removal of the burden of highway construction and maintenance from real estate would be accomplished either by having the local highways taken over by the State, or by having the State allocate funds for such purpose to the various local municipalities on some equitable basis, such as a combination of a flat rate per mile of roads and the true valuation of assessed property within the municipality, such funds to be expended by local authorities under some form of supervision either by the State Highway Department or by the existing boards of County Commissioners, or by a County Board composed of the President Judge, Chairman of the County Commissioners and County Controller, or, where there is no controller, one of the County Auditors.

In modern times the construction and maintenance of public highways has ceased more and more to be a local matter, so that this recommendation is in line with a progressive trend. The practical details of this proposed program for the relief of real estate from local taxation are somewhat beyond the powers of the Commission to study and report upon. It also wishes to avoid the appearance of attempting to influence the General Assembly by specific suggestions embodying the exact means of accomplishing this its primary recommendation. Such means it leaves to the Commonwealth's lawmakers in their wisdom to devise, but with the earnest belief that the end to be accomplished will more effectually restore basic values in the present distressed times than anything that the Commission can recommend.

As set forth in the preliminary portions of this report, the Commission feels that it has not fully completed the study of the taxation of natural resources on a basis of production. Lack of time an dlack of funds as well as what appeared to be the immediate practical objections to the introduction of such a method of taxation, have prevented the Commission from extending its inquiry and analysis of the subject into other states and countries where such method is followed in whole or part. The Commission accordingly recommends that its study of methods of taxation of natural resources on a production or output basis, or on a combination of such basis with the existing or some other basis, be further pursued either by the present Commission or some other one to be authorized and empowered thereunto by the present session of the General Assembly.

A complete copy of the Record of the Commission's public hearings, together with Minutes of its other deliberations, is on file with the Secretary of the Commission, where it will be rendered available to those interested.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE OF HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES APPOINTED TO INVESTIGATE THE SPECIAL POOR DISTRICTS OF THE CITY OF PHILADELPHIA

The committee appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives in pursuance of a resolution passed by the House on August 2, 1932, took up the work assigned to it, as indicated in the resolution, i. e.

1. To conduct a thorough investigation of the manner in which the affairs of the various special poor districts in the City of Philadelphia are being administered;
2. To conduct a thorough investigation of the manner in which public monies in the control of such special poor districts are being expended;
3. To conduct a thorough investigation of the manner in which the money paid to such special poor districts, distributed under the Talbot Act, was used and expended by such boards.

The committee found it impossible to make an investigation of the character directed by the House of Representatives without the services and assistance of:

1. Certified Public Accountants; to make an audit of the books and methods of the special poor districts;
2. Two stenographers to take notes of the testimony of the witnesses at the public hearings referred to herein;
3. Investigators to make local investigations of the manner in which the funds were being expended;

At this juncture the committee discovered that the Auditor General was making an investigation and audit of the manner in which the funds provided the poor districts under the Talbot Act had been used and expended and the committee, therefore, decided it would be a duplication of effort and expense to go over these phases of the investigation particularly in view of the fact that the Auditor General is required to report the outcome of his investigation to your Honorable Body. Consequently, the committee did not duplicate what the Auditor General had done or was or is doing in respect to the funds provided under the Talbot Act.

The committee held public hearings September 14th and 19th and December 19th, 1932 and January 13th, 1933. The testimony given at those public hearings by all witnesses was transcribed by regular court reporters and the notes of testimony are submitted herewith.

The committee obtained the services of Laventhol & Krekstein, 900 Chestnut street, as certified public accountants, and August Frey, 5940 N. 12th street; Ralph P. Winters, 1215 Bridge street; Frederick Ditter, 405 N. 6th street; John Fitzpatrick, 1239 W. Firth street; G. H. Markel, 1411 Walnut street ,and Robert B. Haines, 5023 Akron street, as investigators; S. A. Solomon, Liberty Trust Building, as a process server; Herman Pechin, 261 City Hall, as reporter to take the notes of testimony of the witnesses at the first and second hearings of the committee and Ernest N. Ross, 335 City Hall, as reporter to take the notes of testimony of the witnesses at the third and fourth hearings of the committee. (All addresses are in Philadelphia).

The committee also secured the use of room No. 801 Liberty Trust Building, Philadelphia, for the work of the committee and these expenses were incurred with the distinct understanding that the committee was without funds to proceed with its work so that any persons or firms employed by the committee would have to rely upon the Legislature of 1933 for reimbursement. Therefore, it was publicly announced by Mr. Baldi at the first hearing (See notes of testimony page 5). "There has been no appropriation made for the investigation and payment of accountants, the clerk, court stenographers, etc., and it will be necessary to have an appropriation passed paying for their services and only upon passing such an appropriation can the services be paid for."

With that understanding then, the persons named were engaged after being advised that the committee had no authority to obligate either the Legislature or itself for the payment of the money and that unless the Legislature made an appropriation those employed could not and would not secure compensation for work done or other services rendered. The persons named have engaged in the work that has been done, the bills for their services have been received by the committee and are referred to at the end of this report.

The reports of the certified public accountants, separately as to each of the six poor districts located in the City of Philadelphia and functioning outside of the local Department of Welfare are also submitted herewith.

Reference is made to the report of the accountants and the testimony taken at the hearings for facts and information regarding these poor districts set forth therein.

Members of the committee made personal investigation of the various districts and poor houses.

The committee felt it was unnecessary to have an investigation made of all recipients of "outside" poor relief and concluded that a typical group of approximately 3000 cases should be taken from the six boards and investigated. The result of those investigations is set forth in the individual reports of the investigators, which are also submitted to your Honorable Body herewith.

As to those reports it may suffice to say that some irregularities were disclosed; such as orders being issued to persons not residents of the poor district or to persons who were unknown at the addresses indicated as their residences, or, in a few instances, to persons who had employment or were in business at the time they received the relief and to others not entitled to relief but it is fair to conclude that compared with the total relief given the irregularities did not conclusively prove anything although their existence should influence the overseers and directors to greater care, so that such irregularities do not recur.

With this information before it, the committee has considered the whole situation and concludes:

That if the present personnel of managers, overseers or directors of these six poor districts were permanent, the abolition of the districts should be recommended and the property owned by the districts sold and the proceeds given to the City of Philadelphia or if sale is impossible at this time, that the property should be conveyed to the City of Philadelphia and the territory covered by the districts included in that under the jurisdiction of the local Department of Welfare.

However, the personnel of managers, overseers or directors of the poor boards in these six districts at the present time are neither permanent nor similar. Some of these men are unquestionably capable, sincere and honest. Others are not. The fact that the residents of the localities served by these boards can, within a reasonably short space of time, elect proper persons to fill these positions justifies the query as to whether or not the committee would be justified in recommending the abolition of the boards.

The Committee feels that the relief afforded in these poor districts is afforded faster than elsewhere in the city. It is almost immediate.

In the other sections of the City the relief is not afforded nearly so quick, where it obviously due to the fact that the ersonnel of any such central body, such as is dispensing relief in Philadelphia now, could not under the circumstances properly extend the relief without considerable investigation, which requires time, due to the fact that those asking for relief are for the most are unknown to those whose duty it is to pass upon the question.

That is natural and cannot in the opinion of the Committee be avoided but it is well to know that in the six local poor districts the managers, overseers or directors either personally know those entitled to relief or they know some one who does know the persons entitled.

The investigations (made by these Local Boards), therefore, probably are not as scientific or complete but they are much more rapid and the Committee feels that when relief is needed it is needed quickly. Consequently, we do not recommend the abolition of the poor boards although we do feel their management can be improved by some matters hereafter mentioned.

There are six local poor districts in Philadelphia and three of them (Roxborough, Germantown and Oxford and Lower Dublin) maintain poor houses. The other districts (Bristol, Byberry and Moreland) do not. The districts that maintain poor houses have ample ground for expansion owned by the respective districts and the Germantown and Oxford and Lower Dublin districts maintain fairly large institutions. The inmate capacity of the buildings in the Roxborough district is limited to 17 and the cost to "man" with a staff and maintain such an institution for so small a population is necessarily large per capita inmate, is unnecessary and its continuance cannot be justified.

Furthermore, the Committee is of the opinion that each poor district should have a poor house and we, therefore, recommend that the population of the Roxborough poor house be transferred to the Germantown poor house and that the latter be enlarged and combined so that it will serve the same communities now served by the Roxborough, Bristol and Germantown poor boards.

Similarly, we recommend the combination of Byberry and Moreland with Oxford and Lower Dublin which also has a poor house. By so doing there will be a poor house in each poor district.

Some effort should immediately be made by proper legislation to define the boundaries of the various poor districts whether they are permitted to remain as constituted or combined as suggested herein. It is clear that the geographical boundaries of these districts are vague and uncertain and impossible to define. That should not be.

We further suggest regardless of whether these districts are combined or not that the management of the districts be given to a central Committee or board to the end that supplies and/or equipment may be purchased in larger quantities and at more advantageous prices. It will be noted from the reports submitted herewith that some of the districts secure much better prices than others under the present system. This could be corrected by co-operation between the directors even under the present circumstances and should be without delay.

It will also be observed that those who fill the poor relief orders (merchants) are taking advantage of the poor people and charging prices in excess of the current market prices for most articles. This could be corrected by providing by law that if a merchant charges more for merchandise supplied on a poor relief order than he charges for the same article at the same time to other customers, he will thereafter be barred from supplying merchandise on poor relief orders.

The result would be that the poor people could secure much more merchandise for the same aggregate amount of dollars expended by the poor board and the relief to that extent would be increased without any increase in cost.

It is also suggested that the taxes levied for poor relief purposes should be uniform in all the districts within Philadelphia. That is not true now. In some of the districts the same rate of taxes has been levied year after year regardless of the demand upon the poor districts and regardless of the prosperity or depression of the people who pay the taxes. In some districts poor taxes were not assessed or collected for years while adjoining districts, with similar types of population, were increasing rates and assessments were also at the same time mounting.

Provision should be made (by a budgetary system) for the allotment of funds used in outside relief. At present there is no reason why one poor director should not issue orders for all of the funds raised by the district leaving nothing for his colleagues to distribute in their parts of the same poor district. That has not been done but it is nevertheless true that some poor directors have issued orders for an aggregate sum of money very much larger than their colleagues and without reason or result. This may be due to a greater amount of population, or greater poverty in the population under the supervision of one poor director as compared to another but the fact remains that there is no program or budget of expenses and there should be.

There is at present no test of the qualifications of anyone for outside or inside relief, as to residence or otherwise. We suggest legislation providing poor districts cannot extend outside or inside relief to anyone who has not resided within that poor district for at least three years next preceeding the request for the relief, and not then unless the applicant for relief is unable to work because of actual physical disability, the actual infirmity of age or actual inability to obtain employment. Also that no poor relief should be given to a family having an income of $10.00 per week or to an individual having an income of $2.00 per week.

Purchases of food, equipment or services, where in excess of three hundred dollars per year, should be prohibited except after invitation of public bids and then restricted to the lowest responsible bidder.

Even under the present system of operation, of the local boards separately, the present management could and should collaborate and co-operate in the exchange of information and experience. There is no good reason why purchases should not be made jointly by all the boards so that better prices could be obtained and a great deal could be saved in that way.

Instead of attending conventions of poor board officials in distant parts of the State the local board officials should have a local convention every so often and thus determine uniform methods of collection of poor taxes, uniform levies for that purpose, uniform records, uniform investigations and in every way make their methods of operation as uniform as conditions will permit.

Legislation should be enacted that will restrict merchants, in filling poor orders, to such items of merchandise as do in fact provide relief; that only food can be supplied for such orders; that the merchant must give the issuing board a record of the names and addresses of the persons receiving the merchnadise and the type, variety and quantity of merchandise delivered to each one with the prices charged for same; also requiring the Boards to keep and preserve these records for at least seven years.

The boards should also be required to keep further records of the total relief given to each person or family with the names and addresses of each recipient and the name of the manager, director or overseer responsible for issuing each order with the amount of each order issued.

The manager, director or overseer should also be required to submit, at least monthly, to each local board a record of the names and addresses of each person or family to whom he or she issued a poor order and the amount of each.

Some of this information is now available from the records of some of the boards but all of it is not available in any of them and there is a total lack of uniformity of records, information disclosed thereby, and in the methods of operation. Much could and should be accomplished by a study of the questions involved by the officials in charge but the facts as disclosed by the testimony and reports submitted herewith would indicate a failure to give these subjects the thought and attention required. For that there can be no excuse.

To be nominally paid official of a local poor board is, of course, largely an honorary matter. Even so, those officials should have the time to give the duties necessary attention or resign in favor of those who will. And the actual management by so called superintendents or stewards and matrons should not be permitted especially where the expense thereof clearly indicates the purchase of quality and quantity and for prices with utter disregard of the source of the money spent and the purpose for which it was raised.

If in your judgment you decide to permit the management of these poor districts to remain in those at present intrusted with them, then we believe the legislation suggested herein would produce a great deal of improvement.

The people in these poor districts could then give more attention to the qualifications of those they elect to these important offices, very important in times of stress and there is much room for improvement in some of the personnel.

However, if in your wisdom, these boards should be abolished their functions and property should be transferred to the City of Philadelphia for administration by its Department of Welfare. This would accomplish uniformity of taxation, management and operation.

We have heretofore referred to assistance obtained in making this investigation. Bills for these services have been received as follows:

FOREWORD

On August 2, 1932, in the House of Representatives, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, the following committee was appointed to make investigation of the Poor Districts of Philadelphia:

Herbert S. Royle, Chairman
Albert S. C. Millar
Joseph F. M. Baldi
Herman J. Tahl
Edward Haws

The accounty firms of Laventhol & Krekstein and Thompson & Markel, both of Philadelphia, were engaged by this Committee to investigate the affairs of the six Poor Districts in the city of Philadelphia. A partial audit, covering the year ending December 31, 1931, was made and preliminary report has been prepared of each of the Poor Districts for that priod. An additional report, comparing the conduct of the various Poor Districts, and making certain suggestions and recommendations, will be rendered following the completion of the six reports mentioned above.

Committee to Make Investigation of the Poor Districts of Philadelphia:

Gentlemen:

Pursuant to your request we have examined the books of account and records of the managers for the relief and employment of the poor of the Township of Germantown for the year ended December 31, 1931, and have analyzed their annual reports for the years ended December 31, 1928, 1929, 1930 and 1931.

Location

We are informed that the boundary lines of the twenty-second ward in the city of Philadelphia are the same as the boundary lines of the Germantown poor district.

Elected Officers

Managers:

The officials in charge of this poor district are known as "managers" and at present are as follows:

John Marsden, President,
James F. McClellan, Vice-President,
Frederick S. Day, Secretary,
Harry C. Davis, Jr., Treasurer,
Horace H. Schaeffer, Asst. Secretary,
Samuel C. Knox, Asst. Treasurer,
Frederick W. Kurz,
Richard A. Cronshey,
Thomas A. Conolly.

Township of Germantown

An examination of the General Election returns of the County of Philadelphia on November 3, 1931, indicates that Messrs. Marsden, Knox and Cronshey were elected on that day and at a meeting of the managers held on January 4, 1932, were "sworn in."

The managers are paid no stated salaries but receive compensation for the duties they perform. This will be discussed in a later part of this report.

Auditors:

The present elected auditors are listed below:

John D. McNeil,
Joseph Kildare,
G. Harry Reitter,
Richard V. Brady, Jr.,
Peter Campbell, Jr.,
Robert Tracey.

We are informed that the board of auditors consists of nine members, three being elected every two years. At present there are three vacancies. The general election returns of November 3, 1931, indicate that Robert J. Tracey, Joseph Kildare, and T. W. Brown were elected.

During the year ended December 31, 1931, the auditors received compensation totalling $516.00. A check for this amount was drawn to the order of G. Harry Reitter. We were unable to find any record indicating the rate of compensation for the auditors but were advised by Mr. Tyler, the Chief Clerk and Investigator, that they are paid at the rate of $2.00 per night. In addition we observe that a check for $150.00 was drawn payable to the order of Mr. James L. Tyler for "Auditing Committee." The members of this committee were the following managers:

James F. McClellan, Chairman,
Harry C. Davis, Jr.,
Thomas A. Conolly.

Salaries

We are listing below a schedule showing the salaries and wages paid during the year ended December 31, 1931.

Fred S. Day, secretary	250.00

According to the minutes of the reorganization meeting held in January, 1932, the managers are to receive allowances for 1932 expenses as follows:

John Marsden, President	$ 150.00
James F. McClellan, Vice-President	150.00
Fred S. Day, Secretary	250.00
Harry C. Davis, Jr., Treasurer	250.00
Horace H. Schaeffer, Assistant Secretary	150.00
Samuel C. Knox, Assistant Treasurer	150.00
Richard A. Cronshey, Chairman of House Committee	400.00
Fred W. Kurz, Chairman of Supply Committee	150.00
Thomas A. Conolly, Chairman of Accounts Committee	250.00
	$ 1,900.00

This is an increase of $300.00 over the total payments for this purpose in 1931.

At this same meeting a communication from Paul Reilly, Solicitor for the Board, was read into the minutes explaining that in his opinion the managers occupy unsalaried offices because, "the act of 1929 is not applicable and salaries as such are not permissible legally." If a manager performs some service which is not regular, ordinary, usual, and recurring, in the performance of his duties as manager he may be paid. If a manager incurs expense in performance of his duties he may be paid his expenses. Duties of a regular, ordinary, usual and recurring kind delegated to Secretary, Treasurer, or Committee who are managers are not legally compensible out of the poor funds.

In June, 1932, an office clerk was employed full time at a salary of $80.00 per month.

Tax collectors are to receive commission on 1932 collections as follows:

Current Tax Collector—5% of Collections.
Delinquent Tax Collectors—
$10,000.00 to $20,000.00—25% of Collections.
20,000.00 to 25,000.00—25% of Collections.
25,000.00 to 30,000.00—20% of Collections.
30,000.00 to 35,000.00—18% of Collections.
35,000.00 to 40,000.00—15% of Collections.

From the above it will be observed that the payroll for 1932 should total about the same as for 1931.

Laws

The Germantown Poor District was created by an Act of Legislature March 31, 1809. We have not traced the various acts that became laws since that time but suggest that the committee make a study of the existing laws and compare them with the operations of this poor district as detailed in this report.

Functions of the Directors

1. Collection of Taxes.
2. Granting of Outside Relief.
3. Maintenance of Inmates in Other Institutions.
4. Maintenance of Almshouse and Farm at Rittenhouse Street and Pulaski Ave.
5. Administration of Estates.

Collection of Taxes

The Tax Rate in force during 1931 was 6 mills—(six cents per hundred dollars) and is the same for 1932. The penalties for failure to pay the poor tax are as follows:

After August 1—1% of tax
After September 30—2% of tax
After October 31—3% of tax
After November 30—4% of tax
After December 31—50% of tax

An office for the purpose of collecting taxes is maintained at the Germantown Town Hall, Germantown Avenue and Haines Street.

We have been unable to investigate or audit any of the Tax Collector's records because they are in possession of the District Attorney's Office. At the first public hearing of your Committee on September 14, 1932 it was brought out that the Controller of the City of Philadelphia, while auditing the current Collectors' records, had discovered a shortage in his accounts of approximately $3,000.00. Later the shortage was reported variously as between this amount and $10,000.00. At the time this report is being written the records are still in possession of the District Attorney's Office and we are unable to determine the exact amount short.

During September of 1932, Public Accountants were engaged by the Managers to audit the accounts of Mr. Wm. H. Cameron, current Tax Collector, for the period from January 1, 1932 to September 14, 1932. We read the accountants' reports and are impressed with their description of the incompleteness of the Collector's records. They pointed out that none of the taxes collected in 1932 were credited in the Tax Duplicates and they also showed that the Collector's account was short to the extent of approximately $500.00 during the period they examined. The accountants explained that in order to determine the exact amount of shortage it would be necessary to communicate with each taxpayer whose account was shown as unpaid. We find that 15,000 bills, 15,000 envelopes and 15,000 self-addressed and stamped envelopes were recently ordered and we understand that at present the chief clerk is engaged in verifying the unpaid taxes. We are advised that while this work is progressing numerous additional shortages are being uncovered. It is impossible to learn the exact amount of the shortage until this work is completed and until the District Attorney's Office renders their report.

It is important to note that the expenses incident to the audit of the Collector's accounts have been considerable. As an illustration we find that the Public Accountants were paid $3600.00 for their portion of the work alone.

From the foregoing explanation it is evident that the records in the Collectors' Office were improper and their operations were not properly supervised. Steps should immediately be taken to change this condition so that there cannot be a reoccurrence of a similar situation.

The minutes disclose that Mr. Cameron, who is accused of having a shortage in his accounts, was bonded to the extent of $7500.00.

In view of the fact that we were unable to audit any of the Tax Collectors records or any of the cash accounts we assume no responsibility for the correctness of the same.

On Exhibit "B," Schedule No. 1, the total cost of tax collections for the year ended December 13, 1931, is shown as $20,135.63 and includes an overhead cost of $1,110.40 described on Exhibit "B," Schedule 2. The total taxes collected during the same period was $149,485.01 resulting in a net cost of more than 13 4-10%. This high percentage of cost is partially due to the fact that the delinquent collectors received 25% of their collections in 1931. This item alone accounted for $12,931.88 of the collection costs. It seems out of proportion to pay a commission of 5% for the collection of current taxes and a commission of 25% for delinquent taxes.

Granting of Outside Relief

Method:

Each Manager is assigned to one of the nine divisions that the Poor District is divided into. All applications for outside relief are made to the Manager in the district in which the needy family resides. Upon investigation if the Manager determines the applicant worthy, he issues an order on a merchant directing him to furnish the applicant with a specified amount of merchandise. At the end of each month the merchants submit their statements attached to the original relief orders and payment is issued in the regular course of business after approval by the committee of accounts.

In order to prepare a list of all the families that received relief during 1931 it was necessary for us to analyze all of the relief orders that were presented by the merchants. In this way, we compiled a schedule showing the names and address of each family and the amount of relief they received. Investigators employed by your committee used this schedule in preparing questionaire used in interviewing the needy families, who received the relief orders. At the date this report is being written the investigators had not yet completed their work and therefore the results of their investigation is not included herein.

We have scrutinized and compared a number of the relief orders and in our opinion the Managers are administering this function in a very lax manner. As an illustration of this, we submit a few examples of our findings:

1. A number of merchants did not detail on the relief orders a description of merchandise furnished. A few of the merchants who were negligent in this respect in February of 1931 were Francis P. Murphy, George Davidson, H. Porter, A. McCaughey, Eugene Palladio, Morrisons' Market, S. Richaman, Clement J. Clark, and Thomas Armstrong, etc. The same condition was prevalent in other months also.
2. Very few merchants mentioned the weight or kind of meat furnished.
3. Many grocers only showed the kind of foods supplied but failed to mention the quantities.
4. Mr. Williams of 59 East Church Lane, received business totalling $1,328.00 in 1931 and never mentioned either the quantity or the price of the food. He only listed the type of food and the total amount of the order.
5. Many of the relief orders are not dated.
6. Frequently the recipients of relief orders fail to sign the orders.
7. In a number of cases the signatures of the Managers are not authentic and it appears that someone else has been signing their names.
8. Orders in several instances were duplicated on the same day to the same families.
9. Little if any supervision is exercised over the selection and prices of foods purchased by the needy.
10. Sometimes orders drawn on one merchant are presented for payment by another.

We submit herewith a schedule showing the amount of business transacted with each merchant in connection with outside relief during the year ended December 31, 1931:

	Amount	Ratio

2 Merchants receiving less than $500.00 per annum	57.75	.57
Total	$10,097.10	100.00%

It will be observed that a total of $53,764.50 was sent for groceries. Twenty-two merchants received $50,386.00 and seventeen merchants received $3,378.50. The first six grocers shown on the list received $26,933.00, or approximately 50% of the total.

Reference is made to our report upon the Bristol Poor District, in which it is shown that two grocers, Joseph Cherry and George Cherry, were among the six grocers who received 50% of the business. It will be noted that these same grocers received the most business in the Germantown district.

We have made test comparisons of prices paid for a few commodities in February of 1931, and find a very wide variance among the different grocers. It is evident to us that the selection of grocers on whom relief orders are drawn is not dependent on their prices. An examination of the analysis shown below will illustrate this point. If the prices vary because of quality, it seems to us that the managers should specify the grade of foods that should be supplied. This would furnish them with a more certain basis for comparison.

Merchant	Pound of Butter	Dozen of Eggs	Pound of Coffee	Pound of Lard
E. Flower	$.42 to $.46	$.35 to $.40	$.25 to $.36	$.14 to $.18
Jos. Cherry	.35 to .40	.25 to .38	.25 to .35	.16 to .18
Geo. Cherry	.36 to .40	.30	.25 to .29	.16
Frank De Cenzo	.40 to .60	.35	.35	.18 to .20
B. Cohen	.39	.23	.29	.15
Robinson	.39 to .41	.32 to .39	.29 to .30	.17 to .18
A. McCaughey	.38	.29	.25	.15
Geo. Aspell	.44	.30	—	.12
Mrs. McAfee	.40	.30 to .36	.25 to .35	.10 to .14
Chain Stores	.31 to .35	.19 to .30	.22 to .33	—

It is needless to submit further comparisons as they show the same results for other commodities and during other periods.

You will note that some of the merchants maintain much lower prices than others, and either those whose prices are higher should be compelled to meet the prices of their competitors, or the business should be placed with those merchants whose prices are lower. To complete our comparison, we have shown above the prices advertised in the newspapers for the same period by some chain store organizations. This can be used as a further basis in gauging the propriety of the prices charged.

We are convinced that the managers have not compared prices because, as previously explained, a number of the merchants have not supplied sufficient information for that purpose. This is particularly true in those cases where the meats were not described and where no quantities nor prices were furnished.

If proper supervision would be exercised, more relief to the needy could be furnished for the same amount of money, or the same relief for less money.

Scope of Relief:

Our analysis of relief orders indicates that during the year ended December 31, 1931, 1358 families were furnished with groceries; 105 families with milk; 797 families with coal; 13 families with shoes; and 159 families with medicine.

Cost:

In practically every instance, the families who received groceries also received the milk, coal, shoes and medicine. We therefore estimate that approximately 1400 families received relief during the period. On Exhibit "B," Schedule No. 2 the Overhead applicable to this function is shown as $4,081.40, and produces a per capita cost of $2.91 for each family per year.

Maintenance of Inmates in Other Institutions

On Exhibit "A," Schedule No. 4, we have listed the institutions that have been paid for the maintenance of inmates from this Poor District. The total amount paid was $49,280.54 during the year ended December 31, 1931. In addition, there was disbursed $510.95 for Visits to the Institutions and $452.64 for Transportation of Patients and Poor. It will be noted that included in the item of Transportation of Patients and Poor was one disbursement of 104.00, representing the cost of a third class accommodation from New York to Naples in the name of Pizzi Dominico.

The Overhead applicable to this function of the Managers, as shown on Exhibit "B," Schedule No. 1, was $2,931.31, resulting in a total cost of $53,175.00. The average number of inmates in the various institutions was 264. This indicates that the overhead cost of maintaining each inmate was $11.10 per annum.

All payments to the Philadelphia Hospital since January 1, 1930, have been made for only one-half of the amount listed on the various invoices. The charge for maintaining a patient at this institution is $21.00 per week. This amount is in dispute, and until gnally settled, the Poor District is only paying 10.50 per week for each patient. We have requested Mr. Tyler to furnish us with the unpaid balances owing to the Philadelphia Hospital, but, at the date of this report, we have not as yet received this information.

Maintenance of Almshouse and Farm

Description:

The Almshouse is situated on five and one-third acres of land at the corner of Rittenhouse Street and Pulaski Avenue.

The original building was erected some time in the middle of the nineteenth century, but since then numerous additions have been made to the original building, and a new garage barn, laundry and boiler room were constructed.

The main building has three floors, and is very spacious. On the first floor we found the following rooms:

Large enclosed porch for use of staff and visitors
Main office
Managers' room

Chapel
Extra office and reception room
Doctor's office
Private dining room and for staff
Male inmates lounging room
Female inmates sitting room
Male inmates enclosed porch
Female inmates enclosed porch
Male inmates dining room
Female inmates dining room
Kitchen
Two bed rooms occupied by staff
Additional lounging room
Storeroom
Numerous closets
Several wash rooms
Five cell rooms

On the second and third floors, there are numerous bed rooms, bath rooms, closets, storage rooms and quarters for the staff. The hospital section of the inmates' quarters is separated from the other sections of the floors. Male and female inmates are kept apart. An elevator has been installed for the convenience of those who are unable to climb stairs. Spiral fire escapes have been attached to the outer walls of the building. We have counted approximately 100 beds for inmates in the various rooms previously described. There are from one to eight beds in a room. From our observation, we can estimate that about 175 inmates could be comfortably accommodated, as we find that a number of the bedrooms are vacant and additional beds could be placed in some of the rooms that are occupied.

A structure erected in 1928, housing the laundry and boiler room is adjacent to the main building. A new stable and garage, constructed in 1929, is also adjacent to the home.

The laundry and boiler room seems to be out of proportion to the size of the institution, and in our opinon, is suitable for a much larger home. We are informed that the laundry is only in use several days a week. Previous to the erection of this new building, the laundry and boiler room were located in the basement of the main building. The barn and garage, both from their interior and exterior appearance, seem to be suitable for a large private institution. The garage has space for four auotmobiles, and we find that the Poor District owns only two, one of which is in use by Mr. Tyler as investigator. We are informed that the other car was donated and is of very little value, and is not in use. In addition to this, Mr. Linck, the Superintendent, keeps his personal automobile in the same building.

One horse and two cows are kept in the barn, and there are about 75 chickens in the chicken house.

All of the new buildings that we described are constructed of the finest brown brick. We have learned that these same buildings were erected during the years 1927, 1928, 1929 and 1930.

An examination of the annual reports published by the Managers indicated the following capital expenditures and repairs:

1927	6,699.00
1928	31,620.93
1929	42,625.88
1930	11,972.84
1931	1,468.25
Total	$109,665.71

Of this amount we have been advised that the laundry, boiler room and equipment cost $35,088.79; the stable and garage $23,208.15; linoleum in main building $6,336.05; and the enclosed front porch $9,501.00, making a total of $74,133.99, leaving a balance of $35,531.72 for other capital expenditures.

The impression that we receive is that the Managers were quite extravagant in the outlay of such large sums of taxpayers funds for auxiliary buildings in an institution that has an average occupancy of only ninety inmates. There is no doubt that all the buildings and grounds are well kept and present a luxurious appearance for an institution of this character.

Occupancy

1. Staff: When we visited the institution in December, 1932 we learned that the Superintendent, Frank Linck, the Matron, his Wife, and their Grandson occupy a large apartment in the front part of the second floor, consisting of five very large rooms and several smaller rooms.

2. Employees: The following employees occupy separate rooms in the building:

Martha Maynard, Nurse
Mary Rice, Assistant Nurse
Harry Skewstead, General Assistant
John S. Miller, Cook
P. Harvey Fluck, Farmer
Lena Martin, Assistant Cook
Stella Hamilton, General Housework
Mary Bonner, Cleaner
Sue Boisbrun, Chambermaid and Waitress

We bring to your attention the fact that in addition to these nine employees the home furnishes living quarters to the Superintendent, Matron and their Grandson as described previously and also to a former employee who is unable to work but is not registered as an inmate.

Inmates: In December of 1932 there were 87 inmates in the home but during the year 1931, the number varied from 88 to 94 or an average of 90 for the year.

We previously stated that the institution could accommodate approximately 175 inmates. It must be remembered, however, that there are only about 100 beds available and in order to increase the occupancy it would be necessary to supply additional beds and lockers. We understand that there is no waiting list.

Method of Operation

Of the five and one-third acres owned by the Germantown Poor District, about three acres are under cultivation. The balance of the space is used for the buildings and lawns.

No record is kept of the crops planted, nor of the produce raised. It is therefore impossible to accurately determine if the land is cultivated at a profit or loss, and we are also unable to know the value of the produce used in the home in ascertaining the actual food cost for maintenance of inmates. On Exhibit "B," Schedule No. 1, the cose of the farm, including overhead and capital expenditures, for the year ended December 31, 1931, is shown as $1,831.36, and we are convinced that the value of the crops raised on such a small area could not be equivalent to this amount.

Some system should be employed immediately that would furnish the necessary information, so that the Managers could see at a glance the loss involved.

Consideration should also be given the fact that the barn was erected at a cost of $23,208.15.

On Exhibit "B," Schedule No. 1, the total cost, including overhead and capital expenditures, of maintaining the Almshouse is shown as $30,834.45. When combined with the cost of the farm referred to above, the total cost of maintaining an average of 90 inmates during the year ended December 31, 1931, amounted to $32,665.81, or an average of $362.95 for each inmate per year, or a per capita cost of $6.98 per week.

The Managers have valued their land, buildings and equipment for $280,557.75 at December 31, 1931. In arriving at the per capita cost of maintaining each inmate, some consideration should be given to the value of the capital invested, because we have not included any depreciation on the buildings and equipment, nor have we included in the cost the value of the produce raised on the farm. If $280,557.75 were invested to yield 4 per cent, an income of $11,222.31 would be earned each year. The addition of this amount to the total cost maintained above would increase the per capita cost of maintaining each inmate to $9.38 per week.

Purchase and Receiving of Supplies

1. Methods: Our chief criticism is the fact that no record is kept of the details showing the quantities and weights of foods received. The superintendent informed us that, after satisfying himself that the invoices were correct, he destroyed them immediately. We were therefore unable to make any comparison as to the propriety of the prices paid for groceries, meats, fish, milk, cream, butter and eggs. The cost of these provisions, as shown on Exhibit "A," Schedule No. 2, amounted to $8,251.10 for the period under review, and in our opinion, sufficient quantities are purchased to enable competitive bids. We can find no evidence of competitive bidding for any food supplies.

The management should be commended for their thoughtfulness in purchasing shoes and bed linens from the Department of Welfare, Prison Division.

The Superintendent maintains a Petty Cash Fund and is reimbursed each month by a check drawn to his order in the amount of $75.00. The balance on hand at January 1, 1931 was $26.18. Reimbursements during the year aggregated $900.00, making a total of $926.18. Disbursements, supported only by Mr. Linck's signature, amounted to $836.54, leaving a balance on hand at December 31, 1931 of $89.64. In our opinion, this Petty Cash Fund should not exist and all payments should be made in the usual way. Analysis of these disbursements follow:

Farm Supplies	$ 40.70
Provisions	305.63
Office Supplies	103.54
Miscellaneous Expenses	386.67
Total	$ 836.54

We note that some repair work was performed by Wm. H. Cumberland, a carpenter and builder. His invoices total $393.32 during 1931, and specify only "Time and Material." There is no contract in the files for this work, and it is suggested that in the future no contracts be given without specifications.

During the year, a new boiler and two feeders were installed by Howard Smith for $1,290.00, although another bid was made for the same installation by Lawrence C. Jost for $1,276.00 The bid from Lawrence C. Jost was received on November 7, 1931, stating that the cost of the boiler would be $1,150.00 and the cost of the two feeders $63.00 each, making a total of $1,276.00. Mr. Smith was apparently given an opportunity of bidding after Mr. Jost's bid had been received. On November 10, 1931, Mr. Smith submitted a bid only for the boiler at a cost of $1,140.00, or $10.00 cheaper than Mr. Jost. No mention was made of the feeders, which were later billed by Mr. Smith at $150.00, or $24.00 more than the price quoted by Mr. Jost.

2. Tobacco and Cigars: Tobacco for inmates was purchased from C. J. Krull, totaling $243.60. In addition to this, 5,800 cigars were purchased from Otto Eisenlohr and Bros. and Mazer-Cressman Company at a total cost of $635.51, or approximately 11 cents each. We were informed by the Superintendent that the cigars are not given to the inmates, but are consumed by the Managers.

3. Whiskey: The records indicate that 20 cases of Mount Vernon Rye Whiskey, at a total cost of $1,000.00, was purchased during the year. We find that the Superintendent has kept an accurate record of the prescriptions drawn on his supply by the House Physician. We have also examined the Doctor's records, and note that he has accounted for each ounce prescribed, showing the name of the patient and his physical ailment. It seems extravagant to use such a large quantity of whiskey, and probably some substitute could be recommended at a much smaller cost. It must be remembered that the patients are inmates of an almshouse and are not paying patients in a hospital.

4. Convention: During the period under review, the cost of sending delegates to the annual convention at Altoona, Pa. was $950.00. In the annual report prepared by the Board of Auditors, this expenditure was included in a classification, "Convention expenses and transportation, $1,802.51." An analysis of this account disclosed that it consisted of the following:

Automobile Expenses	$ 275.64
Transportation of Patients and Poor	160.72
Visits to Institutions	416.15
Convention Expenses	950.00
Total	$ 1,802.51

In preparing our report of expenditures, we have charged the above items to the proper classifications.

An examination of their previous annual reports shows that the following sums were expended for Convention Expenses and Transportation:

1928	$ 895.25
1929	2,612.91
1930	2,563.24

5. Landscaping: On Exhibit "A," Schedule No. 2, we show the cost of landscaping and trimming hedges for the year 1931 as $533.60. An examination of the invoices and vouchers show that the sum of $451.60 was paid to J. Franklin Meehan & Sons for landscape work, supplying and planting trees; and $32.00 was paid to W. B. Barrows for trimming hedges. It appears that Mr. Barrow charged at the rate of $7.00 a day in April and 6.67 per day in July for his services.

In view of the fact that a farmer is employed and one of the inmates acts as a gardner, it is difficult to see why it was necessary to secure outside labor for this purpose and at these prices.

Although the grounds surrounding the Almshouse present a magnificent appearance, it might be suggested that such funds be more appropriately applied to the relief of the needy.

Administration of Estates

Our examination of the annual reports indicate that the Managers are administering two estates: The Ellen Kinnier Fund and the Estate of Philip R. Freas, Deceased. We have examined the bank statements relative to the Income Accounts for these estates on your annual report. No cancelled checks nor vouchers were presented for our examination. We requested bank statements to verify the balances in the Principal accounts. Mr. Tyler informed us that he had no knowledge of any other bank accounts, and was under the impression that both the Principal and Income Accounts were combined in the same bank account. Mr. Rowland called the depositories and found that the Principal accounts were held in a Savings Fund, but at the date of this report, no statements have been presented for our scrutiny. None of the mortgage papers were on hand for our examination. It was noted, however, that interest was received regularly on the mortgage investments. Expenditures were made from the two Income funds as follows:

Freas Estate—Coal	$ 1,048.85
Kinnier Estate—Groceries	506.00

These disbursements were not included in the total of Outside Relief that is shown on Exhibit "A."

General

Expenses: The total cash disbursements for the year ended December 31, 1931 are shown on Exhibit "A" as $180,178.69, and in order to show the ratio that each item bears to the total, the following summary is submitted:

Outside Relief	$ 69.970.29	38.83%
Home and Farm	30.865.74	17.13
Maintenance of Inmates in Other Instututions	50,244.13	27.89
Collectors' Commissions and Expenses of Tax Collection	19,025.23	10.56
Overhead Expenses	9.923.18	5.51
Refunds	150.12	.08
Total	$180,178.69	100.00%

From the above, you will note that Collector's Commissions and Expenses of Tax Collections was 10.56%, and overhead expenses 5.51%, or a total of 17.07% of total disbursements during the year ended December 31, 1931.

Your attention, however, is directed to the fact that during this year, expenditures exceeded tax collections by the sum of $30,693.08. If we would confine our ratio of expenses to tax collections, a different result would be obtained. The total receipts from taxes, interest and penalties were $149,485.01, and the total expenses, including Collectors' Commissions, were $28,948.41, resulting in a ratio of 19.3%.

Miscellaneous: We note that the Germantown Poor District owns a lot at Queen Lane and Pulaski Avenue, that was appraised in 1928 for approximately $26,650.00. During the year 1930, income from rental was shown on their annual report as $311.01. We have not made any inquiry regarding the present status of this land, but find no record of any further rentals received.

Receipts for board of inmates in the home and in other institutions aggregated $8,532.24 during 1931, and, in our opinion, the records for this function are inadequate. As the money is received, an entry is made in a day book, and later posted to the individual account of the inmate. Printed invoice books should be obtained so that when a bill is sent, a duplicate would remain as a permanent record. These invoices should be consecutively numbered and all accounted for.

We wish to bring to your attention the item of $12,500.00 "set aside for approved debts" in the printed annual report of the Board of Auditors for the year ended December 31, 1931. Evidently, this was an error, in view of the fact that their cash balance at that time was only $7,510.29. This provision was made as a result of a resolution passed by the Managers in December of 1931, as recorded in the minute book. This mistake in the auditors' report caused the total disbursements to exceed the total receipts by $12,500.00.

With the exceptions of the criticisms mentioned in our comments, we find the records of the institution are kept in comparatively good order.

We were unable to verify the correctness of the balance in the National Bank of Germantown and Trust Company on December 31, 1931, due to the fact that the bank statement covering transactions during December was not presented to us at the date of this report.

Exhibit "C" has been made a part of this report so that you may see at a glance a comparison in summary form of the transactions of the Poor District from the year 1928 to 1931, inclusive. You will observe that whereas Outside Relief totaled only $15,735.43 in 1928, it increased to $19,997.50 in 1929; to $30,058.30 in 1930 and $69,970.29 in 1931. On the other hand, you will note that capital expenditures for improvements and repairs were $31,620.93 in 1928, $42,625.88 in 1929, $11,972.84 in 1930 and only $1,468.25 in 1931. The conclusion that you may draw is that when the demands for relief were not high, the excess funds were used for the improvement of the institution rather than for making provision for greater demands for relief in more unfortunate years. We have learned that at present, there is no waiting list for the admission of inmates to the home but the demands for outside relief are greater than the funds available and therefore, the money spent for the improvement of the institution in such large sums might be construed as having been inadvisable.

Respectfully submitted.

Committee to Make Investigation of the Poor Districts of Philadelphia:

Gentlemen:

Pursuant to your instructions, we have examined the books of account and records of the directors of the poor and of the house of employment for the Townships of Oxford and Lower Dublin of Philadelphia County for the year ended December 31, 1931.

Location

The boundary lines of this poor district, as described in the Consolidation Act of 1854, follow:

Oxford

"Beginning at a point on the Delaware River and the center line of Township Line road, now Cottman street, thence northwestwardly along the center line of Township Line road by its several courses thereof to the Philadelphia and Montgomery County line, thence southwestwardly along the said county line to the center of Cheltenham avenue, thence northwestwardly along the center of Cheltenham avenue (being also a continuation of the Philadelphia and Montgomery County line) to the center of the Tacony Creek, thence along the center of Tacony and Frankford Creeks southwestward to a point about 350 feet of Castor road, thence northeastwardly about 470 feet to a point, thence northwardly about 880 feet to a point of intersection of the northeast side of Adams road and the south side of Orthodox street, thence eastwardly about 1,050 feet to a point in the bed of Horrocks street, said point being about 335 feet north of Orthodox Street, thence northeastwardly along a line in the bed of Horrocks street to a point in the bed of Harrison street, thence southeastwardly along a line in the bed of Harrison street to a point in the bed of Leiper street, thence northeastwardly along a line in the bed of Leiper street to the center line of Little Tacony Creek, thence southeastwardly along the center line of Little Tacony Creek to a point in the bed of Fillmore street, thence in a northeastwardly direction following the north line of the property of now or late of James D. Baker's land to land now or late of John Deal, thence southwardly by the easterly line of John Deal's and A. Cummings' land (being the northern property line of the United States Arsenal in Frankford) to the River Delaware, and thence northeastwardly along the Delaware River to the place of beginning."

Lower Dublin

"Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Cottman street, or Township Line road and the Montgomery County line, thence extending eastward along the center of Cottman street to a point 74 6-10 perches southeast of the Bustleton and Somerton turnpike, a corner of land of Jacob Baker and William B. We have tried to trace the boundary lines shown by the Consolidation Act and find that they do not coincide with the Ward lines, and suggest that the committee look into this subject in more detail.

We are informed that this poor district is located in the Twenty-third Ward, Forty-first Ward, and that portion of the Thirty-fifth Ward which is not located in the districts of Moreland and Byberry

For purposes of distributing relief, the poor district has been divided into the following divisions:

1. Lower Dublin
2. Delaware
3. Oxford
4. Frankford

Tax collectors are obliged to furnishtheir own office locations and they receive as compensation 6% of current and delinquent taxes collected, exclusive of interest and penalties. In connection with commissions paid to collectors, it was noted that $1,592.98 of the commissions paid during 1931 represented payments on December, 1930 collections. Similarly, no payments were made on December, 1931 collections, the commissions on which amounted to $1,757.09.

A total of $1,665.00 was paid to inmates for services rendered during 1931. Checks for these payments are drawn to the order of the steward, and he claims that no receipts were obtained when he made cash payments to the inmate employees. This same criticism is also applicable to payments made to the cook in the sum of $1,325.00.

Laws

We have been informed by the solicitor of this poor district that the Acts of Assembly dated April 11, 1807, April 1, 1859 and January 11, 1867 embody the laws governing the district. We have not read these laws, nor have we been furnished with a digest of same, but suggest that your committee compare the transactions that are described in this report with the laws in order to see whether or not the directors have conducted their affairs properly.

Functions of the Directors

The Directors of the Poor have the following duties to perform:

1. Collection of taxes.
2. Granting of outside relief.
3. Maintenance of inmates in other institutions.
4. Maintenance of Almshouse and Farm located on Cottman Street near Frankford Avenue.

Collection of Taxes

Due to the large areas covered by the Poor District, it has been divided into three sections, with a collector appointed for each one, in order to facilitate the collection of both current and delinquent taxes. The tax rate in effect during 1931 was 6 mills. The divisions of the Poor District and the collectors are listed below:

Division	Collector
1. 23rd Ward	Thos. W. Shumacher, 4411 Frankford Avenue.
2. 41st Ward and 35th Ward, East of Roosevelt Blvd.	Fred P. Long, 8046 Frankford Ave.
3. 35th Ward ,west of the Roosevelt Blvd.	Louis Schuehler, 7104 Rising Sun Avenue.

In the course of our examination, we have totaled the 1931 tax duplicates and have compared them with the statement issued by the Board of Revision of Taxes on February 11, 1931 relative to the assessments on Real Property in the Poor District, with the following results:

	Tax Duplicate	Assessments Board of Revision of Taxes	Difference
23rd Ward	$ 57,902,320.00	$ 57,908,225.00	$ 5,905.00
41st Ward	50,966,875.00	50,964,475.00	2,400.00
35th Ward, including Moreland and Byberry	122,141,755.00	121,707,725.00	434,030.00

It will be noted that the totals of the tax duplicates for the 23rd Ward and the 41st Ward are almost equal to the totals listed by the Board of Revision of Taxes, but that a large difference occurs in the 35th Ward. It was necessary to combine the assessments in Moreland and Byberry with the section of the 35th Ward in the poor district now under review in order to arrive at the total assessment of the entire 35th Ward, so as to compare it with the total shown by the Board of Revision of Taxes. We have observed that there are duplications of assessments in the different poor boards which comprise the 35th Ward amounting to $649,700.00, as may be noted in the following analysis:

35th Ward	Assessments Per Tax Duplicates
Oxford and Lower Dublin	$ 116,499,830.00
Moreland	2,195,250.00
Byberry—1st District	2,375,625.00
Byberry—2nd District	1,720,750.00
	$ 122,791,455.00
Less: Assessment in Oxford and Lower Dublin duplicated in the following:
Moreland	$ 573,200.00
Byberry—2nd District	76,500.00
	649,700.00
Total Listed Above	$122,141,755.00

The duplication of assessments indicates the lack of definite dividing lines among the poor directors concerned. This lack of coordination produces an injustice, in view of the variation in tax rates in the poor districts referred to.

Each tax collector receives, in addition to a current tax duplicate, a delinquent tax book showing the unpaid taxes for the preceding year. All assessments, delinquent two or more years previous to the current taxable year, must be filled in by the collector himself. Each collector employs a different system in recording these previous years' delinquent assessments, and these systems will be discussed in more detail later in this report.

Current Taxes

We have totaled the amount of 1931 assessments delinquent at December 31, 1931, in order to compare the actual collections of current taxes as shown in the cash receipts book with the amount shown in the tax duplicate. Our findings are shown as follows:

	T. W. Schumacher	F. P. Long	L. Schuehler
Total Assessments Collectible Per Tax Duplicate, 1931	$ 57,902,320.00	$ 85,107,970.00	$ 82,358,735.00
1931 Assessments Delinquent Dec. 31, 1931	16,859,125.00	28,460,550.00	27,524,950.00
1931 Assessments Collected, Per Tax Duplicate	$ 41,043,195.00	$ 56,647,420.00	$ 54,833,785.00
Tax @ 6 Mills, Per Tax Duplicate	$ 24,625.92	$ 33,988.45	$ 32,900.27
1931 Tax Collected, Per Cash Receipts Book	24,838.55	33,275.32	33,141.72
Difference Over or Short	$ 212.63	$ 713.13	$ 241.45
Capitalized at 6 Mills Equals Assessment of	$ 354,383.00	$ 1,188,550.00	$ 402,416.00

The differences in tax collections shown above indicate that two collectors received more cash and one collector received less cash on current taxes than their tax duplicates charge them with. These differences might be due to inaccuracies in recording payments in the tax duplicates, or to errors in preparing the delinquent tax book at the end of the year. We did not make a detailed audit of these differences in view of the limited scope of our engagement.

Delinquent Taxes

It was necessary for us to total the delinquent tax records kept by the tax collectors both at January 1, 1931, and December 31, 1931, in order to prepare a comparison of delinquent taxes collected as shown in the cash receipts book with collections as shown in the delinquent tax records. The various methods employed by each collector in recording delinquent tax information are herewith explained in detail:

1. T. W. Schumacher:

In order to complete his delinquent tax book, which shows only delinquent taxes for one preceding year, it was necessary for Mr. Schumacher to refer to a card index maintained by him and mark each property delinquent before 1930 with a red (X). At the same time, Mr. Schumacher turns to his 1931 tax duplicate and makes a similar marking there. In addition to the red (X) noted above, a red (1) is marked in the 1931 tax duplicate if the tax is delinquent for 1930. In reference to the card index, unpaid cards are kept by a street index, while paid cards are kept by date paid. When a delinquent tax is paid, the date of payment is written into the delinquent tax book, and also entered on the card representing the property.

In preparing our totals of delinquent taxes, we noted that all cards for properties, whose delinquent taxes were paid during November, 1931, were missing, and also that seventy-four cards were missing on properties which were marked as being delinquent for 1930 and prior years in the 1931 tax duplicate. At the same time, we also found a number of cards in the index, the assessments on which were not marked as being delinquent in the 1931 tax duplicate. The looseness of this system is evident for two reasons:

1. Loss and misplacement of cards.
2. Failure to mark delinquents in tax duplicates.

2. Fred P. Long:

Mr. Long was given a delinquent tax book for his district similar to Mr. Schumacher's. Delinquencies of years previous to 1930 were noted in red crayon as follows:

1—Represents taxes delinquent for one year before 1930.
11—Represents taxes delinquent for two years before 1930.
111—Represents taxes delinquent for three years before 1930.
4—Represents taxes delinquent for four years before 1930.
5—Represents taxes delinquent for five years before 1930.
x—Represents taxes delinquent for indefinite period before 1930.

As there is no indication of any change in assessments for previous years, it was assumed, for our purposes, that the assessments were the same for all years. There probably were some changes in assessed valuations in the different years, but in view of the fact that this information was not available, we used the assessment figure shown in the delinquent tax book.

Markings similar to the above are made in the 1931 tax duplicate, except that (1) represents delinquency in 1930.

If the delinquent tax was paid, the date of payment was stamped in the delinquent tax book and the amount paid, including interest and penalties, was also inserted. The delinquent tax records were not added by the collector.

The inaccuracies of this system will be clearly illustrated in a later part of this report, when we compare the actual collections with the delinquent tax records of the three tax collectors.

In connection with the audit of Mr. Long's records, we wish to point out that his collections are deposited very irregularly. Deposits very rarely coincide with the cash sheet showing daily collections. Mr. Long's regular policy in this matter is as follows: At the end of a balancing period, he will total the cash receipts record and deduct from this amount the deposits to that point. A deposit is then made to cover any difference. It is self-evident that this practice is improper.

3. Louis Schuehler:

Mr. Schuehler was also furnished with a delinquent tax book similar to those given to the other two collectors. Delinquencies of prior years are inserted in pencil by Mr. Schuehler in any available space near the 1930 assessment, showing the year and the amount assessed. In a number of cases, the tax, interest and penalty has been computed and the total inserted in pencil. If the delinquencies are paid, the date of payment is stamped in the delinquent tax book. In a large percentage of cases, a delinquent tax bill is mailed to the owner of the property, and then a large black crayon check mark is made opposite the assessment. In several instances, this mark has covered figures relative to assessments delinquent in prior years. The delinquent tax book is not added by the collector.

In order to compare the amounts reported as collected on delinquent taxes with the amounts shown as collected in the delinquent books, we have prepared the following analysis:

	T. W. Schumacher	Fred P. Long	L. Schuehler	Total
Delinquent taxes—Jan. 1, 1931	$ 13,710.78	$ 23,326.12	$ 29,364.16	$ 66,401.06
Delinquent taxes collected per cash receipts book—1931	7,024.98	10,487.72	10,499.34	28,012.04
Delinquent taxes—1930 and prior at December 31, 1931	$ 6,685.80	$ 12,838.40	$ 18,864.82	$ 38,389.02
Delinquent taxes per collectors' records at December 31, 1931	6,655.29	14,705.71	18,194.91	39,555.91
Difference over or short*	$ *30.51	$ 1,867.31	$ *669.91	$ 1,166.89

The differences noted above indicate the inaccuracies of the systems used by the tax collectors. In the case of Mr. Schumacher and Mr. Scheuhler, the delinquent taxes collectible at December 31, 1931 from their records are less than those indicated to be collectible after deducting the cash received during the year from their opening balances. This may be due to loss or misplacement of cards in Mr. Schumacher's case, or to failure to transcribe delinquencies to the new delinquent tax book by Mr. Schuehler. Mr. Long's records, on the other hand, show just the opposite condition. This may be due to failure to record payments in the delinquent tax book during the year; failure to mark the taxes as being delinquent at the beginning of the year, while doing so in the new delinquent tax book; or to changes in assessment affecting all the years listed. To illustrate this point, it was noted that delinquent assessments for the year 1923 and for "X" number of years at January 1, 1931 totaled $42,375.00 and $228,550.00, respectively; at December 31, 1931, the assessments for these two periods were $53,400.00 and $249,475.00, respectively. These later figures were used in our computations at the beginning and end of the year.

It may be noted at this point that no penalties and interest due or paid were considered in the above analysis.

In auditing the tax records of these three collectors for the year 1931, we were immediately impressed by the fact that none of the delinquent tax duplicates were added showing amount collectible from this source as of January 1, 1931. In fact, the only information in the delinquent books turned over to each of the collectors as of January 1, 1931 were lists of 1930 taxes delinquent as at that date. The fact that the collectors were permitted and obliged to make their own record of taxes delinquent for years prior to 1930 shows that there is absolutely no control of delinquent taxes collectible. If the collector should fail for any reason to record these prior year delinquencies, it would never be known except possibly by accident.

In checking the current tax duplicates for the year 1931, we found that each book had been added, showing total current taxes collectible for that year. After establishing the total taxes collectible for the year 1931, the proper procedure would have been to deduct the 1931 collections in arriving at the amount of 1931 taxes delinquent as of December 31, 1931. All open items should then have been totaled in order to prove out with the control figure as established above. There is no indication in the 1931 books that this procedure has been followed and, in fact, in checking the current tax duplicate on the above basis, we found numerous small differences which did create a variance as compared with the control figures, and is proof that this work was not done by the collectors or auditors.

For your information, we submit the following summary showing the incompleteness of the collectors' records:

	Per Collectors' Records	Per Secretary's Report	Per Our Computation
Denlinquent Taxes, Jan. 1, 1931			$ 66,401.06
1931 Taxes Collectible	$ 135,053.84		135,221.42
Total Taxes Collectible during 1931			$ 201,622.48
Total Current and Delinquent Taxes Collected during 1931, per Cash Book Exhibit "A".	119,267.63		119,267.63
Total Taxes Delinquent as of December 31, 1931		$ 86,264.47	$ 82,354.85

Of the amount of $82,354.85, shown by us to be delinquent as of December 31, 1931, $43,706.78 represents 1931 taxes unpaid and $38,389.02 represents unpaid taxes for 1930 and prior years. No consideration is given to interest and penalties in the above figures.

Granting of Outside Relief

Method :

Each director is assigned to a particular territory and each application for relief in that territory is referred to him. During 1931, four investigators were employed at a total cost to the poor district of $4,900.00. At the option of the director, an investigator may be assigned to investigate an application. The report is prepared in duplicate, one copy being filed with the Secretary and the other copy being retained in his own files. We found, however, only a small number of these reports in the files, and they were kept in a very haphazard fashion.

When the Director approves an application, he draws an order in duplicate directing the merchant he selects to furnish the applicant for relief with supplies in the amount shown on the order. The original copy of the order is given to the needy person, and the copy is sent to the Secretary for his files. The Director retains for his record a stub showing the same information.

Each month the various merchants present their invoices, supported by the original relief order, and payment is then issued. The Secretary did not compare his copy with the original order to see if any amounts were raised, nor did he compare signatures of the recipients in any way in order to see if the proper person received the foodstuffs. No account was kept showing how much each person received during the year, and the Secretary advises us that he does not compare the prices paid with current market quotations. In fact, we believe that payment is made without employing any systematic method that would be expected to be found in use in connection with this function of the directors.

It has been brought out at a public hearing, held in September, 1932, that all records for previous periods concerning relief orders were destroyed by Mr. Mitchell early in 1932 in order to make more space available in his office. This has made it difficult for us to compile a list showing the names and addresses of those receiving relief and the amounts they received.

We were able, however, to obtain some of the names and addresses of the needy, and all of the amounts from the invoices on file. Numerous demands were made upon the directors for the full detailed information, and finally we received the directors' personal records showing this information for 1931, with the exception of Lewis F. Castor, who gave us only a list of names and addresses of those who received relief in 1932 from Talbot Funds. Although we encountered considerable difficulty and consumed unnecessary time, we were able to compile a suitable list of most of those who received aid during 1931, for use by the investigators your committee employed. These investigators were delayed and much time was wasted because of the incompleteness of the records. At the time this report is being written, the investigators had not yet reported the results of their findings after visiting the various homes.

It is difficult to understand why the records were destroyed, because in a later part of this report we will explain that there are a number of rooms used for storage purposes. The Secretary could have easily used an empty room on the top floor for storing old records. We believe that the directors are subject to criticism for this action, and should be instructed to preserve all records for a period of at least seven years.

We also noticed that a number of small mathematical errors were made in amounts paid to merchants.

Scope of Relief

On Exhibit "A," Schedule No. 1, we analyzed expenditures for outside relief, and show the total to be $88,970.65 for the year ended December 31, 1931. In addition to this analysis, we submit a list showing the amounts purchased from the various merchants.

We attempted to compare the prices paid to merchants for various foodstuffs with current market prices, but found that hardly any invoices showing detailed information were available. This indicates that either these detailed invoices were destroyed, or the merchants were not obliged to describe the merchandise that was delivered to the recipients of relief orders.

If the former is true it might be inferred that at the time the relief orders were destroyed, the secretary carefully removed from the files all invoices showing this information; and if the latter is true, it is conclusive proof that the Directors never knew what type of foods were purchased and were unable to compare prices. It is certainly indicative of loose management, and the Directors should be ordered to install a proper system controlling Outside Relief. The total money spent in 1931, exclusive of loans repaid, was $168,754.49, and of this amount $88,970.65 was applied to Outside Relief. In view of the proportionately large amount spent for this purpose, it is evident that extreme negligence can be charged to the Directors.

Cost:

From the figures that we compiled, we estimate that 1,479 families received orders for coal; 228 families orders for shoes and clothing; 66 families order for medicine and medical services; 59 families orders for milk; and 1,952 families orders for groceries. On Exhibit "B," Schedule No. 2, the overhead expenses applicable to Outside Relief are shown as $12,908.08. Because of the incompleteness of the records, it is difficult to calculate accurately how many families obtained relief, because practically all of those who received coal, shoes, clothing, medicine and milk orders, also received grocery orders. We, therefore, estimate that approximately a total of 2,000 families obtained Outside Relief orders during the year ended December 31, 1931, at a total overhead cost of $12,908.08, or an average of $6.45 for each family per annum.

Maintenance of Inmates in Other Institutions

The total amount expended for this type of relief for the year ended December 31, 1931, was $26,017.86, as detailed below:

Institution	No. of Inmates	Weekly Rate	Amount Paid
Norristown State Hospital	131	$ 3.00	$ 18,660.31

On Exhibit "B," Schedule No. 2, you will note that the overhead cost of administering this form of relief totaled $3,775.36 for the year ended December 31, 1931. This is a per capita cost of $16.63 per year for each of the 227 inmates confined in the various institutions.

Maintenance of Almshouse and Farm

Description

This poor district owns approximately 115 acres of land located in the vicinity of Cottman Street near Frankford Avenue. The home situated on this plot is a three-story brown-stone structure which was erected in 1868. The building has been modernized to a certain extent, having composition floors throughout. We noted that the interior of the building is very uneconomically laid out.

The building is utilized as follows:

Basement: Lounging room for male inmates
Sitting room for female inmates
Kitchen for all inmates
Dining rooms for male inmates
Dining room for female inmates
Dispensary and storage rooms

*It is to be noted that the last payment made to the Philadelphia General Hospital was in April, 1931, at which time there were 68 inmates confined in that institution. No payment has been made to Byberry since May, 1931, at which time the inmates there totaled 10. Inmates have been maintained in each of these institutions continuously from the above mentioned dates to the present time, but the bills for the board of these inmates, covering this period, have not been paid. The Secretary advises us that the total unpaid bills from Philadelphia General, as of December 9, 1932, amounted to $34,284.58, and on the same date, the unpaid bills from Byberry amounted to $2,377.68. The Directors feel that inasmuch as the city levies a tax of seven cents for health purposes, it is responsible for hospital cases and should not look to the poor districts for payment. In fact, there seems to be a question as to whether the municipality should refund to the poor districts and payments made for prior years.

In connection with payments made to State institutions, we find that the State assumes one-half of the actual cost of $6.00 per week per inmate, and in addition, credits the poor district with one-half of any amounts collected for their board.

3rd Floor: 4 very large rooms, 3 of which are used as storerooms, one being furnished, but not occupied.

The laundry is housed in a separate building adjoining the home. In addition to this, there are two barns, one of which is used for storage of crops and farm machinery. The other barn is used for the livestock and storage of hay and grain. At the present time, the livestock consists of 3 horses and 3 cows. There are 200 to 300 chickens in a chicken house near the barn. Another large two-story building is used as a garage and tool room. The steward explained that one of the rooms in this building was originally used as sleeping quarters for tramps. Among a number of minor buildings, we noted a large wagon shed.

Occupancy

At the time of our inspection in December, 1932, we found 98 beds available for inmates. Ninety-three of these beds were occupied by inmates, and one by the cook, leaving 3 beds vacant. During the year ended December 31, 1931, we found that the number of inmates in the home varied from 74 to 83, and taking a monthly average, we find that the occupancy was 78 for the period.

It is to be noted that the Steward, Matron, Assistant Matron and farmer occupy, on the first floor, a large dining room, kitchen and living room; on the second floor, 3 large bedrooms, a living room and a den.

As previously noted, the third floor has 4 large rooms, three of which are used as storage rooms, and the other is furnished as a bedroom, although not used.

Method of Operation

We are advised that of the 115 acres owned by this poor district, only 20 acres are under cultivation. Farm produce used in the home, according to records furnished by the Steward, amounted to $1,154.50. In addition to this, the Secretary reported sales of farm produce totaling $183.92.

On Exhibit "B," Schedule #2, the total cost of maintaining the farm, including overhead, is shown as $3,354.26. The income from the farm is shown above as $2,043.42, and therefore, it is noted that the poor district has suffered a loss of $1,310.84 for the year ended December 31, 1931, without making a charge for depreciation on buildings and equipment and interest on Capital invested in land.

No proper record is kept of the crops planted, and the yield obtained therefrom. It is also observed that no adequate records are in use that would show the disposition of the products. It is evident that the farm is losing money, and it might be advisable to immediately abandon the tilling of the soil, or make some change in operation that will create a profit instead of a loss. It will be impossible, however, to properly control this matter until proper records are installed. We again bring to your attention the fact that the poor district owns 115 acres, but only cultivates 20 acres. Consideration should be given to the advisability of putting more land into cultivation. The officials of the institution claim that from their experience, it is still more unprofitable to plant more of the acreage. At any rate, the present loss should not be permitted to continue.

On Exhibit "B," Schedule #1, the total cost, including overhead, for the maintenance of the Almshouse and Farm is shown as $26,418.44 for the year ended December 31, 1931. This does not include the value of produce raised on the farm which was consumed in the home. Although no adequate record is kept of this produce, we are advised that it amounted to $1,854.50 for the period under review. This makes a total cost of maintaining the home and farm of $28,272.94. The average number of inmates in the home during 1931 was 78, and therefore the per capita cost of supporting each inmate was $362.47 per annum of $6.97 per week.

In these figures, we have not charged the institution with depreciation on buildings and equipment, nor with interest on the value of land. The assessed value of the land and buildings is shown on the City Assessors' records as $575,000.00. At the rate of 4% this sum, if invested, would yield $23,000.00 per year. If this amount were charged to the cost of maintaining the farm and home for the year 1931, the per capita cost would be increased $294.88 per annum for each inmate, or $5.67 per week. The total per capita cost would then be $657.35 per annum, or $12.64 per week.

1. Competitive Bidding:

Our attention has been directed to a provision in the law that the purchase of supplies or any contracts let in excess of $500.00 must be advertised so that there may be competitive bidding.

We requested the Secretary, Mr. Mitchell, to furnish us with his bid file for 1931, and find competitive bids only for coal purchased that year,and only one bid for meats from O. S. Buckius. We were informed that competitive bids were obtained for meats, bread and the writing of tax books, but were unable to find them in the files.

Our attention was directed to the various invoices for printing supplies, and we find what, in our opinion, constituted two cases of evasion of the requirements concerning competitive bidding. On February 17, 1931, N. Edwin Lindell billed the poor district as follows:

79,500 tax bills @ $5.52	$ 440.00
35,000 delinquent tax bills @ $6.00	210.00
Total	$ 650.00

We cannot see why bids were not requested in this instance. In order to test these prices, we requested a reputable printer to advise what he would charge for the same job, and were informed that he would undertake the contract for $510.00.

Samuel H. Little sent invoices to the poor district for 1,500 order books, containing 50 original and 50 duplicate relief orders, as follows:

April 10, 1931—500 order books @ $.60	$ 300.00
May 18, 1931—500 orders books @ $.60	300.00
June 15, 1931—500 order books @ $.60	300.00
Total	$ 900.00

It appears from the above information that the order was probably placed for 1,500 order books at one time, and delivery made over a period of three months. This might be construed as an attempt to evade the law regarding competitive bidding.

We also obtained an estimate from a reputable printer for printing and binding the same order books, and learned that he would do the job for $600.00.

2. Prices:

We were not able to spend sufficient time to analyze all invoices for purchases made during the year 1931, but we are convinced that the prices paid were excessive in many instances. We have selected a few invoices to illustrate our point.

During the period from March 13 to May 20, inclusive, Willard N. Ewald, who, we are informed, is the son of Director of the Poor William G. Ewald, charged the Oxford and Lower Dublin poor district for painting as follows:

310 hours labor @ $1.25 per hr.	$ 387.50
Material	78.57
Total	$ 466.07

We find no contract in the files for this work, and not knowing the details of what it covered, are in no position to state whether or not the charge was excessive.

In the period from January 1 to February 13, 1931, supplies totaling $255.00 were purchased from Pollacks, 4360 Frankford Avenue; included in these purchases are several items as follows:

5 1-3 doz. unbleached pillow cases @ $6.00 doz...	$ 32.00
5 1-12 doz. unbleached sheets @ $17.50 doz.....	94.25

We have had occasion to examine prices charged to the Germantown poor district by the Department of Welfare—Prison Labor Division, for similar merchandise and find that bleached sheets cost then $11.00 per dozen, and bleached pillow cases were charged to them, at that time, at $3.30 per dozen. If you will compare these prices with those charged by Pollacks, you will agree with us that the Oxford and Lower Dublin poor district has paid an excess of $2.70 per dozen for pillow cases, and $6.40 per dozen for sheets. In addition to this, the quality of the merchandise purchased by the Oxford and Lower Dublin poor district is inferior to the quality of the same type of goods purchased by Germantown poor district, in view of the fact that the former is unbleached and the latter bleached.

Purchases for Beef and Provisions for the Almshouse from O. S. Buckius, for the year under review, totaled $3,437.37, of which $1,850.65 was for beef used for inmates, and $1,586.72 for provisions for the use of the staff. We have analyzed a number of the invoices for provisions for the staff in order to compare the unit prices with prices paid by a large purchaser of the highest quality foods. A few of the comparisons follow:

	February		May		August		November
	Paid	Market	Paid	Market	Paid	Market	Paid	Market
Ham	....	....	$.30	$.24	$.30	$.23	....	....
Leg of Lamb	$.40	$.28	.40	.30	.40	.29	$.35	$.27
Sausage	.40	.30	....	....	....	....	.33	.22
Pork Loins	.30	.20	.30	.22	....	....	....	....
Half Smokes	.35	.24	.35	.22	.35	.22	.30	.22
Bacon	.40	.31	.40	.29	.40	.27	....	....
Butter	.40	.35	.40	.29	.38	.37	.45	.39

It is noted that beef was purchased for prices varying from $.50 to $.60 per pound, and chops from $.40 to $.50 per pound, but the description on the invoice was insufficient to identify the quality of the meats. We are therefore assuming that these purchases were sirloin steaks and lamp chops. The market price for loins of beef varied from $.36 to $.38 per pound, and the market price of racks of lamb varied from $.27 to $.32 per pound during the same periods.

As mentioned above, purchases of beef from Buckius for the inmates totaled $1,850.65. On December 18, 1930, at a meeting of the Board of Directors, although there were no competitive bids, the contract for supplying beef during 1931 for the inmates was awarded to him. This contract specified 175 pounds Fore-quarters of Beef at $14.60 per hundred pounds. Inquiry from a reputable dealer in meats reveals that Fore-quarters of steer could have been purchased for $13.50 per hundred pounds, and Fore-quarters of cow could have been purchased for $10.00 per hundred. You can therefore see how easy it would have been to substitute Fore-quarters of cow to the advantage of the merchant, but the disadvantage of the taxpayers. Similarly, the contract was awarded to Bucklus for 1932 at $11.90 per hundred, even though Fore-quarters of steer could be purchased for $11.00 and cow for $7.00.

3. Methods:

Our investigation discloses, from information obtained from the Steward, that no proper system is employed in the purchase and receiving of supplies. Practically all of the purchases are made over the telephone and weights and prices are not checked.

We find that Clothing for Inmates was purchased during 1931 in the amount of $527.15. The information shown on the invoices covering this item was insufficient to enable us to compare prices. No record was kept of how and to whom these supplies were distributed.

4. Tobacco and Ginger Ale:

Of a total of $441.50 spent for tobacco, $85.50 was used for the purchase of 950 cigars @ $.09 each, and the balance of $356.00 was used for the purchase of other tobacco. Eleven caess of ginger ale, containing 528 bottles at a cost of $75.30, was purchased during the period under review. The Steward, Mr. Kelly, explained to us that both the cigars and ginger ale were consumed by the Directors.

5. Whiskey:

Two cases of pints of Dougherty Private Stock was purchased from Carl F. Lauber, in May, 1931, at a cost of $100.00. This was authorized at a meeting of the Board of Directors. The Steward keeps a prescription record showing the quantity of the liquor on hand and the disposition thereof during each month. At the time of our visit in December, 1932, his November, 1932 records were not complete. A further record is maintained by the House Physician showing the details of each individual prescription. This record is not kept in the institution, and we did not examine it. The Steward, furthermore, explained that the House Physician, in addition to prescribing the doses, administers them personally.

6. Convention:

On Exhibit "A," Schedule #5, it is shown that $2,000.00 was spent for the annual convention. We learn that the convention in 1931 was held in Altoona, Pennsylvania, and ten delegates were authorized to attend. Those who attended were, the eight directors, the steward and the matron. A check was drawn to the order of Oscar W. West, chairman of the convention committee, and no detail expense vouchers were required. The Steward stated that each delegate received $200.00, and that he and his wife, although receiving $400.00 in total, did not spend that amount and were not required to refund or account for the balance. There is no doubt that the directors should be criticized for an expenditure of this nature.

In prior years, the following amounts were spent for conventions:

Year	Check payable to	Place of convention	Amount
1930	Carl Ebert	Allentown	$1,125.00
1929	Lewis F. Castor, Jr.	Conneaut Lake	2,500.00
1928	Lewis F. Castor, Jr.	Philadelphia	800.00
1927	Each Delegate, $200	Hazelton	2,600.00
1926	Each Delegate, $300	Erie	1,200.00
1925	Rudolph N. Carson	Lancaster	1,000.00

It is interesting to note that at the meeting of the Directors held on August 20, 1931, when a resolution was adopted authorizing the expenditure of $2,000.00 for the annual convention, a resolution was also passed authorizing the Treasurer to hold up the payment of the bill received from the Norristown State Hospital until sufficient funds were available to pay same. It seems inconsistent to spend $2,000.00 for a convention when they were unable to meet payment of current expenses, and had bank loans of $45,000.00 owing at this date.

General

Expenses

The total cash disbursements for the year ended December 31, 1931, exclusive of Loans Repaid, is shown on Exhibit "A" as $168,754.49, and, in order to show the ratio that each item bears to the total, the following summary is presented:

	Amount	Ratio
Outside Relief	$ 88,970.65	52.72%
Home and Farm	23,070.62	13.67
Other Institutions	26,017.86	15.42
Directors' and Officers' Salaries	5,600.00	3.32
Secretary's Salary	2,000.00	1.20
Collectors' Commissions and Tax Books	8,666.79	5.14
Purchase of Safes for Collectors	617.40	.36
Other Expenses	13,811.17	8.17
Total	$168,754.49	100.00%

On Exhibit "B" it is explained that disbursements exceed receipts, exclusive of Bank Loans, by $39,272.90. This causes the various overhead expenses to show a smaller percentage to total disbursements during 1931 than would normally be expected. It is natural to expect that during succeeding periods, it will be necessary for the Poor District to reduce the bank loans, and this will result in a higher percentage of overhead expenses at that time. The various expenses are shown above as 3.32% for Directors' and Officers' Salaries; 1.20% for Secretary's Salary; 5.14% for Collectors' Commissions and Tax Books; .36% for Purchase of Safes for Collectors; and 8.17% for Other Expenses, making the total expense for the period 18.19% of the total expenditures, exclusive of Bank Loans. In other words, about $.18 of every dollar spent was used for the payment of expenses.

If, on the other hand, we would confine our comparison of expenses to tax receipts only during the year ended December 31, 1931, an entirely different result would be obtained. The total Receipts from Taxes, Interest and Penalties were $124,541.42, and the total expenses, including Collectors' Commissions, were $30,695.36. On this basis, the expenses are 24.5% of tax receipts and of every dollar of taxes received during the year $2.24½ was used for expenses.

Miscellaneous

We bring your attention to the fact that on December 31, 1931, $2,395.63 was on deposit at the County Trust Company, a closed bank, and that the funds are not protected by a bond.

The comments contained in this report clearly indicate that the methods of bookkeeping in use by the collectors and by the institutions are inadequate. Steps should be taken to remedy this condition at once.

Purchasing of supplies, both for the institution and for outside relief, are improperly supervised, and the records are insufficient to enable us to properly compare prices.

The books show no evidence of any attempt to exert Budgetary Control over the estimated Revenue to be expected, and the estimated expenditures for any specific period.

Although we have confined our audit to the year ended December 31, 1931, we have prepared, and submit as part of this report, Exhibit "C," a comparison of annual published report without audit for the years ended December 31, 1927, 1928, 1929, 1930 and 1931. It is apparent that the amount of outside relief granted in 1931 exceeded any previous year. The cost of maintaining inmates in other institutions decreased in 1931 due to the fact that they have not paid the Bureau of City Hospitals, as noted in a previous section. In 1927, they show these expenses to be $9,911.77; in 1928, $11,833.61; in 1929, $21,147.50; in 1930, $18,435.75; and in 1931, $21,378.08. It might be to the advantage of the taxpayers to make an investigation of the transactions for the years preceding 1931.

A partial audit, covering the year ended December 31, 1931, was made and a Preliminary Report has been prepared of each of the Poor Districts for that period. An additional report, comparing the conduct of the various Poor Districts, and making certain suggestions and recommendations, will be rendered following the completion of the six reports mentioned above.

Committee to Make Investigation of the Poor Boards of Philadelphia:

Gentlemen:

Pursuant to your request, we have examined the books of account and records of the Guardians for the Relief and Employment of the Poor of the Township of Bristol for the year ended December 31, 1931.

Location

The location of the Township of Bristol is described in the Consolidation Act of 1854, as follows:

> "Beginning at the intersection of Germantown avenue and Stenton avenue, thence northwestwardly along the center of Stenton avenue to Sixty-sixth north, thence northwestwardly along the center of Stenton avenue to the center of Cresheim avenue (being also the boundary line between Philadelphia and Montgomery Counties), thence northeastwardly along the center of Cresheim avenue to the center of Cheltenham avenue, thence eastwardly along the center of Cheltenham avenue, being a continuation of the aforesaid county line) to the center of Tacony Creek, thence southeastwardly along the center of said Tacony Creek to the center of Wingohocking Creek to Sixth street and Annsbury street, thence southwestwardly (along the old Twenty-second and Thirty-third Ward boundary line) crossing Wingohocking street to center of Germantown avenue, about 50 feet north of Cayuga street, thence northwestwardly along the center of Germantown avenue to the center of Roberts avenue, thence southwestwardly along the center of Roberts avenue to the center of Stenton avenue produced, thence northwardly along the center of Stenton avenue produced to Germantown avenue and place of beginning."

This Township is within the 42nd Ward in the City of Philadelphia. No Almshouse is maintained, but an office at 5601 North 12th Street is rented and is used for tax collections and for the other functions of the Guardians.

Elected Officers

Guardians

We show below a list of the present Guardians for the Relief and Employment of the Poor.

Edwin A. Sharpless .....President
Joseph Schwartz .....Secretary
Albert F. Forster .....Treasurer
Alfred M. Swann

At the General Election, held on November 3, 1931, Edwin A. Sharpless and Albert F. Forster were elected to replace Harry G. Rintz and Charles Deeg. The minutes of a Special Meeting held on July 14, 1931, show that Mr. Deeg was elected by the other three Guardians to fill a vacancy created by the death of Ambrose P. Stanton. At a regular meeting of the Guardian held on January 5, 1932, Mr. Richard S. Harris resigned because of his election to the Council of the City of Philadelphia, and Joseph Schwartz was elected to fill his unexpired term.

The salaries paid each Guardian are $500.00 per year. During 1931, Mr. Swann received as additional compensation $100 for clerical services in the office. It is also observed that each Guardian was paid $180.000 during the year to defray his expenses, although no voucher was presented itemizing the nature of the expense.

Auditors

The present Auditors are as follows:

Daniel Pearson
George W. Hankinson

Mr. Pearson was elected at the November, 1931 General Election and Mr. Hankinson has held the office for a considerable number of years.

At a meeting of the Guardians held on August 12, 1931, the salary of each auditor was set at the rate of $300.00 per year. On Exhibit "A," Schedule No. 4, Auditors' Salaries for 1931 are shown as $800.00, of which Mr. Rickards received $500.00 and Mr. Hankinson $300.00. Of the total sum of $800.00 paid to the auditors, $400.00 was applicable to the year 1930, leaving an unpaid balance of $100.00 owing to each at December 31, 1931. We note that at a meeting of the Guardians, held on January 5, 1932, a salary of $600.00 per annum was voted to Daniel Pearson.

*Note: Placed on Payroll March 15, 1931.

The foregoing list of salaries shows the amounts paid to each guardian and employe during the year ended December 31, 1931. Reference to the minute book indicates that on January 5, 1932, Mr. Oscar Moyer was appointed Business Manager, at an annual salary of $2,500.00; Grace Weikel's salary was increased from $1,200.00 to $1,400.00 per annum; Joseph Hare was employed as an investigator at an annual salary of $1,500.00; Wayne H. Sears was appointed as Delinquent Tax Colelctor on a commission basis to be determined at the end of the year, with a drawing account of $1,500.00 per year; and Patrick McGlone was employed in the same capacity and on the same basis as Mr. Sears. At this same meeting, Andrew T. Hamilton was discharged from his duties as Delinquent Tax Collector and Investigator, to take effect on January 15, 1932. At the March meeting of the guardians, the following were employed to assist in transcribing the Tax Books, with compensation of $100.00 each and $.50 as expenses for each day they are engaged in the work:

Mrs. Bauman
Mrs. Doningues
Mr. D. Egan
Mr. White

The Minute Book presented for our scrutiny does not include the September, October, November and December meetings of 1932, and therefore we cannot describe any further changes in the Payroll.

As a result of these various changes, the salaries for 1932 will be increased from $15,762.50, as itemized above, to $21,112.50. It seems inconsistent for this Poor District to increase salaries, in view of present conditions and in view of their present liabilities that will be discussed later. This inconsistency is further stressed by a resolution passed at a meeting held on January 13, 1932—"That because of the insufficiency of the funds on hand to pay all the bills presented at this meeting, the Treasurer be and he is hereby given authority to select the creditors that are to be paid with the funds on hand."

Laws

We have not been furnished with any laws governing the conduct of the guardians of this Poor District, but suggest that the committee make a study of the laws in order to compare them with the activities of the guardians during the year ended December 31, 1931, as detailed in this report.

Functions of Guardians

1. Collection of Taxes
2. Granting of Outside Relief
3. Maintenance of Inmates in Institutions

Collection of Taxes

The Board of Revision of Taxes issued a statement showing the assessment for the 42nd Ward on February 11, 1931 to be $249,497,160.00. We have added the tax duplicates in use during 1931 by the Poor District, arriving at a total assessment of $249,078,060.00. The difference in assessments of $419,100.00 is equivalent to a tax of $167.64.

Current Taxes

The tax duplicates reflected that the total tax collectible on the 1931 assessment, at the rate of 4 mills, was $99.631.22, and that the amount actually collected was $75,055.68. On Exhibit "A," the amount of Current Tax Collections is shown as $68,020.04. The difference of $7035.64 was collected by Mr. Worff, the tax collector, and deposited by him in his special account, but not transferred to the general account of the Poor District until after the end of the year. The actual amount transferred was $7,051.21, indicating a further difference of $15.57. The delinquent 1931 taxes totaled $24 575.54 at December 31, 1931.

It is interesting to note that the tax rate was increased from 1 mill in 1928 to 2 mills in 1929 and 1930, and to 4 mills in 1931.

Delinquent Taxes

Delinquent taxes are entered in the current tax duplicates in columns so designated. The total tax delinquency at January 1, 1931 was $21.055.61, as computed by us. Delinquent taxes, marked paid in the tax duplicates, totaled $11,682.01, leaving a balance of delinquent taxes for years prior to 1931 of $9,373.60 at December 31, 1931. The delinquent tax collections, as indicated on Exhibit "A," were $18,088.67, resulting in a difference of $6,406.66 in comparison to the delinquent taxes collected, as shown in the tax duplicates. This difference was due to the method of deposit of collections by Mr. Worff, as noted under our previous discussion of Current Taxes. The total taxes delinquent on December 31, 1931 was $33,949.14.

Interest and Penalties

The addition of Interest and Penalties on delinquent taxes at January 1, 1931, as recorded in the tax duplicates, totaled $6,683.42. Payments during the year were $3,542.51, leaving a balance unpaid at December 31, 1931, of $3,140.91. Interest and Penalties collected, as shown on Exhibit "A," amounted to $3,715.92, a difference of $173.41, as compared to the collections reported in the tax duplicates. This difference was also due to the same cause, as noted in current and delinquent tax collections.

During 1931, a penalty of 25% of the tax, and interest at the rate of 6% was charged for failure to pay the poor tax before December 31, 1930, and the same rate was charged during 1932. But, at a meeting of the Guardians held on December 9, 1931, the penalties were increased, and now are as follows, commencing with 1932 taxes:

Payment after August 31	1% Penalty
Payment after September 30	2% Penalty
Payment after October 31	3% Penalty
Payment after November 30	4% Penalty
Payment after December 31	50% Penalty

General:

In order that you may understand the method used by this Poor District in recording their tax transactions, we are submitting a description of same. All collections are given to Mr. Worff, who has a separate bank account in which he deposits these funds. Deposits are not made to conform with daily collections. Mr. Worff has informed us that he uses a portion of the collections to pay Office Expenses that occur during the month, being reimbursed after the monthly meeting of the Guardians. This, in itself, would cause a difference between daily collections and daily deposits. Payment of Office Expenses from tax collections should be discontinued. A petty cash fund should be in use for such expenditures. In addition to tax collections, Mr. Worff also deposits Board Received for Inmates and any miscellaneous cash that is received. This further complicates his cash account.

The monthly meeting of the Guardians is held on the second Wednesday of each month. Tax collections up to the Saturday preceding the monthly meeting are to be transferred to the general bank account of the Poor District from Mr. Worff's special account on the night of the meeting. All other collections deposited by Mr. Worff are also transferred at the same time.

This system has been the cause of the differences between actual cash receipts and tax collections, as indicated in the tax duplicates, that were discussed previously in this report. A reconcilement of these differences is presented herewith:

	Total	Current Taxes	Delinquent Taxes	Interest & Penalties
Collections During 1931 Per Tax Duplicate.	$90.280.20	$75.055.68	$11,682.01	$ 3,542.51
Less: Collections Transferred After Dec. 31, 1931	8,500.97	7,051.21	1,132.22	317.54
	$81,779.23	$68,004.47	$10,549.79	$ 3,224.97
Add: 1930 Collections Transferred Jan. 1931	8,041.90		7,530.01	511.89
Differences	3.50	15.57	8.87	—20.94
Collections—Per Exhibit "A"	$89,824.63	$68,020.04	$18,088.67	$ 3,715.92

On December 31, 1931, before Penalties and Interest were added for non-payment in 1931, the Delinquencies totalled:

Delinquent Taxes	$33,949.14
Interest and Penalties	3,140.91
Total	$37,090.05

On Exhibit "A," Schedule No. 3, the Cost of Tax Collections is itemized and totals $10.506.75, and on Exhibit "B," Schedule No. 1, overhead is charged to this function in the amount of $1,082.99, making the total cost of collecting taxes during the year ended December 31, 1931, $11,589.74. The total revenue from current and delinquent taxes, interest and penalties in 1931 was $89,818.43, and therefore, the cost was 12.9%.

This seems to us to be an unusually high cost of collection. It is also observed that the cost of collecting taxes will be increased in 1932 because of the increase in salaries described in a previous part of this report.

Granting of Outside Relief

The sum of $87,795.80 was applied to Outside Relief for the year ended December 31, 1931, and is summarized on Exhibit "A," Schedule No. 1. A list of the principal merchants from whom the merchandise was purchased is shown below:

Matysik	.42 to .43	.34	.25
Maheirath	.39	.53 to .56	.29 to .33
Chain Stores	.37 to .39	.27 to .39

The above formation has been compiled in order to show how the prices vary among the various merchants and it also shows that the prevailing prices as advertised by the Chain Stores during the same periods were considerably cheaper. The difference in prices would be still more noticeable if we would compare canned goods and other similar foods.

We are convinced that the officials of the Poor District were not exerting much supervision over the prices, otherwise they would have been more uniform. We also believe that no supervision was exercised over the type of foods purchased by the needy. Invoices have been found showing the purchase of chicken, shrimp, cakes, candy and other delicacies.

The system employed by the Guardians in 1931 in issuing relief orders, can also be criticized. Investigators' reports covering application for relief were not available for our inspection and are not on file at their office. It is our understanding that the signatures of those receiving relief orders are not compared with their signature appearing on the application for relief. In some cases other names are signed to the orders.

No record is kept showing the total relief each family received over a period of time. In order to compile a list showing the name, address and the amount of relief each family received during 1931, we were obliged to record each relief order presented for payment opposite the name of the recipient. This information should have been among the records of the Poor District. In many cases the orders and invoices were missing.

Our attention has been directed to the fact that in some instances the invoices are dated prior to the date appearing on the relief order issued by a Guardian. This indicates that the merchandise was purchased before the order was issued. There were several relief orders issued that were not dated. One relief order was brought to our attention due to the fact that the order was drawn on Jacob Felton but was filled by Joseph Cherry. A number of orders for shoes were given to the needy without any amounts being shown on the order.

The instances noted above indicate the laxity of the management of the Poor District relative to the issuance and checking of relief orders.

We have compiled information relative to the number of families receiving relief for the year ended December 31, 1931. Due to the fact that relief orders were not returned in all cases by merchants, the figures presented herewith are not complete. Grocery orders were issued to 1318 families; milk orders to 280; coal orders to 812; and clothing and Shoe orders to 264. The overhead cost of distributing relief among 1318 families was $6.86 per family for the year ended December 31, 1931.

Maintenance of Inmates in Institutions

On Exhibit "A," Schedule No. 2, we have listed the Institutions and individuals that received payments totaling $8,436.67 for maintenance of inmates during the year under review. The total cost, including overhead of this function of the Guardians, was $9,305.26. Board received for inmates totaling $4,152.41 was applied against the gross expenditures, leaving a net cost of $5,152.85. Invoices from the institutions were not presented to us for the entire year. No payments were made to the Philadelphia General Hospital or the Byberry Hospital during 1931.

Invoices on file at the office of the Poor District show unpaid accounts at December 15, 1932, in the amounts indicated opposite the name of the institutions appearing below:

	Number of Inmates	Amount
Philadelphia General Hospital, January 1, 1930 to September 30, 1932	20	$ 34,764.14
Byberry Hospital, January 1, 1930 to August 1, 1932	32	17,403.90
Norristown State Hospital, October 31, 1932	73	15,429.33
Elwyn Training School, October 1, 1932	8	2,092.51
Total		$ 69,689.88

The number of inmates shown above represented the number in the institutions at the date of this last invoice received.

General

Expenditures for the year ended December 31, 1931, totaled $117,740.26 exclusive of ban loans repaid, as detailed on Exhibit "A" and its supporting schedules. The proportion of each type of expenditure to the total is summarized as follows:

Outside Relief	$87,795.80	74.57%
Maintenance of Inmates in Institutions	8,436.67	7.17
Cost of Tax Collections	10,506.75	8.93
Overhead Expenses	10,994.84	9.33%
Tax Refund	6.20
Totals	$117,740.26	100.00%

From the above it will be observed that of every dollar expended 18.26 cents were spent for tax collections and overhead expenses.

As noted on Exhibit "B," funds provided by tax collections amounted to $89,818.43. Since cost of tax collections and overhead expenses were $21,501.59, this indicates that of every dollar received from taxes, 23.94 cents were disbursed for collection of taxes and managing the operations of the Poor District. Under our comments on salaries in a previous part of this report, it was stated that salaries during 1932 were increased from $15,762.50 for 1931 to $21,112.50 for 1932. This would result in a still higher percentage of taxes collected being spent for cost of tax collections and overhead.

In order to conduct the operation of this Poor District during 1931, it was necessary to make loans from banks. Total bank loans on December 31, 1931, amounted to $30,000 as follows:

Olney Bank and Trust Company in hands of Banking Dept.	$15,000.00
Philadelphia National Bank	15,000.00

We have been informed by Mr. Moyer, the business manager, that the liability on borrowed money at the date of this report is $33,000.00. We previously described that $69,689.88 is owing to institutions for board of inmates, making a total indebtedness of $102,689.88.

If all the current taxes for one year at the present tax rate were applied against the reduction of this liability, there still would be a small balance owing and there would be no funds available for the other functions of the Poor District.

A comparison of annual reports for the years ended December 31, 1927, 1928, 1929, 1930 and 1931 is presented on Exhibit "C." A scrutiny of the figures shown thereon indicates that tax collections have been constant after giving consideration to the rise or fall of the tax rate; Outside Relief has shown a large increase in 1931 over previous years; maintenance of inmates has decreased in 1931 due to the fact that the institutions were not paid; cost of tax collections and overhead expenses have gradually increased from $10,316.12 in 1927 to $21,501.59 in 1931. The principal cause of the increase in cost of tax collections and overhead expenses was the variance in the salaries paid during the two periods. In 1927, salaries totaled $8,304.76, in 1931 salaries were $15,762.50, and will be higher in 1932 as previously explained.

Although we inspected the records of the tax collectors we were unable, because of limited time, to make a detailed audit and do not accept any responsibility for the correctness of same. We have however pointed out the inadequacy of the collectors' records and suggest that all tax collections be deposited daily. At December 31, 1931, there was on deposit in the collectors' special bank account $5,822.12 and the records also indicate that revenue in amount of $2,678.85 was collected but not yet deposited. The total of these two amounts, $8,500.97, was not included as income in the annual report December 31, 1931, rendered by the auditors nor in Exhibit "A" of this report. We find that this revenue was transferred to the general bank account on January 14, 1932.

REPORT UPON AUDIT AND SURVEY OF ACCOUNTS OF THE DIRECTORS OF THE POOR OF THE BOROUGH OF ROXBOROUGH FOR THE YEAR ENDED DECEMBER 31, 1931

FOREWORD

On August 2, 1932, in the House of Representatives, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, the following Committee was appointed to make investigation of the Poor Districts of Philadelphia:

Herbert S. Royle, Chairman
Albert S. C. Millar
Joseph F. M. Baldi
Herman J. Tahl
Edward Haws

The accounting firms of Laventhol & Krekstein and Thompson & Markel both of Philadelphia, were engaged by this Committee to investigate the affairs of the six Poor Districts in the city of Philadelphia. A partial audit, covering the year ended December 31, 1931, was made and a Preliminary Report has been prepared of each of the Poor Districts for that period. An additional report, comparing the conduct of the various Poor Districts, and making certain suggestions and recommendations, will be rendered following the completion of the six reports mentioned above.

Committee to Make Investigation of the Poor Districts of Pennsylvania:

Gentlemen:

We have examined the books of account and records of the Directors of the Poor of the Borough of Roxborough for the year ended December 31, 1931, and have analyzed their annual reports for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1925, and the years ended December 31, 9127, 1928, 1929, 1930 and 1931, and submit herewith our comments.

Location

The Consolidation Act of 1854 describes the boundary lines of the Borough of Roxborough as follows:

"Beginning at a point on the Schuylkill River opposite the line of School House lane produced, thence in a northeastwardly direction to a point in Wissahickon avenue, east of the Philadelphia, Germantown and Chestnut Hill Branch of the Pennsylvania R. R., thence northwestwardly along the center of Wissahickon avenue to the center of Northwestern avenue (said line being the county line), thence extending southwestwardly along the center of Northwestern avenue to the low water mark of the River Schuylkill, thence southeastwardly along the several courses of the said river to the mouth of Cinnaminson Run, thence by a line north 46 degrees, 15 minutes east 124 5-10 perches to a stake set for a corner near the house lately of John Bloom, deceased, thence north 53 degrees east 24 perches to the north side of Green Lane (said point being about 110 feet south of Manayunk avenue), thence south 36 degrees east 251 8-10 perches to a mark in a rock (said rock being near the east side of Hermit street and the south side of Pechin street), thence south 63 degrees, 30 minutes west 89 7-10 perches to the River Schuylkill (said line being east of Hermit street), thence in a southeastwardly direction along the several courses of said river to the place of beginning."

This borough includes all of the Twenty-first Ward and a small part of the Thirty-Eighth Ward. We are informed that the property owners in the Thirty-Eighth Ward, although residing in this poor district, are not within the election division that elects their Directors of the Poor and Auditors.

Elected Officers

Directors of the Poor

The present Directors are:

Ralph W. Pope
John A. Sheldrake
John Kenworthy

According to their minutes, Ralph W. Pope was elected to office at the general election in November, 1929, and assumed office January 1, 1930. John A. Sheldrake was elected into office January 14, 1930 by George E. Dorwart and Ralph W. Pope at a meeting of the Board of Directors held that day, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Nathan L. Jones. Mr. Sheldrake was elected into office at the general election November 3, 1931. John Kenworthy was elected into office September 27, 1930, at a meeting of the Board of Directors to fill the unexpired term of George E. Dorwart, who resigned May 29, 1930.

The salary of each Director was increased in 1930 from $300.00 to $500.00 per annum.

Auditors

The present auditors are:

Earl Harlan
Homer Parsons
James Jellett

The minutes do not disclose any information regarding their election, but at the general election held November 3, 1931, Homer Parsons was elected. We have not examined the election returns of previous years.

Each auditor receives as compensation $10.00 per annum.

Laws

We have not been furnished with a digest of the laws governing this poor district and suggest that your Committee obtain this information in order to compare the actual operations of the Directors and see that their functions, that we will describe in this report, are consistent therewith.

Functions of the Directors

1. Collection of taxes.
2. Granting of Outside Relief.
3. Maintenance of inmates in other institutions.
4. Maintenance of Almshouse and Farm on East Shawmont Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa.

Collection of Taxes

The tax rate for the year 1931 was:

City Property	4 Mills
Suburban Property	2 Mills
Farm Property	1 Mill

The Receiver of Taxes of Philadelphia acts as the Collector of Taxes for this district, and by ordinance of Council, pays the amount of poor taxes in accordance with rates shown above to the Directors of the Poor in the year following collection.

A statement prepared by the Board of Revision of Taxes in the City of Philadelphia shows the following assessed valuations of real estate in the Twenty-First Ward on February 11, 1931:

City	$38,958,500.00
Suburban	12,604,800.00
Farm	1,624,550.00
Total	$53,187,850.00

The taxes collectible for the year 1931, computed at the above rates, total $18,266.81. This does not include the taxes collectible from assessments in the Thirty-Eighth Ward that are included in the Roxborough Poor Districts.

John A. Blankin, an employee of the city in the Department of City Property, has prepared a book each year for the Roxborough Poor District showing the assessed valuations of the properties on which taxes were collected by the Receiver of Taxes. This book is used in order to determine the amount owing by the city to the Poor District. Mr. Blankin receives as compensation for his services in preparing this book $250.00 per annum. No record is kept showing the extent of delinquent taxes. In our opinion the delinquent taxes are considerable and some permanent record should be made showing this information.

There is no evidence to show that penalties and interest for delinquent payment of taxes are being remitted by the city to the poor district, even though it is being collected by them. It was suggested by your committee that we do not audit this phase in connection with the Roxborough Poor District because the City Controller audits these transactions annually.

Outside Relief

During the year 1931, the directors granted relief to 23 families as follows:

Groceries	$ 942.25
Coal	97.75
Medical Services	34.00
Total	$ 1,074.00

The merchants who received this business are listed below:

S. J. Ralston	$ 104.00
George Blumenauer	725.25
William Maginn	113.00
Hare & Cute Coal Company	97.75
Dr. Linton Turner	34.00
Total	$ 1,074.00

No investigators are employed and each Director investigates any application for relief in his district that comes to his attention. If he finds the applicant worthy, he communicates with the merchant that is selected, and requests him to furnish the necessary commodities in accordance with the amount of relief allowed. No relief orders were in use during the period under review, and the only record showing that the relief was granted is the invoice presented by the merchant and the cancelled check drawn in his favor.

It is to be noted that out of a total of $942.25 spent for groceries, George Blumenauer participated to the extent of $725.25. An investigation was made by personal visits to a representative number of those who received relief, and the principal criticism was the fact that they were given no opportunity to select the variety of foods that they desired. The recipients also stated that although they did not know the value of the relief orders being received by them, it was their belief that similar commodities could be purchased at the chain stores for lower prices. We have prepared a comparison of some prices paid to Mr. Blumenauer for representative commodities with advertised prices during the same periods, and show herewith the results obtained:

Date	Commodity	Unit	Price Paid To Blumenauer	Advertised Price
Feb. 1931	Eggs	1 Doz.	$ .35	$ .30
	Butter	1 Lb.	.38	.33
	Cheese	½ Lb.	.26	.11½
	Peas	Can	.18	.12½
	Corn	"	.18	.12½
	Tomatoes	"	.15	.06¼
	Apple Sauce	"	.15	.08 1/3
	Coffee	1 Lb.	.35	.27
	Macaroni	Pkg.	.13	.05
	Oats	"	.10	.08
	Beans	1 Lb.	.15	.10
	Pancake Flour	Pkg.	.15	.07½
	Spaghetti	"	.13	.05
Aug. 1931	Eggs	1 Doz.	.43	.37

	Pink Salmon	Can	.15	.08 1/3
	Peas	"	.18	.08 1/3
	Coffee	1 Lb.	.29	.23

We thought it unnecessary to compare more than the prices shown above in order to illustrate the fact that the Directors are paying more for the foodstuffs for the needy by purchasing from Blumenauer than by purchasing from chain stores at prevailing market prices.

A review of Blumenauer's invoices showing the foods delivered to the needy indicates that he makes up his own selection and gives the recipient no choice in the matter unless they complain.

In order to give you an idea of the foodstuffs furnished by Blumenauer, we submit below his invoice dated February 28, 1931 for food delivered to one of the poor.

1	Half Smokes	.35
	Total	$3.24

On Exhibit "B," Schedule No. 1 of this report, the overhead cost of distributing outside relief total $194.52. Distributing this cost over the 23 families who benefited gives a per capita cost of $8.46 per annum for each family for the year ended December 31, 1931.

Maintenance of Inmates In Other Institutions

The number of inmates, weekly rates and total paid eo each institution during the calendar year 1931 is summarized below:

Institution	No. of Inmates	Weekly Rate	Amounts Paid
Norristown State Hospital	28	$3.00	$3,461.33
Children's Aid Society	1	4.25	221.53
Allentown State Hospital	1	3.00	158.88
Bureau of Hospitals--Byberry	1	5.00	241.43
	31		$4,083.22

No record of the commitment of any of the patients at these institutions is maintained by the Directors. The information shown above has been compiled from the invoices and record of their payment.

The overhead applicable to this function is shown on Exhibit "B," Schedule No. 2 to be $739.71, or a per capita cost of $23.86 per inmate. The total per capita cost of keeping the 31 patients at various institutions, including overhead of $23.86, is $152.35 per annum.

Maintenance of Almshouse and Farm on East Shawmont Avenue, Philadelphia

Description

We inspected the home and find that the Poor District owns approximately thirty acres of land, in addition to the buildings situated thereon. This entire acreage is under cultivation, and we find that the use of five additional acres has been donated by a neighbor. Although the city assessment records describe the land as thirty acres, the Directors inform us it consists of twenty-three acres.

The buildings consist of the home, a barn, and several minor buildings. Both the barn and home are of recent construction and are stone structures. The main building has 16 sleeping rooms, a kitchen, and dining room available for the inmates. The Steward and the Matron occupy five bedrooms, a private dining room and a private living room. In addition, there is a large reception room used by the directors, staff and by the inmates for chapel services. The euipment in the kitchen seems to be modern and our attention has been brought to the fact that a new electric stove was purchased during 1931. The basement is used for storing supplies, and a portion of it is occupied as a lounging room for the male inmates. The laundry and heating system are also located in the basement. In the barn are kept two horses, two cows and three heifers. About forty or fifty chickens are kept in a chicken shed. There seems to be an ample supply of farm implements, and we note that they also own an automobile truck for use on the farm and in connection with hauling.

Occupancy

There are eleven male and five female inmates in the institution. Nine of the men and all of the women occupy individual bedrooms. Two men share one sleeping room. This leaves one bedroom in the female section of the home vacant. It is apparent to us that no more male applicants can be accommodated. If the dormitory system were in use, probably space would be available for at least ten more inmates. Although the building was recently constructed, no provision was made for the increase of the capacity of the home by having this dormitory system, such as is in use in other similar institutions.

It is important to observe that the Steward and Matron occupy an apartment having five sleeping rooms. This space is necessary for them in view of the fact that their family consists of two sons, themselves and one of their parents. We estimate that the staff occupies about 25% of all the available space considering the fact that in addition to the five bedrooms, they occupy a private dining room, living room and have the use of the kitchen and reception room.

The record kept of inmates is inadequate. In order to obtain a to trace the registration for a period of many years. It is recommended that a card system be adopted showing the history and all pertinent information concerning every inmate.

Method of Operation

We are immediately impressed with the lack of system in connection with the operation of both the farm and the home.

No adequate record is kept of the crops planted, nor of the produce raised on the acreage at their disposal. It is important to know what yield is obtained for each crop planted, so as to determine whether or not it is profitable to apply the soil for each particular product.

There are three ways of disposing of the produce raised on the farm:

1. Produce used in home.
2. Produce sold.
3. Produce given to needy.

For the purpose of knowing the value of the produce applied to the classification indicated above, it is necessary to maintain such records that will show not only the total foodstuffs produced, but will also show the manner in which it was disposed.

On Exhibit "A," the sale of Farm and Dairy Products is shown as $231.49 for the year 1931. The only information available to use to substantiate this figure was six sales slips. An illustration of one showing the sales for August, 1931, is presented below:

Corn	$ 39.75
Lima Beans	6.35
Beets	12.05
Tomatoes	11.50
Cabbage	12.65
Rhubarb	5.40
Carrots	.20
Cucumbers	.70
Total	$ 88.59

From this illustration, it will be noted that the information is lacking in the following respects:

1. No quantities of each article sold.
2. No unit price.
3. Purchaser of produce is not stated.

Reference is made to Exhibit "B," Schedule No. 1, showing the total cost of maintaining the Farm and Almshouse as $6,581.68, including overhead for the year ended December 31, 1931. The cost of maintaining each of the sixteen inmates is $411.35 per annum, or $7.91 per week.

In arriving at this cost, no consideration is given to the value of the farm produce that is used in the home. Furthermore, no consideration is given to the value of Land, Buildings and Equipment. The city assessors have valued the land and building at $120,000.00 If we were to charge into the cost of maintenance the value of $120,-000.00 at 4%, or $4.800.00 per year, the per capita cost for each inmate would be increased $300.00 per year, or $5.77 per week. Therefore, without considering the value of the farm produce used in the home, the total per capita cost would be $711.00 per year, or $13.68 per week.

Purchase and Receiving of Supplies

Inquiries at the home with reference to the above show very lax methods. No verification is made of quantities received nor comparison of prices charged. Apparently, there is no shopping and evidently, all purchases are made by telephone. We have not made a complete analysis of purchases, but a comparisou of some of the prices paid for foodstuffs and groceries indicate that this home is paying considerably more than prevailing market prices during the period under review. In order to illustrate our point, we show below a comparison of the prices paid for meats in February, May, August and November, 1931, with the prices paid by a consumer of the best quality meats that the market provides during the same periods.

	February		May		August		November
	Paid	Market	Paid	Market	Paid	Market	Paid	Market
Ham	$.31½	$.26½	$.25	$.24	$.28	$.22	$.21½	$.21
Sausage	.34¼	.30	.30	.23	..	..	..	..
Rump Steak	.48	.38	.45	.36	.45	.36	.46	.38
Bacon	.40	.30½	.37	.25	.40	.30	..	..
Ribs of Beef	.38	.28	.37	.25	.37	.23	.32	.25
Pork Chops	.28	.23	..	..	..	..	..	..

All meats were purchased from A. Wilby's Sons at a total cost of $447.81 for the year of 1931.

The Matron has admitted that the prices paid to them are higher than market, but in view of the fact that she has no choice as to where to buy supplies, it is impossible for her to take advantage of the difference.

We have been unable to learn why A. Wilby's Sons are favored, but have ascertained that Mr. Wilby occupies the adjoining farm.

Groceries in the amount of $903.51 were purchased from Harold Wagner during the year of 1931. An examination of his invoices and a comparison with the unit prices paid proves to us it would be possible to purchase similar commodities at retail prices from chain stores at a considerable saving. It is customary, however, to purchase such supplies from wholesale grocers who have institutional price lists. It would be necessary to purchase in larger quantities, but a study of the records would make it possible to estimate the quantity required for a specific period. By placing larger orders, it would make the home eligible to purchase from wholesale grocers.

General

We can make a general statement that the system employed by this Poor District in recording their transactions is entirely inadequate.

The Directors have no knowledge of the law governing their actions.

No record is kept of the following:

1. Cost of their buildings, furniture, fixtures and equipment.
2. Products raised on the farm or disposal of same.
3. Property that might be turned over by the inmates.
4. Delinquent taxes.
5. Inmates maintained at other institutions.
6. Investigation of needy.
7. Quantities and nature of supplies received at the home.

In addition to the above, we find the books in use insufficient when compared to present bookkeeping methods in use.

In connection with the criticism that no record is kept of property turned over by inmates, we direct your attention to Exhibit "C," where it is shown that in 1925 the sum of $200.00 was received from the Freas Estate, and $192.80 from the Platchek Estate. We did not go into this question in detail in order to find out whether these items represent income from a permanent fund, but it suggests itself to us that there might be similar transactions subsequently.

Although we confined our audit only to the transactions during the year ended December 31, 1931, we learned that there was considerable criticism of the conduct of the affairs of the Poor District during a previous administration. We therefore prepared a summary of annual published reports without audit for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1925, and the calendar year ended December 31, 1927, 1928, 1929, 1930 and 1931—Exhibit "C." An examination of this Exhibit will show that prior to 1931, the expenditures for the home and farm were considerably higher than at the present time. On April 23, 1930, Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson were appointed by the Directors as Steward and Matron, respectively, to succeed Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Staneruck. It is apparent that since this change was made, the affairs of the institution and farm have been conducted in a more orderly and economical manner. But it is to be noted that the salary of each Director was increased from $300.00 to $500.00 per year in 1930.

The records show the following income from the sale of manure on the dates indicated:

April 28, 1930	$ 700.00
May 26, 1930	60.00
July 5, 1930	60.00
August 30, 1930	30.00
November 10, 1930	60.00
February 14, 1931	90.00
August 13, 1931	180.00
November 5, 1931	90.00
July 14, 1932	80.00
Total	$1,350.00

We have been informed that this manure was donated by the city to the Roxborough Poor District. The books show that most of the manure was sold to Thomas E. Mitten for use on his Estate known as Dunroomin Farm. We inquired why, on April 28, 1930, the Income received was $700.00, and were told that the Directors learned that the former Steward, Josiah Staneruck was selling the manure and was not accounting for the revenue obtained therefrom. This amount, therefore, represented the sum that he was obliged to pay into funds of the District.

In order to illustrate the percentage of funds spent for various purposes, in comparison with the total spent during the year ended December 31, 1931, we submit the following:

	Amount	Percentage
Outside Relief	$ 1,074.00	8.29%
Home and Farm	5.572.27	42.96
Other Institutions	4.083.22	31.49
Directors' Salaries	1,500.00	11.57
Audit of Tax Books and Other Expenses	738.99	5.69
Total	$12.968.48	100.00%

A total of $12,968.48 was expended by the Directors during this period, of which 11.57% was paid to themselves and 5.69% was used for audit of tax books and other expenses, resulting in a total of 17.26% spent for audit of tax books and overhead expenses. It is apparent that the Directors pay themselves out of every dollar spent approximately 11½ cents.

We have not had an opportunity to look into the cost of constructing the buildings owned by this Poor District and have been informed by the Directors that such records were probably destroyed, together with other records of the previous administratoin. However, a cash book going back to approximately 1900 is among the books kept at the institution, and it might be possible to trace the cost of construction if we are given sufficient time.

In connection with the above comments, we submit herewith the following described Exhibits and Schedules, which, together, comprise this report:

REPORT UPON AUDIT AND SURVEY OF ACCOUNTS OF THE OVERSEER OF THE POOR OF MORELAND TOWNSHIP APRIL 5, 1924 TO SEPTEMBER 12, 1932

FOREWORD

On August 2, 1932, in the House of Representatives, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, the following Committee was appointed to make investigation of the Poor Districts of Philadelphia:

Herbert S. Royle, Chairman
Albert S. C. Millar
Joseph F. M. Baldi
Herman J. Tahl
Edward Haws

The accounting firms of Laventhol and Krekstein and Thompson and Markel both of Philadelphia, were engaged by this Committee to investigate the affairs of the six Poor Districts in the city of Philadelphia. A partial audit, covering the year ended December 31, 1931, was made and a preliminary report has been prepared of each of the Poor Districts for that period. An additional report, comparing the conduct of the various Poor Districts, and making certain suggestions and recommendations, will be rendered following the completion of the six reports mentioned above.

Committee to Make Investigation of the Poor Districts of Philadelphia:

Gentlemen:

We have examined the books of account and records of the Overseer of the Poor of Morelaad Township for the period April 5, 1924 to September 12, 1932, and submit herewith our comments.

Location

The Consolidation Act of 1854 describes the boundary lines of Moreland Township as follows:

"Beginning at the intersection of the Montgomery County line, and the Horsham and Byberry road, thence eastewardly along the center of said road to the intersection of the center line of the Worthington road and the center line of Worthington road produced to a point (said point being on the center line of Red Lion road produced and about 2,200 feet westward of the intersection of Red Lion road and the Byberry and Bensalem road), thence extending southeastwardly along the center of Red Lion road and the center line of said road produced to a point about 3,700 feet eastward of Academy road, thence extending southwestwardly about 1,700 feet to a point, thence extending southeastwardly about 2,000 feet to the Byberry Creek, thence extendin westward along a line dividing the Township of Moreland from the Township of Lower Dublin and Delaware Township to the line dividing Philadelphia County from Montgomery County, thence northeastward along the said county line to the Horsham and Byberry road and place of beginning."

This Township is located in the Northern part of the Thirty-fifth ward, adjoining Byberry Township on the northeastern side and adjoining Oxford-Lower Dublin Poor District on the southwestern side.

It is interesting to note that the boundaries of the election divisions are not similar to the boundary lines of the Township. Election Division Number 2 of the Thirty-fifth Ward is apparently intended to be Moreland Township, but actually includes a part of Byberry Township in the vicinity of Comerton. Moreland Township also extends in the southwest into a part of the election divisions of both Lower Dublin and Delaware Townships.

As a result of the variance in the boundary lines, property owners located outside of the 2nd election division pay poor taxes to the Overseer of the Poor not elected by them. In fact, the Overseer of the Poor of Moreland Township, while residing in that Township, votes in an election district that is a part of the Oxford and Lower Dublin Poor District.

Elected Officers

Overseer of the Poor

James Bonner, residing at Bensalem Avenue and Red Lion road, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, is known as the Overseer of the Poor of Moreland Township, and has acted in that capacity continuously for approximately twenty years, but was unable to produce an election certificiate. An examination of the general election returns of November 3, 1931 indicates that William P. Bonner was elected as the Overseer of the Poor, therefore James Bonner is acting without official authority. Our report covering Byberry Township will show that William P. Bonner is known and is acting as Overseer of the Poor of the second district of that Township.

Auditor

Abraham Updike was elected on November 3, 1931. No audit has been made since April 6, 1925. At that time J. F. Delaney and Abraham Updike signed a statement as auditors, certifying to the correctness of the cash balance, but left the space for the amount blank. Up to the present time, the amount has not been inserted and is indicative of the incompleteness of their audit.

Salaries

During the period from 1924 to 1932 the Overseer received Compensation in the amount of $50.00 and two Auditors received payment of $2.00 each. Compensation is apparently arranged at the discretion of the Overseer.

Historical Background

Among the records in possession of the Overseer of the Poor we found a cash record book showing that this Poor District has functioned since 1786. We are unable to find any laws governing this body nor any By-laws or minutes. We conclude therefore that this Poor District was formed prior to the above date and has followed through the various customs that were common at that time without any improvement up to the present time. The Overseer is unable to inform us where he derives his authority or under what law he operates.

Functions of the Overseer

Taxes are assessed and collected only for such years as are determined necessary by the Overseer. His records show that he assessed taxes for the years 1925, 1926 and 1927. No tax has been assessed since then.

During the period that we have examined we find that small amounts were paid for outside relief and only one inmate was committed to an institution. On Exhibit "A" it is shown that over a period of nine years only $603.94 was expended on outside relief. It is shown on that exhibit that during the same period one inmate, Lamar Ridge, was maintained at an institution at a total cost of $587.97 from December 1, 1923 to February 26, 1925.

Method of Operation

Outside Relief

We are showing below the manner in which the total sum of $603.84 was expended for outside relief from April 5, 1924 to September 12, 1932.

Paid to	Groceries and Milk	Coal	Shoes and Clothing	Medicine
James Bonner	$ 156.16
Stewart Reedman	6.86
B. White	4.11
A. D. White	20.16
Kirsch and Frisch	31.70
American Stores	3.75
Abbott's Dairies	57.20
Maderia Hill		$ 13.50
Perry-Gerbron Company		265.50
Mrs. A. Erwin			$35.00
M. A. J. Roseman, M. D.				$ 10.00
Totals	$ 279.94	$ 279.00	$ 35.00	$ 10.00

No relief orders are issued and in many cases no record is kept of those who receive the relief. When a resident of Moreland Township makes application for relief, if the Overseer thinks the Applicant worthy, he either receives some products from the Overseer's farm or is permitted to purchase from a merchant a limited amount. In the above Schedule it is evident that James Bonner, the Overseer, received payment of $156.16 or over 50 per cent of the total amount expended for groceries and milk.

Taxes

The tax rate is eight mills on Real Estate and fifty cents for each tenant of a farm. As previously stated, no taxes have been assessed since 1927.

The tax duplicate is prepared by the Overseer by obtaining from the Real Estate Assessor a list showing the asesssed values of Real Estate in the Township. It is then copied into a small composition book, such as used in grade schools, partly in pencil and partly in ink. If a bill is prepared the amount of the tax is shown opposite the assesment and if payment is received a check mark (v) is placed beside the amount. No date of payment is indicated any place.

We find that the tax duplicate is very incomplete as most assesments are omitted. As a result of this approximately only 50 per cent of the taxes for 1925, 1926, and 1927 have been collected. The following Schedule will illustrate the point.

	Total	1927	1926	1925
Assessments ..	$ 5,004,700.	$ 2,043.700.	$ 1,760,100.	$ 1,200,900.
At 8 Mills	$ 4,003.76	$ 1,634.96	$ 1,408.08	$ 960.72
Taxes Collected	2,080.42	853.62	762.74	464.06
Taxes Delinquent.	$ 1,923.34	$ 781.34	$ 645.34	$ 496.66

On Exhibit "A" you will note that the tax collections for the above years are shown as $2,172.18 or a difference of $91.76 as compared with tax collections shown in tax duplicates. This difference is due to inaccuracies in the records of the Overseer and cannot be reconciled or explained by him.

Due to the incompleteness of the Overseer's records he is not conscious of the extent of the delinquent taxes. He was unable to furnish us with a delinquent tax record and it was necessary to prepare our own record of a tax duplicate. This disclosed total delinquent tax for the years 1925, 1926, 1927 of $1,923.34 and does not include delinquent taxes for prior years.

We have learned that no penalties nor interest are charged to delinquent taxpayers. It is apparent that the Overseer makes his own rules regulating this subject and has explained that he does not feel justified in charging interest and penalties in view of the fact that he does not prepare and deliver to the taxpayers any bills in an orderly or systematic way. He feels that by his own negligence that he is as much at fault in failing to collect the taxes in time as the taxpayers are in failing to remit.

Numerous differences and errors in the tax duplicate have been discovered partially due to the fact that 1925 assessed valuations were used in the preparation of the 1926 and 1927 tax duplicates

General

After carefully considering all facts in connection with the operation of this Poor District it is difficult for us to see how its continuance can be justified. There seems to be very little action on the part of the Overseer in the administration of outside relief.

This is illustrated by the fact that only $603.94 was spent for this purpose over a period of nine years. There also seems to be very little necessity for maintaining inmates at institutions. This was explained in a previous part of this report when it was shown that over a period of nine years only one person was committed to an institution and since February 26, 1925 one else has received such support. Your attention is also invited to the fact that when the County Trust Company was closed by the Banking Department in 1931 a balance of $2,497.02 was on deposit. Since then $49.40 was received in partial liquidation of this balance leaving $1,997.62 remaining. It is therefore apparent that up until that time this Poor District, although assessing taxes only at infrequent intervals, was able to accumulate a cash balance of more than the amount of taves collected over a period of eight years. It is customary for Governmental bodies to have their Bank Balance guaranteed by a Bonding Company. If this procedure were followed by the Overseer it would have saved the taxpayers the possibility of losing all or a part of the balance described above.

We have been informed that under the Talbot act the sum of $437.13 was given to the Overseer of the Poor of Moreland Township for outside relief. Having in mind the extent of delinquent taxes uncollected at that time it would appear that this money could have been applied to a more worthy District. The failure to collect delinquent taxes is due more to the negligence of the Overseer than to the inability of the taxpayer to meet his obligations.

There is attached herewith Exhibit "A," Cash receipts and Disbursements. April $, 1924 to September 12, 1932.

REPORT UPON AUDIT AND SURVEY OF ACCOUNTS OF THE OVERSEERS OF THE POOR OF BYBERRY TOWNSHIP FEBRUARY 1, 1919 TO SEPTEMBER 12, 1932.

FOREWORD

On August 2, 1932, in the House of Representatives, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, the following Committee was appointed to make investigation of the Poor Districts of Philadelphia:

Herbert S. Royle, Chairman
Albert S. C. Millar
Joseph F. M. Baldi
Herman J. Tahl
Edward Haws

The Accounting Firms of Laventhol & Krekstein and Thompson & Markel, both of Philadelphia, were engaged by this Committee to investigate the affairs of the six Poor Districts in the city of Philadelphia. A partial audit covering the year ended December 31, 1931, was made and a Preliminary Report has been prepared of each of the Poor Districts for that period. An additional report, comparing the conduct of the various Poor Districts, and making certain suggestions and recommendations, will be rendered following the completion of the six reports mentioned above.

Committee to Make Investigation of The Poor Districts of Philadelphia:

Gentlemen:

We have examined the books of account and records of the Overseers of the Poor of Byberry Township for the period from February 1, 1919 to September 12, 1932, and submit herewith our comments.

The Consolidation Act of 1854 describes the boundary lines of Byberry Township as follows:

"Beginning at the intersection of the Montgomery County and the Byberry and Horsham Road, thence eastwardly along the centre of said road to the intersection of the centre line of the Worthington Road, thence southwardly along the centre line of Worthington Road and the centre line produced to a point (said point being on the centre line of Red Loan Road produced and about 2,200 feet westward of the intersection of Red Lion Road and the Byberry and Bensalem Road), thence extending southwestward along the centre of Red Lion Road and the centre line produced to a point about 3,700 feet eastward of Academy Road, thence extending southwestwardly about 1,700 feet to a point, thence extending southeastwafdly about 2,000 feet to the Byberry Creek, thence extending northeastwardly along the centre of Byberry Creek, thence extending northeastwardly along the centre of Byberry Creek to the centre of Poquessing Creek, thence extending northwardly and westwardly along the centre of Poquessing Creek in its various courses to the line dividing Bucks County from Philadelphia County, thence extending southwardly along the said county line about 2,000 feet to a point, thence extending northwestwardly along the said county line and the centre of County Line or Southampton Road to the intersection of the county line of Philadelphia, Montgomery and Bucks Counties, thence extending southwestwardly along the county line dividing Philadelphia County from Montgomery County to the intersection of the centre line of the Horsham and Byberry Road and place of beginning."

Byberry Township is located in the extreme northwestern section of the Thirty-Fifth Ward. It adjoins Moreland Township on the East, Montgomery County on the West and Bucks County on the North and Northeast.

The first Election Division of the Thirty-Fifth Ward is intended to comprise Byberry Township. In addition to this, Byberry Township extends into the second election division, which is intended to comprise Moreland Township. As a direct result of this variance in the boundary lines, taxpayers residing in the Byberry section of the Second Election Division, vote for an Overseer of the Poor for Moreland Township, and do not have an opportunity to elect the Overseer in Byberry Township.

Elected Officers

Overseers of the Poor

An examination of the general election returns for November 3, 1931 indicates that Edwin K. Bonner, residing at Comley and Academy Road, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, was elected as the Overseer of the Poor of Byberry Township.

As a matter of actual fact, this township was arbitrarily divided into two sections several years ago. Edwin K. Bonner, continuing to function in the section south of Bensalem Avenue, and William P. Bonner, acting as Overseer of the Poor in the section north of Bensalem Avenue, and William P. Bonner, acting as Overseer of the Poor in the section north of Bensalem Avenue, in the vicinity of Somerton.

The effect of this arbitrary division, and the differences between the boundary lines of the Election Divisions and the Township has resulted in the following condition.

1. James Bonner, residing in Moreland Township, though not within the Election Division, which elects the Overseer of the Poor of that Township, is acting as Overseer of the Poor of Moreland. He was not elected to that office, according to the general election returns of November 3, 1931, and is explained in our report on Moreland Township.

2. William P. Bonner, residing in Byberry Township was elected in November, 1931, as Overseer of the Poor of Moreland Township, but does not function in that Township. Instead, he is acting as Overseer of the Poor of a portion of Byberry Township.

3. Edwin K. Bonner, residing in Byberry Township was elected as Overseer of the Poor of that Township, but does not function in that territory as a whole. As previously explained, William P. Bonner has been orbitrarily assigned the northwestern section of that Township.

Auditor

Alvin McMullin was elected as auditor of Byberry Township, November 3, 1931.

We note that the accounts of Edwin K. Bonne rhave not been audited since September 4, 1929. The records of William P. Bonner have not been audited since December 28, 1925.

This is fairly indicative of the lax manner in which the affairs of both of these Overseers are handled.

Salaries

We are informed that the Overseer of the Poor is entitled to compensation of 5% of taxes collected. Edwin K. Bonner paid himself $55.00 in the period from February 1, 1919 to September 12, 1932, although he collected $1,353.85 in taxes and was entitled to $67.69. On the other hand, William P. Bonner collected $918.60 in taxes, during the period from January 2, 1925 to September 24, 1932, and was entitled to $45.93, but received nothing as compensation. The auditor received no salary.

Historical Background

Among the records in possession of Edwin K. Bonner, we found a cash record book, showing that this Poor District has functioned since 1753. The Overseers were unable to refer us to any laws governing this body, and there are no by-laws or minutes. We must, therefore, assume that the Overseers do not know by what rights they obtain their authority, or if they are conducting their office properly. We direct your attention to the fact that the Township was apparently divided into two sections, without any regard to proper legal procedure.

Functions of the Overseer

Taxes are assessed and collected only for such years as are determined by the Overseers. According to the records, Edwin K. Bonner made assessments for the years 1924 and 1930. No assessments has been made since then. William P. Bonner made assessments for the years 1918 and 1929, and none for the years 1930, 1931 and 1932.

During the period under review, we find that small amounts were paid for outside relief, and several needy were committed to institutions. The extent of the relief granted by Edwin K. Bonner is shown on Exhibit "A." On Exhibit "B" is shown the amount of relief granted by William P. Bonner.

Under the terms of the will of John Hearts, dated May 30, 1702, the Overseers of the Poor of Byberry Township in the County of Philadelphia, were bequeathed one acre of land to be used as a Paupers' Burial Ground "Forever."

Method of Operation—Edwin K. Bonner

Outside Relief

The total sum expended for Outside Relief by Edwin K. Bonner for the period from February 1, 1919 to September 12, 1932 amounted to $833.63 and is detailed as follows:

Byberry—1st District—Edwin K. Bonner

Paid to	Groceries and Milk	Wood Coal and Electric Bills
E. K. Bonner	$ 72.25	$ 37.00
Wm. E. Ervin and Son	33.00

Wilter H. Terry and Company		7.50
Terry-Gerbron Company		287.13
Philadelphia Electric Co.		3.70
Totals	$ 346.75	$ 491.88

We wish to point out that no relief orders are issued. Mr. Bonner apparently arranging directly with the Merchants for all purchases. Among the papers, we found receipts for most of these purchases, but there is no record indicating that the needy actually received the merchandise listed. In the above list, you will find that Edwin K. Bonner received a total of $109.25 or approximately 12½% of the amount expended for outside relief.

On Exhibit "A," you will note that a total of $90.00 was spent for funerals, as shown below:

1930	15.00
	$90.00

In addition to the above, the Overseer administered the Talbot Relief to the extent of $267.11, through his usual Bank Account. In this connection, it is interesting to note that the Overseer not only did not use relief orders as prescribed by the Talbot Act, but that in a majority of the cases, he drew checks to the order of the recipients. A summary of the manner in which these funds were expended is indicated below:

Paid to	Total Relief	Amount of Checks Drawn to Order of Recipient	Am't of Cks. Drawn to Order of Merchants	Amount of Check to Order of Bonner
Frank McCloskey	$ 67.67	$ 57.00	$ 10.67
Regina Dunn	68.40	50.00	18.40
Wilson Mackrell	59.75	48.00	11.75

Charles C. Howeyer	6.00	6.00
Totals	$ 267.11	$ 185.00	$ 62.61	$ 19.50

Maintenance of Inmates in Institutions

During the period of 1919 to 1932, three patients were committed to the Philadelphia General Hospital at a total cost of $341.24. The details follow:

Year	Patients	Weekly Rate	Amount
1920	Owen Knight	$ 3.00	$ 94.06
1925 and 1926	De Francesco and Family	9.73	86.03
1927	Charles Hausman	12.00	161.15
Total			$ 341.24

Taxes

The Tax Rate was five mills for the years 1924 and 1930 when taxes were collected No penalties or interest are charged for delinquent payment. No proper record is kept, either of taxes collectible or of the taxes paid. In order to prepare the tax duplicate, Mr. E. K. Bonner obtained a list of assessments from Louis Farrel, Real Estate Assessor. The type of book in use is a very crude affair, and our audit reveals that many assessments are omitted. There is no doubt that important information, such as Unpaid Taxes and Assessments should be kept in a substantial book, so that it becomes a permanent record, and there also is no doubt that the informatoin should be kept in a methodical manner, so that anyone examining the records could get a complete and comprehensive picture of the condition of affairs

The total assessment for this district, according to our analysis of the City Assessment Records, totalled $2,388,050.00, for the year 1930. The Total Tax Collectible at the rate of five mills is $1,194.03. Tax collections on the 1930 assessments to September 12, 1932, amounted to $710.58, leaving a balance collectible of $483.45, which is equal to an assessment of $966,900.00.

In order to show the amount of Delinquent Tax, it was necessary for us to practically construct a tax duplicate, because the Overseers' records were incomplete No record is kept of Delinquent Taxes from prior years. We find that no penalties or Interest are collected on Delinquent Tax.

Method of Operation—William P. Bonner

Outside Relief

During the period from January 2, 1925 to September 24, 1932, William P. Bonner spent a total of $86.33 for Outside Relief. We are listing below how this amount was expended:

Groceries	$ 33.18
Coal	19.15
Medical Services	34.00
Total	$ 86.33

In connection with the above disbursements, it should be noted that the Overseer withdrew funds from his savings account totalling $129.35, from which the above items of Outside Relief were apparently paid. The balance remaining on the above transactions has evidently been added to the balance of Cash on Hand, which, on September 24, 1932, amounted to $70.17. Among the papers, we found receipted invoices covering these disbursements, but were unable to secure cancelled checks.

Maintenance of Inmates in Institutions:

During the period under review, one inmate was confined in institutions at a total cost of $714.14 as follows:

Year	Institution	Amount Paid	Weekly Rate
1928	Bureau of Hospitals—Philadelphia General	$ 36.90	$ 19.60
	Bureau of Charities—Holmesburg	56.00	3.40
1929	Bureau of Charities—Holmesburg	89.37	3.40
1930	Bureau of Charities—Holmesburg	177.29	3.40
1931	Bureau of Charities—Holmesburg	177.29	3.40
1932	Bureau of Charities—Holmesburg	177.29	3.40
Total		$ 714.14

Taxes

Taxes were assessed by William P. Bonner for the year 1929, at the rate of five mills. According to information compiled by us from City records, we find that the total assessed value of the property in this district for that year amounted to $1,600.075.00 The Total Tax Collectible, on this Assessment would amount to $800.04. As a matter of fact, the Overseer shows collections on account of this Assessment, per Exhibit "B," of $915.30. The excess of collections over the amount collectible is partially accounted for by the fact that the Overseer made collections on certain property for years, in which there was no assessment. As an illustration, we note on Page 44 of the tax duplicate, that an item of $36.75 was received September 17, 1930, covering Poor Tax for the year 1930. This is undoubtedly discrimination, because no taxes were assessed for 1930, and indicates the looseness of the manner in which the collections are made. From the total amount of $915.30 collected for taxes, during the period referred to, collections of $264.25 were on Real Estate that could not be located among the properties included in this Poor District. It is possible that the names of these Taxpayers were different than those appearing on the Assessors List or that the properties were not in Wiliam P. Bonner's territory. If proper records were kept, errors of this nature would not occur.

No separate record is kept by the Overseer of Delinquent Taxes, and in view of inaccuracies, that were explained above, we did not prepare a list, showing the delinquencies. We note that apparently no Interest or Penalties for Delinquent Payments are collected.

General

Our comments in this report should indicate the confused condition of the affairs of the Overseers of the Poor in Byberry Township. It is also shown that the amount of taxes collected, and the functions of the Overseers are negligible. If this Poor District is permitted to continue its activities, an effort should be made not only to install proper records, but also to settle properly, and in a legal way, the boundary lines of both the Township and the Election Divisions.

We have pointed out that Edwin K. Bonner collected Poor Taxes in 1924 and 1930, whereas William P. Bonner collected Poor Tax in 1929. It seems to us that no difference should exist in the years that taxes are collected as it must be very confusing to the property owners, especially if they vote in the same election division.

On Exhibit "A," you will not that Edwin K. Bonner had on deposit in the County Trust Company, a closed institution, a balance of $221.40. This deposit is not covered by a bond.

There is attached herewith the following described Exhibits:

SUMMARY REPORT UPON THE SIX POOR DISTRICTS OF PHILADELPHIA WITH RECOMMENDATIONS FOR THE YEAR ENDED DECEMBER 31, 1931

FOREWORD

On August 2, 1932, in the House of Representatives, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, the following Committee was appointed to make investigation of the Poor Districts of Philadelphia:

Herbert S. Royle, Chairman
Albert S. C. Millar
Joseph F. M. Baldi
Herman J. Tahl
Edward Haws

The accounting firms of Laventhol & Krekstein and Thompson & Markel both of Philadelphia, were engaged by this Committee to investigate the affairs of the six Poor Districts in the city of Philadelphia. A partial audit, covering the year ended December 31, 1931, was made and a preliminary report has been prepared of each of the Poor Districts for that period. The final report, comparing the conduct of the various Poor Districts, and making certain suggestions and recommendations, is submitted herewith.

Committee to Make Investigation of the Poor Districts of Philadelphia:

Gentlemen:

Pursuant to engagement, we have examined the books of account and records of the Poor Districts of Philadelphia for the year ended December 31, 1931, and have rendered separate reports on each of the six Districts on the dates listed as follows:

November 28, 1932—Moreland Poor District
November 30, 1932—Roxborough Poor District
December 2, 1932—Byberry Poor District
December 6, 1932—Oxford and Lower Dublin Poor District
December 14, 1932—Bristol Poor District
December 19, 1932—Germantown Poor District

In order that you may have a comparison of the transactions of the six Poor Districts for the period under review, and so that we make certain suggestions and recommendations, we submit herewith our comments and the following described Exhibit and Schedules:

Exhibit "A"

Comparison of summary statements of cash receipts and disbursements for the year ended December 31, 1931.

Schedule No. 1—Outside Relief for the year ended December 31, 1931.

Schedule No. 2—Maintenance of Home and Farm for the year ended December 31, 1931.

Schedule No. 3—Maintenance of Inmates in Other Institutions for the year ended December 31, 1931.

Schedule No. 4—Cost of Tax Collections for the year ended December 31, 1931.

Schedule No. 5—Overhead Expenses and Distribution to Various Functions for the year ended December 31, 1931.

It is our understanding that this investigation has been instituted as a result of widespread criticism of the conduct of the poor districts in Philadelphia. Our aim has been to impartially survey and summarize the operations of these independent Public Welfare Agencies so that it would be possible for you to see whether the criticism is justified and so that you could instigate legislation to remedy any unsound condition if you find the facts would warrant such action. In view of the fact that most of the funds used in the administration of the poor districts are obtained by taxation of real estate, it is of importance to the public in general to know and feel that the officials in charge of the affairs of these agencies are expending such funds wisely and economically.

It is to be remembered that there are six independent poor districts in Philadelphia that function in addition to the county Department of Welfare, and it would be unfair to subject all of the agencies to a criticism that is applicable to only one or two. For that reason it is necessary that an individual study be made of each poor district, and we have rendered separate reports on each.

In 1854, when the city of Philadelphia consolidated with the surrounding townships and boroughs in the county of Philadelphia, a number of these townships and boroughs were permitted to collect their own poor taxes and care for their own poor and unemployed. These have developed into the six independent poor districts that are a subject for this investigation.

Practically all of the six districts were formed at different periods and under separate Acts of Legislature. We were able to trace the origin of some of them to the time prior to the formation of the United States. Most of the recent laws governing the poor districts of Pennsylvania have excluded from their provisions the six poor districts in Philadelphia and therefore, it is not surprising to find little evidence of uniformity in their operation.

We find that all of the districts administer outside relief to the needy, and all support inmates in other institutions, although Moreland Township has maintained no one since 1925. Roxborough, Germantown and Oxford and Lower Dublin each maintain a farm and almshouse, but the other three districts operate no institution. The tax rates vary among the different districts, and methods of collection are not similar in most instances. In Roxborough, an arrangement has been made with the receiver of taxes of the City of Philadelphia to collect their poor taxes at no cost, but they receive no interest and penalties for delinquent taxes. In Germantown, an office for the collection of taxes is operated in the town hall without payment of rent and the tax collectors are paid a commission. In Bristol, an office is rented and the tax collectors are paid a salary. In Oxford and Lower Dublin, three collectors are employed on a commission basis and they maintain their own offices. In Moreland and Byberry, the overseesrs of the poor assess and collect taxes at irregular intervals, and their rate of compensation is indefinite. It is also noted that the number and the titles of the officials, as well as their compensation, vary. This is shown clearly on Exhibit "A," Schedule No. 5. We could proceed almost indefinitely to illustrate the lack of uniformity among the different poor districts, but rather than do this, we refer you to the attached exhibit and schedules.

Our reports upon each of the poor districts have been abundant with criticism, and in some instances, indicate waste of taxpayers' funds, as well as mismanagement. We have pointed out the fact that some of the poor districts have administered very little relief, and are uneconomically managed. It might be suggested that this condition could be easily overcome by the abolition of the six poor districts, and that the territory they embrace be combined with the Philadelphia County Poor Board. If this course is pursued, it would be unnecessary for us to make any recommendations, but we find that, in spite of our critcisms, some of the poor districts are performing a very necessary and useful function.

Our chief point of criticism has not been the fact that improper relief has geen granted, but the fact that the affairs of the six Poor Districts have been improperly supervised. It should be remembered that the laws governing the conduct of these Poor Districts are antiquated, and have not kept pace with the increase in population, nor with the changing conditions. Although new laws affecting Poor Relief in other parts of the Commonwealth have been placed on the Statute Books, no change has been provided to properly control the six Independent Poor Districts in Philadelphia. This, in our opinion, is the chief cause for the misconduct of the affairs under discussion.

We also wish to point out that if the six Poor Districts would be abolished or combined with the County Poor Board, there would arise the problem of supporting approximately 200 paupers who are now maintained at the three Almshouses conducted by Roxborough, Germantown, and Oxford and Lower Dublin. We are advised that the institution maintained by the county at Byberry is now overcrowded, and in order to take in additionl inmates, it would be necessary to increase the present capacity of the Home.

Our investigation has disclosed that about 4,700 families have received relief through the agency of the six Poor Districts during 1931, although, in our opinion, more relief could have been granted if their affairs were more economically managed. This strengthens our opinion that if adequate legislation would be enacted, the good features of their present operation would be continued, but the waste eliminated.

Recommendations

Outside Relief:

On Exhibit "A," Schedule No. 1, we show that $274,633.29 was the total cost of Outside Relief, including overhead, during 1931. In our reports upon the various Poor Districts, we pointed out that all groceries were purchased at retail prices. Our investigation of the unit prices paid for the provisions disclosed that no attempt was made to buy from merchants whose prices were lower. We also observed that no supervision is exercised over the selection of foods made by the needy and have pointed out that, in addition to overpaying for the various provisions, they were frequently purchased delicacies in preference to nourishing foods.

We suggest that one warehouse be maintained under the direction of a competent purchasing agent, who would buy all food at wholesale prices, after advertising for competitive bids. This same person could supervise the selection of foods assigned to the needy. Therefore, all orders would be drawn upon the central warehouse and, in our opinion, at least 20% could be saved. During 1931, $198,567.08 was spent for groceries alone, and this would result in a saving of approximately $40,000.00.

In comparing the prices paid for coal, it was noted that a higher price was being paid in certain Districts. If competitive bids were invited, a considerable saving could be effected, especially if the bids of the six Districts were combined. The total amount spent for coal in 1931 was $39,630.45.

In connection with shoes and clothing, it was illustrated by the Germantown District that a considerable saving was effected by purchasing from the Department of Prison Welfare. The other Districts purchased all shoes at retail prices from local merchants. The total expended for shoes and clothing during the year ended December 31, 1931, was $7,153.34.

Since writing this report we note a news article in the Public Ledger of January 10, 1933, explaining that the York County Emergency Relief Board has put into operation a plan for distributing food to the needy, similar to the one we are recommending. We quote as follows:

> "More than a thousand persons were provided with food at the commissary of the York County Emergency Relief Board, which opened today. Three floors in a building on West Clark Avenue are occupied, and the display of groceries and provisions is notable.
> "The commissary will do away with the store order system and will enable the needy to receive a greater amount of food for the money expended per individual than heretofore. Nurses are on hand for the benefit of health advice. One aim is balanced rations for families to conserve the health of 10,000 persons in distress during the present emergency period."

Maintenance of Home and Farm

We direct your attention to Exhibit "A," Schedule No. 2, upon which we point our that $65,665.93 was spent for the upkeep of 184 inmates during 1931. This cost does not include the value of produce raised on the farm, depreciation on Buildings and Equipment, nor interest on the value of Capital invested.

The per capita cost of supporting each inmate per week in Oxford and Lower Dublin is $6.51; in Germantown $6.98; and in Roxborough $7.91. The value of the land and buildings used for this purpose in the three districts totals $975,557.75. If this money would be invested to yield 4%, the amount earned per annum would be $39,022.00. Some consideration, therefore, should be given to the fact that the value of the land and buildings should be included in arriving at the total cost of maintaining the inmates. In the case of Roxborough, it is evident at a glance that for the reason that the number of patients supported during 1931 was only 16, the per capita cost was approximately $1.00 a week more than in the other institutions. It should also be noted that the value of their land and building is $120,000.00, and is out of proportion to the number of inmates supported there.

We have explained in our reports covering the three institutions that with the exception of coal, none of the supplies are purchased by properly advertising for competitive bids. We found that with the exception of Germantown, prices paid are excessive. We were unable to properly compare the prices in Germantown because the information was not available. It is surprising to also observe that no proper record is kept showing the quantities of supplies received.

We find that during the year ended December 31, 1931, $4,859.26 was spent for the upkeep of the three farms, although no proper record was kept showing the value of the produce raised. It is our opinion that each of the farms with the possible exception of Roxborough, was operated at a loss.

It has been brought to our attention that in Germantown and in Oxford and Lower Dublin, the officials indulge in frequent banquets and supply themselves with cigars and refreshments. In our opinion, funds intended for the relief of the poor and unemployed should be applied to a more worthy purpose.

After giving the subject careful consideration, we feel certain that considerable economies could be effected by maintaining one almshouse instead of three. It is our opinion that the Germantown Home could accommodate 200 inmates, and consequently has a capacity sufficient to house the combined inmates of the three almshouses. In this connection, we wish to point out that the laundry and kitchen in Germantown is of recent construction and is suitable for the accommodation of at least 200 inmates. It might be necessary to have two settings in the dining room.

The economies that would be effected by this action, in payroll and other expenses, would amount to at least $18,000.00 per annum, without considering the saving that could be effected by proper buying of food and supplies.

We also bring to your attention the fact that instead of using land and buildings valued at $975,557.75, it would only be necessary to use the land and buildings in Germantown, valued at only $280,557.75. In addition to this saving, if the land and buildings used by Roxborough and Oxford and Lower Dublin would revert to private ownership, the assessed valuation of the land and buildings would be subject to city tax of about $20,000.00 per annum. And if the real estate would be sold, the poor districts would have the use of the proceeds obtained therefrom.

We also recommend that a proper system of accounting be installed and that periodical audits be made.

Maintenance of Inmates in Other Institutions

During the year ended December 31, 1931, the total amount paid, including overhead, for maintaining 656 inmates in other institutions was $97,291.64.

On Exhibit "A," Schedule No. 3, it is pointed out that Germantown has paid only one-half of the invoices received from the Philadelphia General Hospital since January 1, 1930; that Oxford and Lower Dublin has made no payment to the Philadelphia General Hospital since early in 1931, and on December 9, 1932, owed $34,284.58 to them and on the same date owed for unpaid invoices from Byberry the sum of $2,377.68; and that Bristol made no payments to the Philadelphia General Hospital and to Byberry during 1931, owing a total on December 15, 1932, of $69,689.88.

It is evident that this condition is improper and steps should be taken to see that the invoices are paid or adjusted.

Tax Collections

We show on Exhibit "A," Schedule No. 4, that the total spent for tax collections during the year ended December 31, 1931, was $42,651.73, or 11.27% of tax collections. The cost of tax collections in Roxborough was 2.16%; in Germantown 13.4%; in Oxford and Lower Dublin 8.54%; and in Bristol 12.9%. In view of the fact that the cost of tax collection was the least in Roxborough, it is apparent that their method of tax collection is the most economical. We have previously pointed out that Roxborough has arranged with the receiver of taxes of Philadelphia to collect the poor tax for them at the same time that other city taxes are collected. If this same procedure would be adopted by the other poor districts, it would result in an economy of at least $35,000.00 per year. In addition to that, it would be a great convenience to the taxpayers to make payment to one tax collector instead of two. It is also suggested that the tax rates be the same in all poor districts.

We have pointed out in our previous reports the fact that the present system of bookkeeping in use in connection with tax collections is inadequate. If the present method of tax collection is to be continued it is important that a proper uniform system of accounts should be installed for each district. It is, however, our recommendation that all taxes should be collected by the receiver of taxes.

Overhead

We believe that considerable economy in overhead expenses could be effected. This is especially true of Oxford and Lower Dublin. On Exhibit "A," Schedule No. 5, we show their overhead during 1931 was $21,378.08. When compared to the amounts spent by the other poor districts, it will be noted that it exceeds any of the others by at least $10,000.00. An analysis of the various items appearing under their overhead shows that they expended as salaries $4,000.00 for their eight directors, whereas the most spent by any other district was $2,100.00. It is also noted that they spent $4,900.00 for investigators, although the most spent by any other board was $2,400.00. We also bring to your attention the fact that they spent $2,000.00 in 1931 for convention expenses, or at least $1,000.00 more than any other district.

A general review of each item of overhead could certainly develop economies of at least $10,000.00 per year.

General

Bearing in mind principally the savings that can be effected, and at the same time not changing the nature and scope of the present relief that is granted, it is our suggestion that the present six poor districts be combined into one. This would immediately avoid conflict in boundary lines in the thirty-fifth ward between the Oxford and Lower Dublin, Byberry and Moreland districts, and would make the recommendation previously mentioned more practical. This would be expecially noticeable in connection with the advantages concerning combined purchasing power. It would then be possible to reduce the number of directors, managers, guardians, overseers, solicitors, superintendents, matrons, house physicians, farmers and clerks, and it would also be possible to reduce numerous other expenses.

The economies that we have outlined in this report would aggregate approximately $100,000.00 per annum, or an excess of 20% of the total disbursements of the six Poor Districts during 1931. Under present economic conditions, it is the complaint of the officials of all of the Poor Districts that they are unable to meet the increased demands for relief with their available funds. The savings that we suggested would make it possible to grant increased relief without increasing the poor tax rate, or, on the other hand, it would be possible to decrease the tax rate if it is unnecessary to increase the amount of relief.

If it is impractical to combine the six Poor Districts into one, it is suggested that at least Byberry and Moreland be combined with Oxford and Lower Dublin, in view of the fact that these districts are located in the same ward and the relief granted by them has been insignificant during the past ten years. This is more fully explained in our reports covering these three districts. It is also suggested that Roxborough be combined with Germantown because they have granted outside relief to only 23 families in 1931; they are maintaining only 16 inmates in their own institution and 31 inmates in other institutions.

In all events, whichever plan is adopted, it is important that a uniform and appropriate system of accounts be installed and that proper audit should be made every year. We find that Germantown is the only district that prepares a budget each year of revenue anticipated and expenditures estimated. It is fundamental, in the conduct of all public affairs, that a budgetary system be employed.

Hearing before the Legislative Committee held in Room 254, City Hall, Philadelphia, September 14, 1932.

The meeting was called to order at 3:00 o'clock P. M. by Honorable Sheppard Royle, chairman.

Present: Messrs. Royle (chairman), Albert S. C. Millar (secretary of committee), Herman J. Tahl, Edward Haws and Joseph F. N. Baldi.

The Chairman: Members of the various Poor Boards, as sponsor of the resolution passed during the last special session of the Legislature I want you members to understand that I—and I think I can speak for the other members of the committee—do not accuse any member of any board of any wrong doings. I only hope when this investigation is over that we can return to the Legislature with a satisfactory report. I will now turn the hearing over to Mr. Baldi.

Mr. Baldi: The first man we would like to hear from is someone from the 42nd Ward.

(Mr. S. Davis Wilson addressed the chair and was recognized. He stated that he was special counsel for the Controller in this matter.)

Mr. Wilson: Gentlemen of the commission, there has been some question as to the right of the Controller to audit the Poor Boards' books of the City of Philadelphia. Some boards have opened their books to the Controller and permitted an audit, and the 42nd Ward is one. Other boards have refused. Of course there is a provision of law for the controller to audit the books.

Mr. Baldi: Will you tell us which ones have refused.

Mr. Wilson: Of course there is a provision, as I have said, for the audit of the books by the Controller. In reply to the question by Mr. Baldi, I think we can give you that information later. Our position is that although they have a right to have their own auditors there is nothing to exclude the fiscal officer of the county from auditing any public funds. He has charge of that under the constitution. So we propose to audit these books no matter who else may audit them, and as to those that refused, we intend to have the question determined judicially. In the audit made so far we found that the auditors in the 42nd Ward never examined the books, they just looked at the headings and totals and gave their certificates. Certainly the condition of the books would indicate that they have not been audited by an auditor, because on examining them I think you will agree with me that a proper audit could not have been made. I feel that there ought to be a number of constructive improvements made. If I am not going out of bounds I would like to say that we feel, after studying the question, that the boards ought to be abolished; I mean these many different boards in the different wards, these wards being a part of the City of Philadelphia, and that these poor, that the wards ought to be handled as any other wards in the City of Philadelphia, and that to abolish them would save money. They have high payrolls and I think you will find their methods lax in administering the poor board awards. In this particular case we find that figures have been erased and other figures substituted. For instance, where there was an assessment of $660,000, the second figure 6 was erased and a cipher substituted, making $600,000. The collector came in voluntarily this morning and made a statement that he had taken some $3,000.

Mr. Baldi: Who was this collector?

Mr. Wilson: His last name is Cameron. He has been a collector for 13 years, and this shortage was only for the year 1931.

Mr. Baldi: He volunteered this information himself?

Mr. Wilson: Yes. I advised him to wait for counsel and even offered to find him counsel, but he wanted to make a clean breast of it. He said he did not derive any benefit from it, that he turned the money over to the ward leader in sums of $175 to $800, and in one case cashed a check for $500 and the check came back.

Mr. Baldi: Upon your examination of the books do you find the facts to be as you have just stated?

Mr. Wilson: Absolutely. We have the auditor from the controller's office and if you would like to have him tell you what he found I think he can tell you.

Mr. Baldi: You have made a general statement and I think the gentleman ought to be sworn.

Mr. Tahl: I think that would be a little premature. I suggest that this matter be deferred, with this statement before us, and at the proper time we will take it up.

Mr. Paul Reilly: Mr. Chairman, I represent the Germantown District. The committee might go to the Germantown Almshouse, because they have the facilities there and rooms and things of that sort, where yuo could conduct this investigation very well, and it would save the necessity of bringing a vast amount of records here.

Mr. Tahl: Of course that is subject to the convenience and decision of the committee.

Mr. Reilly: I suggest that this would be a very nice place to meet, probably more convenient and larger than here.

Mr. Wilson: The controller will be glad to cooperate and give you the use of any particular men. We have no interest in the matter except to help you and help the members to see where there may be any faults, so that a constructive program may be adopted in the future until the Legislature may see fit to change the law.

Mr. Baldi: I think it is the proper time to make another statement. There has been no appropriation made for the investigation and payments of the accountants, the clerk and court stenographer, and it will be necessary to have an appropriation passed paying for their services, and only upon passing such an appropriation can the services be paid for. Now, we are going to hear from Mr. Sharpless.

Testimony of Edward A. Sharpless (sworn)

Mr. Baldi: You live at 7636 Forrest Avenue?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes.

Mr. Baldi: And you are at present president of the 42nd Ward poor board?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes.

Mr. Baldi: How long have you been president?

Mr. Sharpless: Since January 7th or 8th, the first meeting in January of this year I was made president.

Mr. Baldi: Who was president before you?

Mr. Sharpless: I believe Mr. Swann was acting as president before I came into the board.

Mr. Baldi: Had he been there a long time?

Mr. Sharpless: I could not say how long.

Mr. Baldi: As president since the beginning of the year you are acquainted with the manner in which the Poor Board operates?

Mr. Sharpless: At present, since about the first meeting in January.

Mr. Baldi: Before that—have you brought with you any of your records?

Mr. Sharpless: I believe we have all our records up to 1932 with us. We have nothing for 1932. I was not requested to bring anything for 1932, I believe, in the subpoena I received.

Mr. Baldi: Will you have them brought up and identified by you so we can have them in the records? Can you identify these as the records for your ward (indicating some books and papers)?

Mr. Sharpless: I can only do so by the letter heads or checks.

Mr. Baldi: Have you the vouchers in there?

Mr. Sharpless: I do not know what is in there. That is before 1932.

Mr. Lieberman: We draw an order on the treasury to make up a check.

(Mr. Lieberman was asked by the stenographer whom he represented and he said he represented the board.)

Mr. Baldi: In what capacity do you represent the board?

Mr. Lieberman: I am attorney for the board. This is a book of the Poor Board of Bristol Township. That is as far as I can say, or that is all I know about it.

Mr. Lieberman: That is an order book.

Mr. Baldi: That just contains the stubs.

Mr. Lieberman: Yes.

Mr. Baldi: Where are the orders?

Mr. Lieberman: They are with the cancelled checks. I think they are in here (indicating). This is another order book. These are the cancelled vouchers attached to the cancelled checks.

(Books marked for identification Exhibits 1, 2 and 3.)

Mr. Baldi: What period of time do your books take in?

Mr. Sharpless: From 1926 until the end of 1931.

(Book 1931 marked Exhibit No. 4.)

Mr. Sharpless: This is the minute book from 1923 to 1930.

(Marked Exhibit No. 5, for identification.)

Mr. Sharpless: This is the financial account book—just a memorandum book.

(Marked Exhibit No. 6 for identification.)

Mr. Sharpless: These checks are from 1926 up to 1931.

Mr. Baldi: Have you a minute book?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes, we have a minute book.

Mr. Baldi: Do these checks represent all the cancelled checks from 1926 up to the present time?

Mr. Lieberman: I think they do. I did not check them myself.

Mr. Sharpless: Not to the present time but up until 1932.

Mr. Baldi: How do you know what should be returned?

Mr. Lieberman: We intended to make a list.

Mr. Baldi: What do they cover?

Mr. Lieberman: From 1926 to the end of 1931. We did not go over each check. There is not an employee on the present board that was on the board prior to 1930.

Mr. Millar: You think they are all the records from 1926 to 1931?

Mr. Sharpless: Inclusive. I will check them personally. These are check stubs dating back to 1926, down to 1931.

Mr. Baldi: Now we have all the orders as far as you know.

Mr. Sharpless: Yes.

Mr. Baldi: And all the checks?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes.

Mr. Baldi: Now, how about the bank books?

Mr. Lieberman: The deposit books?

Mr. Baldi: Yes.

Mr. Lieberman: I will get you the deposit books. We do not have the current minute books but we can have that any time you want it.

Mr. Baldi: When you say current what do you mean?

Mr. Lieberman: From January, 1932.

Mr. Baldi: All right. You can bring that later?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes.

Mr. Lieberman: Now do you want the deposit books?

Mr. Baldi: Yes.

Mr. Lieberman: Any other records?

Mr. Baldi: Mr. Sharpless, tell us how you operate your poor board work.

Mr. Sharpless: In our relief work the applicants apply and we give it to an investigator. The investigator reports back to the director. The director sees whether it is a worthy case. Of course he takes suggestions from the investigator, with his report, and we go by his report. If the director feels it is a worthy case they allow it and if not it is not allowed.

Mr. Millar: Then you issue a relief order, is that what you do next?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes; we send the relief order out.

Mr. Millar: After you pass a case you make out an order?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes. I put my orders in the store.

Mr. Millar: How do you select the merchants to whom you address the orders?

Mr. Sharpless: I try to give it to some merchant as near as possible to the party who is applying for relief.

Mr. Millar: I do not think you understand the point of my question. An order authorizes the person getting relief to get merchandise from some store?

Mr. Sharpless: From a certain store, yes.

Mr. Millar: How many stores do you do business with?

Mr. Sharpless: In my district I think I had 17 stores.

Mr. Millar: How do you select those 17 stores?

Mr. Sharpless: I take the store that is closest by the person that is applying. The people don't take their order out all at once. The merchant marks on the back of the order—he states what each person can have and then of course he marks on that order what they have received, and then they come back to him, maybe two or three times, until the order is filled.

Mr. Millar: Are the orders always in the same account in money?

Mr. Sharpless: No, we make that according to the family.

Mr. Millar: What is the largest order?

Mr. Sharpless: A man and a wife, $1.50; and $1.50 for the family for the week, and 50 cents for each child. We do not always carry that out exactly, because sometimes a man will tell us that his son is making 25 cents a day after school, or perhaps 50 cents, and in cases of that kind I would drop them 50 cents on their order a week.

Mr. Millar: The order has on it the name of the person to get the relief, and his address?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes, the name and address of the person and the merchant.

Mr. Millar: It has the address of the person to get the relief, has it?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes.

Mr. Millar: Is the person getting the relief required to endorse the order before he can cash it?

Mr. Sharpless: No. I put my orders in the store. The grocer tells this applicant "I have this order for you in my store, you come and get it, or I will bring you what you want," and before that order is filled he must sign—that is when they start that order they must sign their name at the bottom, that is the applicant signs the name.

Mr. Tahl: The order is not to the person applying but directly to the storekeeper, it goes to the storekeeper, does it?

Mr. Sharpless: It says that Mr. so-and-so will give so much. It goes to the person and in some cases, where they will apply at their home I will write the order out and I will ask the nearest grocery man.

Mr. Tahl: Am I correct in understanding that only 17 merchants were receiving these orders?

Mr. Sharpless: No, I had 17 or 18 to whom I was giving orders in my district. I have a certain district.

Mr. Tahl: How many merchants have you in your district?

Mr. Sharpless: I could not say how many.

Mr. Tahl: Well, approximately how many?

Mr. Sharpless: I really don't know.

Mr. Tahl: Have you no idea?

Mr. Sharpless: No.

Mr. Millar: What area is your district?

Mr. Sharpless: From Olney Avenue to Cresheim Road, and from Stenton Avenue to the east side of Ogontz Avenue—the west side of Ogontz to the east side of Stenton, I should say.

Mr. Millar: Do you make any investigation to find out whether the person who receives the order is the person who receives the goods?

Mr. Sharpless: Oh, they do receive it. If a person has not received the goods he would not sign the order.

Mr. Lieberman: Here is the form of order we use, if that will help you out (producing form of order).

Mr. Tahl: I would like to ask you this. When an applicant owes money to a particular merchant do you direct them to go to a different merchant or the same merchant to whom the person may owe money?

Mr. Sharpless: They have the privilege of going to the one that is closest by. If they have an indebtedness there, if they owe that man money I don't know about it.

Mr. Tahl: You were asked approximately how many merchants were in your district. Could you not tell us approximately how many there are?

Mr. Sharpless: No I could not. There are all kinds of stores—probably 100 or more.

Mr. Tahl: And you have only chosen 17 of them?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes.

Mr. Millar: When is a merchant paid, do you accumulate these orders until the end of the month?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes.

Mr. Millar: And then the board pays them?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes. He sends the orders in with his bill—a long list of papers and they go out.

Mr. Millar: I understand you hand these orders to one of two people—either the merchant or the person who is to receive the relief?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes.

Mr. Millar: And to no one else?

Mr. Sharpless: No.

Mr. Millar: And you have been in office only since January 1st?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes.

Mr. Millar: Do you personally make out the orders yourself?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes.

Mr. Millar: How many employees has the Poor Board?

Mr. Sharpless: The Poor Boards have about 12 and they have 2 investigators, 2 tax collectors—

Mr. Millar: Can you give us their names and salaries?

Mr. Sharpless: I can give you the salaries and the amounts they are receiving. I thought probably this would be asked for. Tax collectors, 2; $2400 each per year. Delinquent tax collectors, 2 at $1500 each.

Mr. Baldi: They are delinquent tax collectors?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes. Investigators, 2 at $1500 each; 2 clerks—one at $1400 and one at $1500. Business manager, $2500. Four directors $500 each per year. One solicitor, $1250 a year.

Mr. Millar: Will you furnish us a list with the names and addresses and residences of those employes and what other business or occupation they have, if any, besides their work with the Poor Board?

Mr. Sharpless: Well, they have no other occupation. All of them except the directors are at the office. They are working directly for the board.

Mr. Millar: Do you maintain any office now?

Mr. Sharpless: No.

Mr. Millar: How many persons are you paying relief to per week.

Mr. Sharpless: At present?

Mr. Millar: Since you have been in office?

Mr. Sharpless: At our peak time we were carrying anywhere from 1300 to 1400 families in the 42nd Ward.

Mr. Millar: Has that increased or decreased?

Mr. Sharpless: It has diminished since the Talbot money has gone. We have to stop giving out orders.

Mr. Tahl: You said you had 1300 or 1400 families being carried on your list?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes.

Mr. Tahl: And all these families had to go to one or more of the 17 merchants?

Mr. Sharpless: No, no, you do not understand it. When I spoke of the 17 merchants that was my district alone.

Mr. Tahl: How many in your district were you giving relief to?

Mr. Sharpless: I had around 500 at the peak.

Mr. Tahl: And all those 500 had to go to one or more of the 17 merchants?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes.

Mr. Tahl: You say you had to stop distributing funds recently?

Mr. Sharpless: Yes, except pauper cases.

Mr. Tahl: When was that?

Mr. Sharpless: When our Talbot money ran out, two or three weeks ago.

Mr. Tahl: Have the payments to the employes gone on?

Mr. Talbot: Yes, but not out of Talbot money. There was not a penny of the Talbot money spent for the overhead. Everything went for relief—groceries, clothing and food.

Mr. Millar: What is the annual income of the poor district of which you are a member?

Mr. Sharpless: I could not give you that off hand.

Mr. Millar: Who could?

Mr. Sharpless: Probably Mr. Moyer.

Mr. Lieberman: I could give you the information approximately for last year. In taxes about $98,000.

Mr. Millar: You mean that is the current?

Mr. Lieberman: That included current and delinquent. This year we received in the neighborhood of $53,000 out of the Talbot Act funds.

Mr. Millar: In addition to the other?

Mr. Lieberman: Yes.

Mr. Millar: You did not collect these $98,000?

Mr. Lieberman: No, we did not.

Mr. Millar: That is not just what I am trying to get at. I have not made myself clear. On the assessed valuation your income would be a certain figure. What is that figure?

Mr. Lieberman: Last year's due and current taxes would be about $99,000.

Mr. Millar: That is 1931?

Mr. Lieberman: Yes, not including the delinquents.

Mr. Millar: On January 1, 1931, what were the delinquent taxes?

Mr. Lieberman: Something over $30,000.

Mr. Millar: Of the 1931 taxes how much did you collect in 1931?

Mr. Lieberman: About $60,000 or $65,000.

Mr. Millar: And during 1931 how much did you collect of the delinquent taxes?

Mr. Lieberman: Around $30,000.

Mr. Millar: So that your income in 1931, as the income you could spend, was somewhere in the neighborhood of $90,000?

Mr. Lieberman: That is right.

Mr. Millar: Will those figures hold good this year?

Mr. Lieberman: I think we will have a greater delinquency this year.

Mr. Millar: And have the assessments increased or not?

Mr. Lieberman: The assessments have been reduced. I think there is a reduction of about $2,000,000 in the taxed value of our property.

Mr. Millar: What is the rate?

Mr. Lieberman: 4 cents a hundred—one mill—which is deducted from the city tax.

Mr. Millar: Have you any idea what the delinquent tax was January 1, 1932?

Mr. Lieberman: About $30,000. The last few years there has been about 35 per cent. delinquent.

Mr. Millar: Does this poor district have an office?

Mr. Lieberman: Yes, 5601 North 12th Street.

Mr. Millar: Are the clerks there?

Mr. Lieberman: Yes.

Mr. Millar: And the collectors report there?

Mr. Lieberman: Yes, and the collectors go from door to door.

Mr. Millar: And the delinquent taxes are collected by personal calls?

Mr. Lieberman: Yes.

Mr. Millar: And also the current taxes?

Mr. Lieberman: Yes, sir. That is what we do first—go from house to house at the beginning of the year.
Mr. Tahl: Do you mind telling us how much is your overhead?
Mr. Lieberman: I could give you the percentage in 1931. It was approximately 17.8.
Mr. Millar: Did you spend all you collected?
Mr. Sharpless: And some more, too, that we borrowed.
Mr. Millar: How much did you borrow?
Mr. Sharpless: I think last year we borrowed about $20,000 or $25,000.
Mr. Millar: So you spent about $110,000, your expense of overhead was 17.8 per cent?
Mr. Sharpless: Yes. Our overhead was 17.8.
Mr. Millar: Do you have any rent?
Mr. Sharpless: $90 a month.
Mr. Millar: Who owns the building?
Mr. Sharpless: I could not tell you.
Mr. Millar: Whom do you pay the rent to?
Mr. Sharpless: I think to the parties in the building.
Mr. Lieberman: The owner of an apartment house. It is an apartment house with a drug store and apartments upstairs.
Mr. Millar: What is your total annual payroll?
Mr. Sharpless: I could not give you that?
Mr. Millar: Who can give us that?
Mr. Sharpless: Our manager can give you that.
Mr. Millar: What is the name of your manager?
Mr. Sharpless: Mr. Moyer.
Mr. Millar: Is he not the solicitor?
Mr. Sharpless: No, Mr. Lieberman is our solicitor.
Mr. Millar: What other expenses have you outside of rent and salaries?
Mr. Sharpless: That is all the expense we have.
Mr. Millar: Do you pay for the care of patients at hospitals or other institutions?
Mr. Sharpless: Yes
Mr. Millar: Do you know the figures?
Mr. Sharpless: No.
Mr. Millar: Could Mr. Moyer tell us that?
Mr. Sharpless: I believe at the Philadelphia General we pay $21 a week.
Mr. Millar: Have you still that average of 1300 or 1400 families?
Mr. Sharpless: At the present time, no; our orders have been discontinued. We really take what we call pauper cases, nothing under unemployed. The pauper cases are some we must carry all the time, and they are the only ones receiving relief at the present times.
Mr. Millar: Do you know how much income you have had this year so far?
Mr. Sharpless: No.
Mr. Millar: How much did you get from the first Talbot fund?
Mr. Sharpless: I believe that was about $52,000 or $53,000.
Mr. Millar: Has that been spent?
Mr. Sharpless: That has all been spent. If it has not been it will be at the end of the month when the milk bills are paid.
Mr. Tahl: I would like to know what are your duties as president of the board.
Mr. Sharpless: To preside at the meetings.
Mr. Tahl: Are you not the man who is in charge of the board giving directions to the employees?
Mr. Sharpless: No. The board gives instructions to the employees and to the manager who has charge of them.
Mr. Tahl: So you are simply the man who presides at the meetings?
Mr. Sharpless: I preside at the meetings and act as a director.
Mr. Tahl: You have four directors?
Mr. Sharpless: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: You have a manager who carries out the orders of the board?
Mr. Sharpless: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: What is the manager's salary?
Mr. Sharpless: $2500 a year.
Mr. Tahl: What are his duties?
Mr. Sharpless: He keeps all the books and such things as that.
Mr. Tahl: Do you have no bookkeeper?
Mr. Sharpless: No. We have two clerks. They attend more to the tax bills.
Mr. Tahl: And the books are kept by the manager, you say?
Mr. Sharpless: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: What do the clerks do?
Mr. Sharpless: They take care of the taxes, the tax matters, and issue bills and such as that.
Is that all you desire?
The Chairman: Unless you desire to make a statement.

Mr. Sharpless: You dwelt so much on the question of putting these orders out to stores and why 17 stores were all that I have used. The reason I do that, put my orders in those stores, there is so much chance when you make an order out and no name on it—and I have seen it myself—that a huckster comes along with welfare orders. We ask him where he got them and he says he bought them, and there is no store name on them, and there is nothing to stop him from getting an order for $8 and selling it for $5.
Mr. Millar: You say you have seen that?
Mr. Sharpless: Yes, I know of a case where a man was charged with having poor board orders, I got the information that there was a man that had a handful of orders and when he was asked where he got them he said he bought them. But that was not my board.
Mr. Tahl: Do you not think you have more than 17 merchants that could handle these orders, do you not think it would be fair to distribute them more than that?
Mr. Sharpless: Well, we could do that.
Mr. Tahl: But you have not done it.

Mr. Sharpless: It would mean that it would take a couple of days to put my orders around, where I can do it in a half a day now.
Mr. Millar: In other words you designate the grocery store nearest to the applicant?
Mr. Sharpless: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Do you know the name of the huckster who had that order?
Mr. Sharpless: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Do you know the name of the person who pointed him out to you?
Mr. Sharpless: Yes.
Mr. Millar: What is his name.
Mr. Sharpless: Fisher.
Mr. Millar: And what is his address?
Mr. Sharpless: I could not give you his address.
Mr. Millar: Do you know the street he lives on?
Mr. Sharpless: No.
Mr. Millar: Could you find him?
Mr. Sharpless: I would try.
Mr. Millar. When did he show you this order?
Mr. Sharpless: A while ago, it was when welfare orders were going out.
Mr. Millar: You distributed the Talbot fund in your district—it was distributed by your board?
Mr. Sharpless: Oh, we were distributing Talbot and Lloyd was distributing Talbot, too. And then of course when Philadelphia finished their Talbot money they were still giving it.
Mr. Millar: Will you supply the committee with a list of the names and addresses of the board employees and a list of the names and addresses of the storekeepers to whom the board issued orders?
Mr. Sharpless: A list of this Talbot money?
Mr. Millar: And also a list of the storekeepers.
Mr. Baldi: For the entire board. You can submit it as to the entire board, can you not?
Mr. Sharpless: You mean the orders?
Mr. Baldi: The stores.
Mr. Sharpless: No, I do not know whom they give them to.
Mr. Lieberman: I will give you the names and addresses of all the grocers that have been used by the board.
Mr. Miller: Do you use any butchers or are all grocers?
Mr. Lieberman: I think they are all grocers. I will give you all the merchants we deal with.
Mr. Sharpless: That will include clothing and shoes and milk.
Mr. Lieberman: And I will submit a copy of the auditor's annual report.
Mr. Miller: Is there any book that will show the persons or families to whom the relief is given?
Mr. Lieberman: No. Each director has his card index and record and they are the only records we have.
Mr. Millar: Does not the central office keep a record of the persons getting relief?
Mr. Lieberman: We found a book with them and card index system showing every family.
Mr. Tahl: You mentioned to Mr. Millar the name of the man named Fisher?
Mr. Sharpless: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: That is the single instance that you know of?
Mr. Sharpless: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: And relying upon this man—whose address you do not know—you just selected 17 merchants?
Mr. Sharpless: Oh no. That is why I put my orders out into the store and do not hand them to the private party.
Mr. Tahl: Is that the reason why you select the 17 merchants?
Mr. Sharpless: No.
Mr. Tahl: What is the reason you selected them outside the fact that they were near—there are other merchants just as near, are there not?
Mr. Sharpless: Yes.
Mr. Tahl.: Was there any particular reason for selecting these 17?
Mr. Sharpless: No.
Mr. Tahl: And there are other merchants in the same block and you passed them by and gave the orders to these 17?
Mr. Sharpless: Probably if I wanted to go to the trouble I could give one order to every store in my district; there might be enough stores for that. There are lots of stores that could not really give the people what they wanted.
Mr. Tahl: You think there are only 17 in your district that could do that?
Mr. Sharpless: Oh, no, that is not it. That is not the question. These people have applied—
Mr. Tahl: But these men are well known to you personally?
Mr. Sharpless: I never knew one of them until they applied.
Mr. Tahl: The merchants applied to you?
Mr. Sharpless: There was only one grocer I knew personally when I went into the poor board.
Mr. Tahl: And you selected them because they applied?
Mr. Sharpless: Yes, they asked me if I could give them some poor board orders.
Mr. Millar: Did anyone ever recommend them?
Mr. Sharpless: No; they applied to me.
Mr. Tahl: And you have had only 17 applications from these merchants?

Mr. Sharpless: When you have your card case ready you have the name of the merchant who gets that order on the card and it is no easy job writing out these orders, when you have three or four or five hundred orders, and you look at your card and the order is for so and so and you put them out that way and you have to tear them out of your book and sort them, and that is why I put them out that way.

Testimony of Oscar S. Moyer (sworn).

Mr. Baldi: What is your address, Mr. Moyer?
Mr. Moyer: 1011 Rockland Street.
Mr. Baldi: You are business manager of the Bristol Board, 42nd Ward?
Mr. Moyer: Yes, since the first of this year.
Mr. Baldi: Have you a list of the grocers to whom orders are issued by the Poor Board?
Mr. Moyer: I have at my office.
Mr. Baldi: Can you give us a list of the names and addresses of those merchants?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.

Mr. Baldi: Of all the directors.
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Baldi: Does each director take a particular district?
Mr. Moyer: A particular section of the district.
Mr. Baldi: So Mr. Sharpless would not know what grocers Mr. Swann did business with?
Mr. Moyer: Mr. Sharpless would only issue orders on grocers in his particular district.
Mr. Baldi: And he would not know to whom Mr. Swann gave his orders?
Mr. Moyer: Not unless he got that information from Mr. Swann.
Mr. Baldi: But you have that information?
Mr. Moyer: Yes; I see that all bills are paid.
Mr. Baldi: How often do you settle your bills—monthly?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Baldi: And there is some clothing distributed, is there?
Mr. Moyer: Yes, and shoes. That is distributed on the same basis as the grocery orders. The director stipulates on the order how much should be paid for a pair of shoes or underwear or whatever it is, and that is all that I would pay.
Mr. Baldi: Have you any way of finding out whether these vouchers are sold or have been sold in your district, as referred to by Mr. Sharpless?
Mr. Moyer: I never had occasion to go into that; I never heard of such a case.
Mr. Baldi: In other words, if you give a man a voucher, you would take it for granted he goes to the store and gets those goods or food?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Baldi: You never checked on that to see whether he did or not?
Mr. Moyer: No.
Mr. Millar: Is the application for relief a written application?
Mr. Moyer: You mean made by the person applying?
Mr. Millar: Does the man applying for an order have to make a direct application?
Mr. Moyer: You go to the director, you go to his home or wherever he would meet you, and he would ask you these questions and you would sign the application. We have a copy of it here.
Mr. Lieberman: Here is our form of application we use for our own board and the one we use under the Talbot Act.
Mr. Millar: Who fills in these applications?
Mr. Moyer: Whoever takes the application.
Mr. Millar: The director?
Mr. Moyer: Either the director or someone at the office.
Mr. Millar: Have you any signature of the applicant?
Mr. Moyer: Yes, the applicant signs that card.

Mr. Baldi: You just have them put the signature at the bottom, and in your forms they all have the signatures of these applicants on there?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Do you make any effort to compare the signature on the back of the order with the signature on the application?
Mr. Moyer: No, we do not.
Mr. Baldi: Then could not anyone sign that order?
Mr. Moyer: We take it for granted that the grocer looks after that.
Mr. Millar: The director fills this in?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Millar: He puts the grocer's name on the order and the address there?
Mr. Moyer: Yes, "Furnish John Jones"—
Mr. Millar: And then John Jones' address?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Millar: "With groceries" or "With coal"?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Millar: And then the director signs that?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Millar: And the person who receives this signs at the bottom here?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Where does the grocer sign?
Mr. Moyer: The grocer sends this back with his statement.
Mr. Millar: He does not sign anything?
Mr. Moyer: No.
Mr. Millar: After this is filled out the applicant signs?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Do you compare the applicant's signature here with the applicant's signature here (indicating)?
Mr. Moyer: No.
Mr. Millar: Have you ever tried to do that? Did you read several months ago that people were getting relief in the 42nd Ward who were not residents of the ward?
Mr. Moyer: We had one case, yes. We had the case of a man who did live in the ward when he got the relief and still lived in it when we found that he was operating a store in another county.
Mr. Millar: I read in the newspaper that quite a number of people in the 42nd Ward was getting relief who were not residents of the ward.
Mr. Moyer: That could not be so.
Mr. Millar: I think one was in Montgomery County.
Mr. Moyer: There was one man that operated a store there, in Montgomery County, but lived in the ward.
Mr. Millar: He got relief from your board?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Millar: How much relief did he get?
Mr. Moyer: As far as I could say, about $70 or $80.
Mr. Millar: During what period of time?
Mr. Moyer: It went back to last November, probably.
Mr. Millar: Was he married?
Mr. Moyer: Yes, and had a family.
Mr. Millar: And how many children had he?
Mr. Moyer: I am not sure of that without the data before me.
Mr. Millar: Do you remember the amounts of the orders?
Mr. Moyer: I think they were usually $4, nearly all of them $4.
Mr. Millar: Knowing how much you would allot for a man with a wife and children, how many children would he have?
Mr. Moyer: About three children.
Mr. Millar: What is his name?
Mr. Moyer: Ryder.
Mr. Millar: What is his address?
Mr. Moyer: I think his address was on 21st Street. I can get that for you.
Mr. Millar: And where did he conduct the grocery store?
Mr. Moyer: It was right adjacent to where he lived, I think.
Mr. Millar: After you found that the Poor Board had been imposed on did you make an effort to collect back that money?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Did you collect anything?
Mr. Moyer: We collected $50.
Mr. Millar: And he still owes you?
Mr. Moyer: No, he made a claim that he was entitled to relief before he bought the store.
Mr. Millar: What was the name of the director who gave that man that order?
Mr. Moyer: That was Mr. Sharpless's district.
Mr. Millar: When were the orders given?
Mr. Moyer: Every couple of weeks.
Mr. Millar: Outside of that did you make any other investigation as to whether the rumors in the newspapers were true or false?
Mr. Moyer: Not any, no, sir.
Mr. Millar: In no case?
Mr. Moyer: We investigated every body——
Mr. Millar: And you only found that one case of imposition on the board?
Mr. Moyer: That is all.
Mr. Millar: After that did the board establish any rules to prevent a recurrence of it?
Mr. Moyer: Well, the directors ordered the investigators to make a careful investigation.
Mr. Millar: Do you make any investigation as to whether the merchants are charging the people who receive these orders more or less for the merchandise than they charge others who buy for cash?
Mr. Moyer: I usually make an examination, pick out a handfull, for instance, and see how they compare with prices elsewhere.
Mr. Millar: I see on the back of the Poor Order you have a list of commodities and the prices.
Mr. Moyer: No, there are no prices there.
Mr. Millar: It says amt., which means amount. Does that mean the value in dollars and cents?
Mr. Moyer: That is the amount—
Mr. Millar: In front of the commodity there is an abbreviation for quantity..
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Do you make any check to see whether the article is selling at that prevailing price at the stores in the neighborhood?
Mr. Moyer: Not of every order, no.
Mr. Millar: But do you take an example?
Mr. Moyer: Yes, we do. I always pick out some every month and see how near they are right. Of course the prices are not the same one month compared to another month. Groceries have come down a lot.
Mr. Millar: Have you ever had any complaints about the merchants charging more for the articles than if they had sold them for cash?
Mr. Moyer: No such complaints have come to me, no.
Mr. Baldi: All the time you investigated, picking them out at random once a month or so, you never found any discrepancies of that kind at all?
Mr. Moyer: No.
Mr. Millar: When these applications are made by poor people what procedure does the director go through before the applications is approved?
Mr. Moyer: He waits for the investigation by the investigator.
Mr. Millar: In other words, he turns the application into the office?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Millar: And then someone investigates. Who is that investigator?
Mr. Moyer: We have two of them—in fact we have three of them.
Mr. Millar: What do those investigators do?

Mr. Moyer: In the first place. they go out and see if the party lives at the residence and they make inquiry as to whether anyone is working in the family, and how many children, and if working, how much they are receiving. The children or someone in the family may be working only part time, perhaps a half day a week only.
Mr. Millar: And do the investigators make a written report?
Mr. Moyer: Yes. They make a report, not always a written report. Sometimes they make it in full and sometimes they just OK the information.
Mr. Millar: If the application is approved by the director on the investigator's story, what is the next thing that is done?
Mr. Moyer: Then the director makes the order.
Mr. Millar: Have you any explanation of the investigator as to this grocery store man, as to how he passed him?
Mr. Moyer: The investigator does not have anything to do with the grocery store.
Mr. Millar: But you had one man who operated a grocery store to whom you gave relief?
Mr. Moyer: But he was not operating a store at the time we gave him relief, when we first took him on.
Mr. Millar: Do you ever investigate them after the orders are given, after a man gets on the list does he stay on there?
Mr. Moyr: No. We have had two or three cases in the last six months where we have reinvestigated cases, we make them come in again and see whether they tell the same story that they told two or three months before.
Mr. Tahl: These orders are made out and directed to the merchants, are they?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: And in every district?

Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: And who furnishes a list of these merchants to the Board?
Mr. Moyer: The grocer delivers to them in his own district?
Mr. Tahl: I understand each director furnishes his own list.
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: In other words, each director has the privilege of selecting his own merchants?
Mr. Moyer: That is right.
Mr. Tahl: The board just approves his list?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: The board does not investigate and find out whether these merchants charge reasonable prices but just approve the list?
Mr. Moyer: That is right, yes.
Mr. Tahl: Did the board ever consider the fact that the districts, for instance where Mr. Sharpless presides, that there are a large number of merchants and that he only selected 17 of them, did the board ever consider that question?
Mr. Moyer: No, I do not think they have.
Mr. Tahl: Do you not think that it would be a more equitable thing to distribute these orders among a much larger number, so that you might get better prices from them?
Mr. Moyer: I do not think you could get any better prices. I think you get the prevailing prices. All the prices are the same in most all stores, particularly the Unity Stores.
Mr. Tahl: Did it not ever occur to you that it was unfair to select only 17 in a large area where he presides?
Mr. Moyer: That was in his particular district. I think it is simply a custom that has been followed out year after year.
Mr. Tahl: You think they always did that?
Mr. Moyer: I think they always did. I am not so sure about previous years.
Mr. Tahl: Your knowledge goes back how many years?
Mr. Moyer: To the first of this year.
Mr. Tahl: Who was your predecessor?
Mr. Moyer: They had no manager then. They did not have the business at that time.
Mr. Tahl: And did the board investigate these merchants to find out whether or not—
Mr. Moyer: I believe each individual director did. He was responsible in a way for the merchants in his district.
Mr. Tahl: In other words, the board let each director take care of his own district?
Mr. Moyer: He was a member of the board, you know.
Mr. Tahl: I say the board let each member take care of the business of his own district without interference?
Mr. Moyer: Yes. If they knew anything of course they would tell each other about it. If one director thought another grocer was not straight he would tell that other director.
Mr. Tahl: Will you kindly tell me whether you consider it was a fair thing to do, to select just 17 merchants out of maybe 100 or 200?
Mr. Moyer: I would not say that there were 200.
Mr. Tahl: Well, say there was 100; would you think that would be fair, to select 17 and give them all the business?
Mr. Moyer: I would think it would be fair, yes.
Mr. Tahl: Were these grocers recommended by anybody?
Mr. Moyer: I don't know. You will have to ask each director.
Mr. Haws: You have rules and regulations governing the board?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Haws: Is there anything in the rules and regulations to give the director the authority to pick whomsover he chooses?
Mr. Moyer: As far as the rules and regulations are concerned they say the district shall be divided into four sections and each director shall be responsible for that section.
Mr. Haws: And he has authority to do what he pleases as to that?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Haws: And he selects whom he pleases as the merchant to whom he will give the orders?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Baldi: As business manager do you give your full time to it?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Baldi: Do you know what happened as to those four members of the board who were elected or appointed?
Mr. Moyer: Three were elected and Mr. Schwartz was appointed to fill an unexpired term.
Mr. Baldi: Whose vacancy did he fill?
Mr. Moyer: He filled the unexpired term of Mr. Harris, who was elected as councilman.
Mr. Millar: Were you present at the meeting when that happened?
Mr. Moyer: No.
Mr. Tahl: Can you give us the names and addresses of the directors now?
Mr. Moyer: I guess I can. Here is a list of the four directors.
Mr. Tahl: Mr. Sharpless?
Mr. Sharpless: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Were you present when Mr. Schwartz was elected?
Mr. Sharpless: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Who else was present at that meeting?
Mr. Sharpless: I think all the directors were there.
Mr. Millar: In other words, Mr. Harris was there?
Mr. Sharpless: Yes.
Mr. Moyer: And Mr. Foster was there.
Mr. Millar: And who voted for Mr. Schwartz?
Mr. Moyer: I could not tell you that. You will have to look—I don't remember that.
Mr. Millar: Was there any vacancy in that board?
Mr. Moyer: Mr. Harris resigned.
Mr. Millar: But he was present at the meeting?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Why?
Mr. Moyer: That is where he put in his resignation.
Mr. Baldi: Do the minutes show how the election was conducted?
Mr. Moyer: I suppose so. They should.
Mr. Millar: When was the election?
Mr. Moyer: I think it was the first Monday in January of this year.
Mr. Millar: Where is the minute book?
Mr. Moyer: We have not the minute book of this year.
Mr. Baldi: When is your next meeting?
Mr. Sharpless: Tonight.
Mr. Baldi: After you have posted your minutes of your meeting tonight will you have them sent to us?
Mr. Sharpless: Surely.
Mr. Millar: Is your office open until 5 o'clock?
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Millar: What time is your meeting?
Mr. Moyer: 8 o'clock.
Mr. Millar: Where—at the office.
Mr. Moyer: Yes.
Mr. Lieberman: Do you care about the address of Mr. Ryder, the colored man who operated the grocery store?
The Chairman: Yes, we would like to have that.
Mr. Lieberman: 6075 North 21st Street.
Mr. Baldi: What is his first name?
Mr. Lieberman: Isaac, I think. At the time he made application he did not have the grocery store and he acquired it and did not report it back.
Mr. Baldi: We think it advisable to the various boards to give us their books today.
The next one is Byberry. Are the people from Byberry present with their books? The person named there I think is Mr. Bonner, 35th Ward.
Mr. Bonner: Yes.
Mr. Baldi: We would like to hear from you.

Testimony of Edwin K. Bonner (sworn).

Mr. Tahl: You are the president—
Mr. Bonner: I am just overseer of the poor of the little district in the 35th Ward.
Mr. Tahl: You have your books?
Mr. Bonner: My check books and stubs. I have no order books. We do not use order books. I have a book in which I keep my receipts and expenditures.
(Books produced, marked Bonner No. 1).
Mr. Baldi: I will ask the stenographer to mark these books.
(Check stub books and bank book and bank returns in envelope marked Bonner No. 2).
(Blank stub books, bank books, Huntingdon Valley Trust Company and Fox Chase Bank, marked Bonner No. 3).
(Note: 3 is Huntingdon Valley Trust Company and No. 4 is Fox Chase bank book and stubs).
(No. 5 goes with Huntingdon Valley bank book, check book with stubs).
(No. 6, complete report of Talbot fund).
(There were six exhibits, 1 to 6 inclusive produced by this witness).
Mr. Paul Reilly: Mr. Chairman, the quantity of vouchers and books and so forth called for in the subpoena is entirely too large for us to bring here and we did not make any particular choice. However, I have the reports of the auditors from 1926 to 1931. We have nine auditors who have the same powers as township auditors, and they will give you the information in a general way of how much money our taxes were, how much delinquent taxes, how much money we got from other sources and where it went. The details of all that are kept in the vouchers that we have and the books we have.
Mr. Baldi: Where are those books?
Mr. Reilly: They are in the Germantown almshouse on Rittenhouse Street, where the clerk and investigator of the board are.
Mr. Baldi: What is his name?
Mr. Reilly: James L. Tyler.
Mr. Baldi: If we sent the accountants there will they be permitted to see the books?
Mr. Reilly: Oh, yes. We have had the City Controller's office going through them recently, but this will give you the general figures aside from particular payments.
Mr. Miller: Do you follow the system of having a written application from persons who want relief?
Mr. Reilly: No, we do not. We have nine managers and each manager has a sub-manager who lives in the district and it is required of him that he shall know these people in person that come for relief. They must know the case and report it. If something peculiar turns up about it then the investigator investigates it. If there is something unusual about the case, such as a question of proper legal settlement or moving from one place to the other in the district or out of the district, he turns that over to the investigator who in addition to the clerical work does that investigating for us.
Mr. Millar: Is that investigation conducted during the time the man gets the relief?
Mr. Reilly: The manager must know each month who these people are—or the sub manager must know about them, about the people who are getting the relief. He knows the family history of each one and knows all about them.
Mr. Millar: Have you made any effort to check the endorsements on the orders to see that the people making the application are the actual people who get the relief?
Mr. Reilly: Yes; the district manager must do that. They know whether the person who gets this stuff is being properly treated.
Mr. Tahl: And are they endorsed by the recipients?
Mr. Reilly: There has to be turned into the grocer what they got, that is written on the back to show what they got.
Mr. Tahl: Does the applicant endorse the order, I mean?
Mr. Reilly: They sign on the face of it that they received relief according to the tenor of the above order, but on the back it is endorsed. This is our form. I will hand them up to you so if there is anything that occurs to the committee, anything there such as salary and so forth, we have the bill and check. We do not use any check stubs. We use a form of voucher check which has the receipt on it and the party who gets it must endorse it on the back and it was collected through the bank. All these records at any time, if we have any you want to see, you can look at them. We can give you all the details.
Mr. Millar: In the Germantown District were there not some checks drawn by the secretary alone and others by the superintendent alone?

Mr. Reilly: The only checks drawn by the secretary are these. The board meets only once a month and if people come in and pay any sum of money that money coming in, we do not want it to lie around, and so we have a special checking account where the secretary can put that money with the restriction that the only check that can be drawn on that is a check of the corporation itself. It is restricted in that way.

Mr. Baldi: We have not enough time to go into these accounts today.

Have you any books with you, Mr. Bonner?

Mr. Bonner: No, but I have my book in my lawyer's office.

Mr. Baldi: The subpoena said to bring in your books.

Mr. Bonner: I have not them but I can get them.

Mr. Baldi: Have them next time.

Oxford, 23rd and 41st Wards.

(Mr. Claire came forward).

Mr. Baldi: Have you your books?

Mr. Claire: We have 15 boxes out here with a full record of everything and a duplicate list of what the boxes contain.

Mr. Baldi: Tell us what they contain.

Mr. Clare: The bills for 1930 and 1931; treasurers' vouchers back to 1929. We have the minute book. We have all the orders issued on the Talbot fund. We have the general fund orders for 1931. We have the Talbot fund orders stubs, bills and orders; Talbot fund ledger—there is a special ledger for the Talbot fund—and the general fund bills for 1932, and the Talbot fund cancelled checks stubs and treasurer's account, enumerated in 15 different boxes.

Mr. Baldi: Have you the orders from 1926 down to the present time?

Mr. Clare: No, no poor orders.

Mr. Baldi: Are you the secretary?

Mr. Clare: The secretary, yes.

Mr. Baldi: Mr. Adams, do you represent the board?

Mr. Adams: Yes, sir.

Mr. Mitchell came forward.

Testimony of Frank W. G. Mitchell, (sworn)

Mr. Baldi: You are the secretary?

Mr. Mitchell: Yes, for Oxford and Lower Dublin Poor Board.

Mr. Baldi: How long have you been secretary?

Mr. Mitchell: Since March 16, 1928.

Mr. Baldi: And you have charge of the records?

Mr. Mitchell: Yes.

Mr. Baldi: Have you all the poor orders here?

Mr. Mitchell: I have the orders for this year only. Previous to this year they were destroyed after the bills were checked and audited by our elected auditors.

Mr. Baldi: Who destroyed them.

Mr. Mitchell: I destroyed them.

Mr. Baldi: By whose order?

Mr. Mitchell: The orders of the director, Director Castor told me. There was no use in keeping them any longer.

Mr. Millar: When were they destroyed?

Mr. Mitchell: The first of the year.

Mr. Millar: You mean in January?

Mr. Mitchell: I could not tell you. At different times, when they piled up.

Mr. Millar: Well, all the orders prior to January 31 were piled up before they were destroyed?

Mr. Mitchell: Yes.

Mr. Millar: They destroyed at one time?

Mr. Mitchell: No, at different times.

Mr. Millar: When did you begin to destroy them?

Mr. Mitchell: Last year, after we got through with them.

Mr. Millar: How often did you destroy them?

Mr. Mitchell: When I thought they accumulated too much, took up too much room, and they were through with them.

Mr. Millar: How often did you think they took up too much room?

Mr. Mitchell: When I could not find any room for them.

Mr. Millar: I want to know how often you destroyed the records, that is my question.

Mr. Mitchell: Sometimes every month.

Mr. Millar: Did you destroy them every month last year?

Mr. Mitchell: Yes, and before.

Mr. Millar: Will you tell me why you did not destroy any this year, then?

Mr. Mitchell: Because this Talbot fund coming along, I thought then I should keep everything in case there was a question.

Mr. Millar: The Talbot fund did not come along until after April, did it?

Mr. Mitchell: No.

Mr. Millar: Then why did you destroy the records in January?

Mr. Mitchell: I have the January records.

Mr. Millar: All right. You destroyed the December records; why did you not destroy the January records?

Mr. Mitchell: Because they were in a different pile. Each month was kept separate.

Mr. Millar: Were they kept separate in different piles last year?

Mr. Mitchell: Yes.

Mr. Millar: And you destroyed them?

Mr. Mitchell: Yes.

Mr. Tahl: You said Mr. Castor directed you to destroy them. How many directors have you on the board?

Mr. Mitchell: 8.

Mr. Tahl: Was this in accordance with the recommendation of the board, to destroy records?

Mr. Mitchell: No.

Mr. Tahl: Then I understand you to say that the only man who authorized you to destroy records was Mr. Castor; is that right?

Mr. Mitchell: Yes.

Mr. Tahl: Did any of the other members of the board have any knowledge of this?

Mr. Mitchell: Yes, I believe so.

Mr. Tahl: Did they agree with that?

Mr. Mitchell: I have heard no complaints.

Mr. Tahl: Did you not before destroying any records submit the matter to the entire board?

Mr. Mitchell: No.

Mr. Tahl: You did not?

Mr. Mitchell: No, because the relief orders given out go to the party who gets them and they take them to the merchants.

Mr. Tahl: Are they not public records, these orders?

Mr. Mitchell: No; I do not think they are.

Mr. Tahl: You do not think they are public records?

Mr. Mitchell: No—just records of the poor board.

Mr. Tahl: That is a board which is operating under a certain law. Those books and papers are public records, are they not?

Mr. Mitchell: Yes, I suppose they are.

Mr. Tahl: And you yourself personally destroyed them?

Mr. Mitchell: Yes.

Mr. Tahl: When did you do that?

Mr. Mitchell: At different times when I found they got too numerous and I did not have room for any others.

Mr. Tahl: Did you destroy any in December?

Mr. Mitchell: December, 1931?

Mr. Tahl: Yes.

Mr. Mitchell: Yes, they are gone.

Mr. Tahl: For how many months did you destroy records in December, 1931?

Mr. Mitchell: I cannot recall how many months, where everything was cleaned up.

Mr. Millar: When did you destroy the December, 1931, records?

Mr. Mitchell: I could not tell you exactly.

Mr. Millar: Well, as near as you can tell me, when?

Mr. Mitchell: Sometime about the first of the year.

Mr. Millar: When were the books audited?

Mr. Mitchell: By the elected auditors, Mr. Holme, and a man named Given—one from each ward.

Mr. Millar: Were they elected auditors?

Mr. Mitchell: Yes.

Mr. Millar: When are they elected?

Mr. Mitchell: At the November election, last year—every two years.

Mr. Millar: And take office January 1st, do they?

Mr. Mitchell: Yes, sir. That is not under my hands.

Mr. Millar: What does come under your hands?

Mr. Mitchell: Just keeping the records of the poor board and drawing up the minutes.

Mr. Millar: How many orders were issued per week on an average during the last year?

Mr. Mitchell: I could not tell you that off hand.

Mr. Millar: How much money did the poor board receive last year?

Mr. Mitchell: A little over $120,000.

Mr. Millar: How much was delinquent on December 31, 1931?

Mr. Mitchell: For taxes?

Mr. Millar: Yes.

Mr. Mitchell: I cannot give you the figures. I knew at the time.

Mr. Millar: How soon after December, 1931, did you know?

Mr. Mitchell: As soon as the auditors finished the books. Those tax books are not handled at the office.

Mr. Millar: The tax certificates are handled at your office. Do you not pay for getting a duplicate of the assessments at the city hall every year?

Mr. Mitchell: No.

Mr. Millar: How do you get them?

Mr. Mitchell: The tax books are written up by the man who is lowest bidder each year. He goes to city hall and writes them up.

Mr. Millar: And those duplicates are kept in your office, are they not?

Mr. Mitchell: No; they are kept by the tax collector, the three different ones.

Mr. Millar: You cannot tell us how soon you closed your books—

Mr. Mitchell: My personal book, within two weeks, yes.

Mr. Millar: You mean your personal records or the records of the entire board?

Mr. Mitchell: Only the duplicate poor orders, only the relief orders. That is all that has been destroyed, because when the bills are paid to the grocer or other dealer or whatever the relief is, orders must accompany the bill. I check the bill. If there is not an order there for the amount of the bill it is crossed off. I will swear that I have never passed a bill for which there was not an order. Our bills are here for 1930 and 1931, the names are on there, all checked by me.

Mr. Millar: You mean the names of the merchants?

Mr. Mitchell: Yes. They are the persons to whom we pay the order.

Mr. Millar: Is there any evidence of the receipt of the merchandise by the applicant, the man who got the relief?

Mr. Mitchell: No, there is not.

Mr. Millar: Have you any record that will tell us who received relief from your board last year?

Mr. Mitchell: Every bill has the party's name on it.

Mr. Millar: It does not have a receipt, does it?

Mr. Mitchell: No.

Mr. Millar: And you cannot tell us whether these books were destroyed in January—

Mr. Mitchell: There were no books destroyed. They were only orders that came back from the grocers, just those relief slips.

Mr. Millar: I cannot get it through my head yet why you destroyed the orders for last year and why you did not destroy them for this year. What changed the procedure?

Mr. Mitchell: I just put them in a box and the Talbot fund came along and I had a place for that and I wanted to wait until they accumulated.

Mr. Millar: Did you have a box for that year, too?
Mr. Mitchell: Yes.
Mr. Millar: That is not a change in proceedure. Why did you accumulate them?
Mr. Mitchell: Because they accumulated, took up too much room.
Mr. Millar: How were they destroyed?
Mr. Mitchell: On the ground, destroyed.
Mr. Millar: And where is that?
Mr. Mitchell: Cottman Street, Holmesburg.
Mr. Millar: Who assisted you in the destruction of them?
Mr. Mitchell: Nobody.
Mr. Tahl: Was there any body around there at the time?
Mr. Mitchell: No.
Mr. Tahl: You were alone, were you?
Mr. Mitchell: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Was it in the daytime or at night?
Mr. Mitchell: Daytime.
Mr. Millar: How did you destroy them?
Mr. Mitchell: They were burned up.
Mr Millar: It was outside and not in the furnace?
Mr. Mitchell: Yes.
Mr. Millar: How much ground have you there?
Mr. Mitchell: 120 acres.
Mr. Millar: How far from the building was it?
Mr. Mitchell: I should say 50 feet.
Mr. Millar: How many inmates have you?
Mr. Mitchell: 88.
Mr. Millar: Is that the average at the present time?
Mr. Mitchell: We average about that, this year it has been between 80 and 88.
Mr. Millar: Have you more than one building?
Mr. Mitchell: One large building.
Mr. Millar: How many men and women have you?
Mr. Mitchell: I think there are 55 men and 33 women, acocrding to our last record.
Mr. Millar: Have you any children?
Mr. Mitchell: No.
Mr. Millar: Was it a warm day or a cold day when you destroyed these records?
Mr. Mitchell: I cannot recall.
Mr. Millar: Were there any men out watching you?
Mr. Mitchell: No.
Mr. Millar: Do the men stay in the poor house all the time?
Mr. Mitchell: No, they walk around, but this was in the yard back of the poor house, where inmates are not permitted to go.
Mr. Millar: Why?
Mr. Mitchell: Because it is a private section. It was over near the laundry.
Mr. Millar: A private section for whose use?
Mr. Mitchell: Those entitled to use it.
Mr. Millar: Who are those entitled to use it?
Mr. Mitchell: Well, the people that run the laundry—
Mr. Millar: Do the inmates run the laundry?
Mr. Mitchell: Some of them do, yes.
Mr. Miller: How long have you been the secretary?
Mr. Mitchell: Since March, 1928.
Mr. Millar: Did you ever have any authority from the board to destroy any of the records?
Mr. Mitchell: Only, as I say, I asked Mr. Castor what to do with them and he said they were taking up too much room, to get hid of them, that they were of no use.
Mr. Millar: Was he a member of the board then?
Mr. Mitchell: Yes.
Mr. Millar: When was it you asked him about them?
Mr. Mitchell: I cannot recall.
Mr. Millar: Was it a practice to destroy records every six months or every year or how often?
Mr. Mitchell: I found no records of any orders before I took charge. So consequently I did not know what had become of them.
Mr. Tahl: Were those orders going back to 1929 destroyed in December or when?
Mr. Mitchell: I could not say when. At different times.
Mr. Tahl: I mean this last time you destroyed them, for how many months or years were the records?
Mr. Mitchell: I could not say when. At different times.
Mr. Tahl: I mean this last time you destroyed them, for how many months or years were the records?
Mr. Mitchell: I cannot say. Probably only three or four months. I destroyed them at different times.
Mr. Haws: You say you gave the writing of the tax books to the lowest bidders?
Mr. Mitchell: Yes, sir.
Mr. Haws: How did you get the lowest bidders—by advertising in the papers?
Mr. Mitchell: Yes.
Mr. Haws: We would like a list of the orders and the merchants on whom they are drawn. How soon could you give that to us?
Mr. Mitchell: That is going to take some time.
Mr. Tahl: Can you give it to us by next Monday?
Mr. Mitchell: No, I do not think so.
Mr. Baldi: Well, probably within two weeks?
Mr. Mitchell: Yes.
Mr. Adams: There are two weeks that they still have the check book, the most recent check book—of course we have a meeting tomorrow afternoon—and the minute book, which includes the last month's meeting. We started a new book at the last meeting. These things that are destroyed is news to me. I did not know a thing about this.
Mr. Baldi: You are counselor for the board and what salary do you get?
Mr. Adams: $600 a year, for several years, but this year it was reduced to $400.

Testimony of John J. McKeough (sworn)

Mr. Tahl: Are you a member of this board?
Mr. McKeough: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: How long have you been a member?
Mr. McKeough: Six years and nine months.
Mr. Tahl: Did you ever give orders to Mr. Mitchell to destroy the records of your board?
Mr. McKeough: No.
Mr. Tahl: Did you have any knowledge of it?
Mr. McKeough: No, sir.
Mr. Tahl: When did you first learn about the destruction of these poor orders, is this the first time?
Mr. McKeough: Yes—right at this meeting.

Testimony of William B. Clare (sworn)

Mr. Tahl: Are you a member of this board?
Mr. Clare: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: How long have you been a member of the board?
Mr. Clare: Since the 1st of January, 1932.
Mr. Tahl: Did you give any orders to destroy any poor orders of this board?
Mr. Clare: This is the first information I had that the orders were destroyed.
Mr. Tahl: You did not know up to this time that they were destroyed?
Mr. Clare: No.
Mr. Tahl: You were under the impression that the orders were kept there?
Mr. Clare: I was under that impression, yes.
Mr. Millar: Was it every brought to your attention or the attention of the board that the orders were destroyed or were being destroyed?
Mr. Clare: I might state I was elected to the board—auditor—previous to 1932 and during that time, in collaboration with the other two elected auditors—we kept these orders and presented the report to the board which is filed with the Common Pleas Court. As to destroying the records, we had no knowledge of that, but all the records for 1931 were checked by the auditors and a report submitted to the board.
Mr. Millar: What did the check consist of?
Mr. Clare: Taking the secretary's and treasurer's books of account and checking the vouchers against both. They use a three signature check, checking the orders issued by the directors against the bills, and the bills against the checks, the checks against the treasurer's accounts, and also against the secretary's books, a complete record of which is kept. In addition to that, a complete check is made of the three tax collectors in the district of both the duplicate tax receipts and the check books against the amount of taxes receipts and the check books against the amount of taxes collectible less the amount of the taxes collected, which would represent the delinquent tax account, which we found after a number of years trying it was impossible to check. It runs back seven or eight years and there is no check against the delinquent account.
Mr. Millar: There is remaining an account to the order of John Jones, order No. 100, whether he ever got the goods or not?
Mr. Clare: There should have been because the original should have been there.
Mr. Millar: As far as your auditing is concerned, all you know is that order No. 100 was issued and came back and the merchandise was paid for?
Mr. Clare: Yes.
Mr. Millar: But you do not know that John Jones ever got the goods, do you?
Mr. Clare: No, sir.

Testimony of Frank M. Mooney (sworn)

By. Mr. Tahl: Are you a member of this board?
Mr. Mooney: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: How long have you been a member of the board?
Mr. Mooney: About seven years.
Mr. Tahl: Have you any present knowledge of the fact that the poor orders were destroyed by Mr. Mitchell?
Mr. Mooney: No.
Mr. Tahl: Was this matter of the destruction of the records ever brought to the attention of the board at its meeting?
Mr. Mooney: Not that I know of.

Testimony of William G. Ewald (sworn)

Mr. Tahl: Are you a member of this board?
Mr. Ewald: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: How long have you been a member of it?
Mr. Ewald: About ten years.
Mr. Tahl: Have you any knowledge of the fact that these poor orders were destroyed by Mr. Mitchell?
Mr. Ewald: Well, some time ago I did hear that some of these orders were destroyed but they were records of long standing.
Mr. Tahl: Did your board authorize the destruction of these records?
Mr. Ewald: No.
Mr. Tahl: And was this matter ever brought to the attention of the board officially—the question of whether or not they should be destroyed?
Mr. Ewald: No.
Mr. Tahl: Did you yourself ever personally authorize it?
Mr. Ewald: No.

Testimony of Frank Dickel (sworn)

Mr. Tahl: You are a member of the board?
Mr. Dickel: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: How long have you been a member of the board?

Mr. Dickel: Four years.
Mr. Tahl: Have you authorized the destruction of these poor orders?
Mr. Dickel: Not to my knowledge.
Mr. Tahl: Have you ever heard about this up to the present time?
Mr. Dickel: Not to my knowledge.
Mr. Tahl: Was the matter ever brought officially to your board?
Mr. Dickel: Not to my knowledge.

Testimony of Oscar W. West (sworn)

Mr. Tahl: You are a member of this board?
Mr. West: Yes.
Mr Tahl: How long have you been a member of it?
Mr. West: Since January, 1929.
Mr. Tahl: Mr. West, did your board authorize the destruction of the poor order records?
Mr. West: Not to my knowledge.
Mr. Tahl: Did you ever personally authorize it?
Mr. West: No, sir.
Mr. Tahl: Did you ever know anything about it up to the present time?
Mr. West: Not until today.
Mr. Tahl: Do I corectly understand this is the first time you learned that those records were destroyed by Mr. Mitchell without the authority of the board?
Mr. West: Not until today.

Testimony of William J. Hill (sworn)

Mr. Tahl: You are a member of this board?
Mr. Hill: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: How long have you been a member of it?
Mr. Hill: Since 1925.
Mr. Tahl: You heard Mr. Mitchell testify that he destroyed these poor orders records. Now was this destruction authorized by the board to your knowledge?
Mr. Hill: I do not know of any authorization or any records to be destroyed. When he said he destroyed records I would like to know what records he means.
Mr. Tahl: He means poor orders.
Mr. Hill: Cancelled poor orders?
Mr. Tahl: Yes; was their destruction authorized?
Mr. Hill: I never knew they were destroyed.
Mr. Tahl: Did you ever know anything about it up to the present time?
Mr. Hill: No.
Mr. Tahl: You personally did not authorized it?
Mr. Hill: No.
Mr. Tahl: So, so far as you are concerned, this was done without the authority of the board?
Mr. Hill: Yes.
Mr. Baldi: Now will the members of the Roxborough board bring their books forward?
Mr. Pope came forward and produced some records.

Testimony of Ralph W. Pope (sworn)

The Chairman: Have you submitted all the papers?
Mr. Pope. They are here. We have only the records for 1930 and 1931. There are no records beyond that.
Mr. Baldi: How long have you been a member of the board?
Mr. Pope: Since January 1st, 1930.
Mr. Baldi: You have been in since January of 1930?
Mr. Pope: Yes, and these records cover that period.
Mr. Baldi: What is your position on the board?
Mr. Pope: I am president and treasurer at the present time.
Mr. Baldi: Who was on the board before you?
Mr. Pope: George Dorwart, Nathan L. Jones, and I succeeded Mr. Markley.
Mr. Baldi: Who is the third member?
Mr. Pope: Mr. Harry Markley.
Mr. Baldi: Hod did it happen that there was a brand new board put in—was it by an election?
Mr. Pope: I was elected to membership and the board consisted then of Nathan L. Jones, who was an inmate of Norristown, and George E. Dorwart. Mr. Jones resigned after I took office and the two remaining directors elected John A. Shellwick to fill out Mr. Jones' unexpired term. May 31, 1931, George Dorwart resigned. The remaining members, Mr. Shellwick and myself, filled the vacancy on October 1st.
Mr. Baldi: Let us know what books you have and we will go over the account of the previous books and papers at our next meeting.
Mr. Pope: Check book of the Roxborough Trust Company from February 21, 1929, to the date of its closing, June 4, 1930.
(Marked by the stenographer Roxborough No. 1.)
Mr. Pope: Here is check book of the Manayunk Trust Company (marked Roxborough No. 2) from June 6, 1930 to October 10, 1931.
Here is check book of the Commercial National Bank (Marked Roxborough No. 3) from October 28, 1931 to September 10, 1932.
Here are miscellaneous cancelled checks (marked Roxborough No. 4) and orders and receipted bills and bank statements from January 1st, 1930 to January 1st, 1932.
Here are order book stubs (marked Roxborough No. 3) from August 3, 1927 to December 9, 1931.
Note: The stubs for orders from December 9, 1931, to the present time are included in the books which are being used currently for the issuance of orders and is available to the committee upon request.)
Here is cash book (marked Roxborough No. 6) from January, 1926, to the present time, which is being used and is available to the committee upon request.
Mr. Pope: (Continuing) We are also presenting a copy of the newspaper known as the Suburban Press, dated February 18, 1932, and under—and another dated February 12, 1931, of the same paper, in which were published the annual statements of the poor board.
(The last papers referred to were marked Roxborough No. 7.)
Mr. Baldi: We will have a meeting next Monday at 3 o'clock in this room, and at that time we want the boards as follows: Mr. Castor of the Oxford and Lower Dublin Poor Board, the Roxborough board, and Mr. Bonner, who did not bring his records today. That will be sufficient for the next meeting.

(Thereupon the further hearing of this committee was adjourned until September 9, 1932.)

INVESTIGATION OF POOR BOARDS OF PHILADELPHIA COUNTY

Room 252 City Hall, Philadelphia, September 19, 1932.
(The Committee met pursuant to adjournment of September 14th.)
Present:
Messrs. Royle (chairman), Baldi, Millar, (secretary), Tahl and Haws.
Also present Edward E. Dicker, counsel for Mr. Castor.
The Chairman: Gentlemen, please come to order. Mr. Tahl, wishes to make a statement.
Mr. Tahl: The committee wishes to make the following statement. Some of the men whose management of the Poor Board is now under investigation have publicly stated that this legislative investigation has political aspects. The committee wishes to assure the taxpayers and citizens of Philadelphia that this committee has no other purpose in view except to probe these boards impartially, at the same time without fear or favor, and at the same time it is our purpose to ascertain whether those agencies have administered these boards efficiently and economically. The facts have already more than justified the investigation. The committee invites citizens of Philadelphia to submit all facts that bear upon the investigation.
Mr. Sales: I would like to make a statement.
The Chairman: We have a lot of work to do today and if you will postpone it until the next meeting we would be glad.
Mr. Tahl: We would appreciate it if you would submit anything you have in writing.
Mr. Sales: It will take me about ten minutes to say what I want to say. My time is very much occupied and we have our poor house up there and want it run right.
Mr. Tahl: We will take notice of the fact that you wish to appear and testify.
Mr. Sales: I do not exactly wish to testify but I wish to read a statement of the facts and my statement will be substantiated by the facts.
Mr. Tahl. Will you remain a while? We have planned our procedure this afternoon.
Mr. Haws: Is Mr. Castor here?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
(Mr. Castor came forward.)

Testimony of Lewis F. Castor, Jr. (sworn)

Mr. Millar: Where do you live?
Mr. Castor: 1005 Allengrove Street, Frankford.
Mr. Millar: Are you president of the Oxford and Lower Dublin poor district?
Mr. Castor: I am.
Mr. Millar: How long have you been president?
Mr. Castor: Since March 15, 1928.
Mr. Millar: Were you a member of the board before that?
Mr. Castor: I was.
Mr. Millar: Since when?
Mr. Castor: 1911, I think it was.
Mr. Millar: Continuously?
Mr. Castor: Yes
Mr. Millar: What are the boundaries of that poor district?
Mr. Castor: The Frankford creek on the south, Frankford creek on the east, and I don't know what creek it is on the west; and city line, and an imaginary line through the Torresdale Country Club, around the Bustleton fire house. We take in the entire 41st and the entire 23rd Wards and the biggest portion of the 35th Ward.
Mr. Millar: How many members are there on the poor board?
Mr. Castor: Eight.
Mr. Millar: And what are their terms, do they all expire at the same time?
Mr. Castor: No. There are four elected every two years.
Mr. Millar: When does your term expire?
Mr. Castor: They vote for me next September at the primary—four every two years.
Mr. Millar: Four in 1932 and four in 1936?
Mr. Castor: That is correct.
Mr. Millar: As I understand it, the present membership consists of Frank Dickel, John J. McKeough, Frank Mooney, William B. Clare, William G. Ewald, William J. Hill, Oscar W. West and Rudolph S. Carson?
Mr. Castor: No, he is treasurer; he is appointed by the directors.
Mr. Millar: And yourself?
Mr. Castor: Right.
Mr. Millar: How many employees does the board have?
Mr. Castor: A steward, a matron, assistant matron, assistant steward, a cook and three investigators; treasurer, secretary, solicitor, house physician and six doctors, and a chaplain.

Mr. Millar: Have you a list of the names and addresses of the employees?
Mr. Castor: No, I have not. Some of them live right on the place. Four of them live on the place.
Mr. Millar: Have you the total annual payroll?
Mr. Castor: I have got the payroll this year, because we have cut their salaries—
Mr. Millar: What is it this year?
Mr. Castor: The steward, $1350; matron, $750 and assistant matron, $450; assistant steward, $675; cook, $18.75 per week; investigators $100 per month. The treasurer gets $750 per year; secretary, $1500 per year; solicitor $400 per year; house physician, $500 per year; four doctors at $100 per year; one at $250 per year; and one at $150 per year. Chaplain, $260 per year.
Mr. Millar: Do you know what the total amount is?
Mr. Castor: No; I did not total them up. That is beginning the first of the year.
Mr. Millar: Of this year?
Mr. Castor: Yes, sir.
Mr. Millar: What is the assessed value of real estate in the district?
Mr. Castor: That is something I could not tell you.
Mr. Millar: If all the taxes were paid how much would be the current income of the board?
Mr. Castor: I imagine around $150,000.
Mr. Millar: Would that be for the year 1932?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: On January 1, 1932, what was the amount of delinquent taxes?
Mr. Castor: $86.000. That dates back for ten years.
Mr. Millar: Can you tell us how much were the delinquent taxes on January 1, 1931?
Mr. Castor: No.
Mr. Millar: Do you know the gross income of the board in 1931?
Mr. Castor: Around $135,000, I would say.
Mr. Millar: That is delinquent and current taxes?
Mr. Castor: And other income.
Mr. Millar: What was the other income?
Mr. Castor: For board; we collected something for board, but very little.
Mr. Millar: Did you borrow any money in 1931?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: How much?
Mr. Castor: We borrowed $57,000.
Mr. Millar: And is that included in the amount you mentioned as delinquents?
Mr. Castor: No.
Mr. Millar: Your total cash in 1931 was approximately $180,000?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Did you pay the loan?
Mr. Castor: We paid $15,000.
Mr. Millar: So you still owe $40,000?
Mr. Castor: Yes, that is still owed.
Mr. Millar: Had you carried over any loans from 1930?
Mr. Castor: No. We generally carry some—
Mr. Millar: Do you know the cost of operation of the board of 1931?
Mr. Castor: No, I do not.
Mr. Millar: Do you know the percentage the cost of operation bears to the gross income?
Mr. Castor: No, sir.
Mr. Millar: Who could give us those figures?
Mr. Castor: The treasurer.
Mr. Millar: Does the board operate a poor house?
Mr. Castor: Yes, sir.
Mr. Millar: What is the location of the poor house?
Mr. Castor: We call it Cottman Street and Roland Avenue. It sits back pretty well towards Pennypack Park.
Mr. Millar: How much ground has the board there?
Mr. Castor: 120 acres.
Mr. Millar: Is any of its under cultivation?
Mr. Castor: Part of it, yes.
Mr. Millar: How much of it?
Mr. Castor: I would say about 20 acres. I am no farmer.
Mr. Millar: And who operates the part that is under cultivation?
Mr. Castor: Mr. Miller, who is the assistant steward and farmer. Mr. Hiller and the inmates operate it.
Mr. Millar: Is there any reason why the balance of the ground should not be under cultivation?
Mr. Castor: Yes, there is.
Mr. Millar: What is the reason?
Mr. Castor: It would be cultivated at a loss.
Mr. Millar: It has never been cultivated?
Mr. Castor: Yes, and it is not a paying proposition.
Mr. Millar: When was it under cultivation.
Mr. Castor: Five or six years ago.
Mr. Millar: Under Mr. Hiller?
Mr. Castor: No; Mr. Hiller was not there then. Kelly used to work the farm and we had another farmer come in to assist him. We had to hire help to assist him. We did not have inmates that could do anything, because they were too old.
Mr. Millar: How many inmates have you?
Mr. Castor: 88.
Mr. Millar: What is the proportion of men and women?
Mr. Castor: 55 men and 33 women.
Mr. Millar: As I remember, Mr. Mitchell said you did not have any childrein.
Mr. Castor: We cannot under the law. We can keep them up to two years old and then have to find a place for them. We cannot take them in until after they are 15.
Mr. Millar: How many buildings are there on this farm?
Mr. Castor: You mean counting the barns?
Mr. Millar: Yes.
Mr. Castor: Six.
Mr. Millar: Have you one house for the men and women?
Mr. Castor: Yes, and the matron lives in between. The men are on one side and the women are on the other, with the steward in between, in the same building.
Mr. Millar: Are there any other buildings occupied by help?
Mr. Castor: No.
Mr. Millar: What are the other buildings used for?
Mr. Castor: A barn and a garage, a corn crib and hay shed.
Mr. Millar: Is the real estate in good condition?
Mr. Castor: Yes, sir, positively.
Mr. Millar: Is 88 your capacity or not?
Mr. Castor: No, 88 is not the capacity. We cannot keep any more men but we could take in maybe 15 to 20 more women.
Mr. Miller: Have you any reason to increase the capacity?
Mr. Castor: We have not any money.
Mr. Millar: If you had the money would you increase the capacity?
Mr. Castor: I don't know where we could increase it unless we put up new buildings.
Mr. Millar: Are there any applicants for admission that you cannot admit?
Mr. Castor: There have been some men, and we sent them to the home on State Road and they have taken care of them, but there have not been that many that we had to put up any emergency buildings.
Mr. Millar: How do you distribute relief outside the Poor House—have you any patients at Norristown?
Mr. Castor: Yes, we have some patients at Norristown and at Pennhurst, at Elwood, and two or three other institutions, and for years we were putting them at the Philadelphia General and at Byberry. When I first went on the board they were charging us $3.50 a week board for patients at the Philadelphia General Hospital. They pumped it from $3.50 to, I think, $7.20; and then they jumped it from $7.20 to $9.60 and then they jumped it from $9.60 to $12.00; and then from $12.00 to $19.70, and now it is $21 a week At the end of 1930 we refused to pay the Philadelphia General for the reason that on the back of your tax bill is an item of 7 cents for health and 4 cents for relieving unemployed, and the 4 cents was not we figured for patients in the Byberry or Philadelphia General Hospital. The only cases we have paid them recently are cases where we have excepted their board. At Norristown I believe the act requires that we should pay for insane patients, and we pay the Norristown Hospital $3 a week.
Mr. Millar: Can you tell us how many persons you have at these various institutions outside of your own institution?
Mr. Castor: In Norristown I think there are about 133 or 144 patients. At Byberry I should say here are in the neighborhood of 50, and in the Philadelphia General Hospital there are 60 or 70, and in the Philadelphia General Hospital there are 60 or 70. At the other institutions they are scattered—there may be 30 of them scattered in different institutions.
Mr. Millar: And all the other relief is what the public generally calls outdoor relief?
Mr. Castor: That is the idea.
Mr. Millar: How many people benefit by your outdoor relief, how many benefitted during last year?
Mr. Castor: You mean including 1932?
Mr. Millar: Yes.
Mr. Castor: In 1932 we have taken care of 3000 families. I take care of 600 myself. 3000 families;
Mr. Millar: Every week?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: And would you say that that was true in 1931 also?
Mr. Castor: In 1931 I would say there was maybe 2500 or 2000. It would not be over that.
Mr. Millar: What is the basis of your outdoor relief, do you assign a certain amount of money to a married man with a wife but no children?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: What is your basis there?
Mr. Castor: For a married man a dollar to a dollar and a half.
Mr. Millar: Anything extra for his wife?
Mr. Castor: I said $1 to $1.50—
Mr. Millar: And how much per child?
Mr. Castor: No special rate. Our maximum was $5 per week.
Mr. Millar: Per family?
Mr. Castor: Yes. If they had one or twenty children they would not get over $5 a week.
Mr. Millar: I understand that the poor orders have been destroyed.
Mr. Castor: Yes, some of them. The ones for 1932 have not been destroyed.
Mr. Millar: But those prior to 1932 have been destroyed?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Will you tell us how the board gets tax duplicates?
Mr. Castor: What do you mean by tax duplicates?
Mr. Millar: Who collects your taxes?
Mr. Castor: We have three collectors.
Mr. Millar: For the entire district?
Mr. Castor: Yes, one for each ward.
Mr. Millar: Each ward in the district?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: From where do they get the information?
Mr. Castor: To get the poor tax bills out people go into the office—two of them go out after them.
Mr. Millar: Where do they get the assessments of the property?
Mr. Castor: From the city tax books.
Mr. Millar: And how do they get them? By making copies themselves?
Mr. Castor: No; we advertise for bidders to write the books, and the lowest bidder gets the contract.
Mr. Millar: And how much have those contracts amounted to lately?
Mr. Castor: $400 to $450 for each set of books for each ward.
Mr. Millar: $1200 per year for your poor board?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Do you maintain tax collecting officers?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: And what is the location of them?
Mr. Castor: One is Frankford Avenue above Unity Street, 8038 Frankford Avenue; and the other one Rising Sun below St. Vincent.
Mr. Millar: Where does the tax collector deposit the income or receipts?

Mr. Castor: In the banks.
Mr. Millar: In the name of the poor board?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: In one bank?
Mr. Castor: We were in three banks, unfortunately,—we were in the County Trust Company, the Northeast National and the Frankford Trust Company.
Mr. Millar: Who has the power to draw the money on those accounts?
Mr. Castor: Nobody without three signatures—the treasurer, the secretary and the president.
Mr. Millar: Those officers of the poor board?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: That is the tax collector only has the power to receive the money and deposit it in the offices of the board, having the authority to sign it.
Mr. Castor: For a long time they had accounts in the president's name, and when I went in as president I made them change that so as to have it in the poor board's name.
Mr. Millar: Are the collections deposited daily?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: By each of the three collectors?
Mr. Castor: Yes. It might run for two or three days if the receipts are not big. Each tax collector is bonded.
Mr. Millar: For how much?
Mr. Castor: $5000.
Mr. Millar: What do you call the person to whom you give outside relief—so we will know what we are talking about?
Mr. Castor: I do not know what you would call him.
Mr. Millar: Do you have any name?
Mr. Castor: No, just an unfortunate, that is all.
Mr. Millar: Well, let us call them poor people. How do the poor people obtain the orders for relief?
Mr. Castor: They apply for relief.
Mr. Millar: To whom?
Mr. Castor: The director?
Mr. Millar: To one of the eight directors?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: And do the directors have the power to grant the relief?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Do they get the approval of the board?
Mr. Castor: No, never. If they did we would be in a fix like we are in in Philadelphia now.
Mr. Millar: Is the poor district divided into other districts each
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Can you from memory tell us the boundaries of the various districts?
Mr. Castor: I can tell you a lot of them.
Mr. Millar: Can you tell us your own?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Give us that, please.
Mr. Castor: My own is Ditman Street to Jackson, Jackson to VanKirk and from VanKirk to the west side of Frankford Avenue, and from Frankford to Cottman and over Cottman to Montgomery County and down into Orthodox Street and down Orthodox to Ditman again—about four and one-half square miles.
Mr. Millar: Do you know the population of the district that you take care of?
Mr. Castor: No, I do not.
Mr. Millar: How many poor people are receiving outdoor relief in your district now?
Mr. Castor: Nobody.
Mr. Millar: What is the reason for that?
Mr. Castor: Because we have no money.
Mr. Millar: Is that true of the other seven districts?
Mr. Castor: As far as I know. I do not know of any of them giving orders. They are not supposed to give any orders.
Mr. Millar: Do the poor people apply for these orders personally?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Are they introduced to you by other people?
Mr. Castor: Not necessarily. It may be once in a while one of them may bring in another.
Mr. Millar: What would you say was the custom, that they come alone?
Mr. Castor: It makes no difference, as long as they are worthy.
Mr. Millar: What investigation do you make to determine whether they are worthy?
Mr. Castor: We inquire from people in the neighborhood or send out an investigator and let him dig into it.
Mr. Millar: Is that the invariable rule or is that the exception to the rule?
Mr. Castor: No, we do it.
Mr. Millar: And do you make any effort to continue that investigation as long as a person is receiving relief?
Mr. Castor: Well, we will go along maybe once a month or once every six months and if somebody comes in and says that there is a party that is not worthy then we investigate it and if we find that the party is not worthy we take them off our list.
Mr. Millar. From your experience do you find the board frequently imposed upon?
Mr. Castor: No, I would say the percentage that is unworthy is so small it is not worth bothering with.
Mr. Millar: Have you a blank order with you?
Mr. Castor: No, I have not. I do not carry them.
Mr. Millar: Is it something similar to a check.
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Is it addressed to a merchant?
Mr. Castor: No; we have to write the name in.
Mr. Millar: You have a place provided where the director inserts the name of the merchant against whom the order is given?
Mr. Castor: Yes, that is the idea.
Mr. Millar: And I suppose the address, too?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Does the blank also have the name of the recipient of the order?
Mr. Castor: Yes, that is filled in, and whether it is groceries or to the hospital or the home, we write in the amount and the director signs it.
Mr. Millar: And these orders are good for how long—one week?
Mr. Castor: My orders are good for one week. I do not write them for two or three or four weeks, I write them every week. If I have 1000 of them I write them every week.
Mr. Millar. Do these people have to come back week after week?
Mr. Castor: Not with me. I send them.
Mr. Millar: How do you send them?
Mr. Castor: Through the mail. When the postage was increased we changed to having them delivered, paying two cents for that delivery service instead of three cents postage.
Mr. Millar: Does the order require the endorsement of the recipient.
Mr. Castor: No.
Mr. Millar: Not in your district?
Mr. Castor: And not in any other district, and the Lloyd committee does not require it.
Mr. Millar: Is there a written application filed for every person?
Mr. Castor: No. If we did that we would have to have a lot of clerks.
Mr. Millar: So all your orders are issued on oral applications?
Mr. Castor: That is the idea. We may get a letter once in a while.
Mr. Millar: Have you had any experience of persons who are not supposed to be getting the orders cashing them?
Mr. Castor: I have never had that experience.
Mr. Millar: Have you made any investigation as to whether or not the poor people are getting merchandise at the same prices as other persons?
Mr. Castor: Yes; I am satisfied they are.
Mr. Millar: Has there been any investigation to determine whether they are?
Mr. Castor: Yes. I have had complaints where a grocer would tell us the persons were buying cigarettes of such a thing as cherries for 48 cents a can, and they would stop them, refuse to give them to them.
Mr. Millar: If eggs are selling at 20 cents a dozen do you make any investigation to see that these poor people are paying only that much for them?
Mr. Castor: Yes, I have; and I have not had any doubt that they are getting them for that price, at least I have not had any complaint about it.
Mr. Millar: That is in you whole experience?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: For what commodities do you give orders?
Mr. Castor: For groceries, shoes, coal. I never give an order for clothing.
Mr. Millar: How about rents?
Mr. Castor: I have never paid rent.
Mr. Millar: So the orders are for meat or groceries or coal?
Mr. Castor: The meat would go with the groceries.
Mr. Millar: Or shoes?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Do you employ any of the inmates of the poor house?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Do you pay them?
Mr. Castor: Yes, we pay them a small amount. The highest they get is $4 a week
Mr. Millar: And do you make them support themselves out of that?
Mr. Castor: No.
Mr. Millar: In other words, you give them $4 a week in addition to their support?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: And that is what type of help?
Mr. Castor: That is farm help, they work around the farm and around the place and in the kitchen.
Mr. Millar: And in the laundry?
Mr. Castor: Yes. Kelly generally runs the laundry on account of the people being liable to get hurt there.
Mr. Millar: In your district, that is the particular section you yourself care for, how many merchants do you issue orders against?
Mr. Castor: Myself, I gave orders to about 30 grocery stores outside of the American stores.
Mr. Millar: That raises another question. If you give an order on an American Store do you give it on a particular store?
Mr. Castor: No, just the American Stores, and they can go where they like.
Mr. Millar: Anywhere in Philadelphia?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: And 30 other merchants besides the American Stores?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Millar: And you say the district approximates four and one-half square miles?
Mr. Castor: Yes, sir.
Mr. Millar: How are the stores selected?
Mr. Castor: By the people, if they come in and ask for a store I will give them an order on it.
Mr. Millar: And if they do not specify, what then?
Mr. Castor: I will give it to the nearest grocery store that I have the name of.
Mr. Millar: Do you find any applications filed by these merchants for orders on themselves?
Mr. Castor: There have only been two of them come to me and ask me why they did not get some of the orders, and I told them if they would come in to me and if they were worthy, I would give them orders, and I found out they were worthy and I gave them orders.
Mr. Tahl: I understand that all the food orders have been destroyed up until 1932.
Mr. Castor: Yes, sir.
Mr. Tahl: You were present at the last session of this committee, were you?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: And you heard Mr. Mitchell testify that it was done on your order?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: Is that correct?
Mr. Castor: No, sir, it is not corect.
Mr. Tahl: In other words, you say, Mr. Castor, that you never gave any orders to destroy these?

Mr. Castor: No, sir. In March of this year Mr. Mitchell came to me and said "What will we do with these orders"—I judged there were 200 to 300 orders. I said to put them with the other orders. He said: "I have burned them." Evidently he has been burning them ever since he has been there, because he could not find orders from previous years.

Mr. Tahl: Did he ever have any authority from any of the members of the board to destroy them?

Mr. Castor: He never had any authority. He took it for granted evidently from past years. I thought the orders were there from way back but evidently they were destroyed each year. That is the only thing I can see.

Mr. Tahl: I think you said that there were eight directors.

Mr. Castor: Yes.

Mr. Tahl: And that each director has charge of his particular district?

Mr. Castor: That is right.

Mr. Tahl: Do I corectly understand, then, that the director in his particular district is the sole authority as to what he wishes to do without any further instructions from the entire board?

Mr. Castor: In what way?

Mr. Tahl: As to who is to get the help.

Mr. Castor: That is the idea.

Mr. Tahl: In other words, he has the sole decision?

Mr. Castor: Yes. If we called a directors' meeting every time any body wanted an order we would be in session every day.

Mr. Tahl: I did not ask you that, but only whether or not that was the practice of your board. So that whatever goes on in the other seven districts you have no knowledge of that?

Mr. Castor: I have no jurisdiction over them.

Mr. Tahl: And the board never meets to compare notes as to whether or not certain people should or should not get help?

Mr. Castor: No.

Mr. Tahl: They never considered that?

Mr. Castor: No, sir.

Mr. Tahl: Now, Mr. Castor, how many merchants are there in your district who sell groceries?

Mr. Castor: Oh, I never counted them.

Mr. Tahl: I mean approximately.

Mr. Castor: I do not know how many. There may be a hundred of them. I do not know what stores there are, but they are here and there and everywhere, merchants have popped up like mushrooms lately.

Mr. Tahl: I mean reputable merchants.

Mr. Castor: Well, I would say there are a hundred of them.

Mr. Tahl: You have stated that you gave orders to these merchants that the people asked for.

Mr. Castor: That is the idea.

Mr. Tahl: Did you ever examine the records to see whether or not the same merchants always get the orders?

Mr. Castor: What do you mean by the same merchants?

Mr. Tahl: I mean to say you have people in various sections of your district and merchants from various sections of your district. I want to know whether the same merchants always get the orders.

Mr. Castor: You mean year in and year out?

Mr. Tahl: Yes.

Mr. Castor: No, not from me, they do not.

Mr. Tahl: Then you should have more than 30 merchants.

Mr. Castor: I could get a hundred of them if I wanted to.

Mr. Tahl: Do you not think it would be fair to go out and distribute these orders among more merchants?

Mr. Castor: No. Look at the fund here in Philadelphia. They give them to only one or two—the A. & P. and one or two others. I am just telling you what the rest are doing.

Mr. Baldi: Is your treasurer here today?

Mr. Castor: No, I do not think he is. I do not see Mr. Carson.

Mr. Baldi: Would you say you were getting any income from the sale of farm products?

Mr. Castor: No.

Mr. Baldi: You are using them entirely in the poor house, are you?

Mr. Castor: Yes.

Mr. Baldi: Have you any applications outstanding for women?

Mr. Castor: Only one. That will be in tomorrow.

Mr. Baldi: You said you were not filled up as far as women were concerned.

Mr. Castor: Yes, we have room for maybe 20 women.

Mr. Baldi: When you spoke of these orders being formerly mailed and now, since the passage of the law increasing the postal rate you are having them delivered, who delivers them?

Mr. Castor: My brother-in-law delivered mine.

Mr. Baldi: And he is paid 2 cents a letter?

Mr. Castor: Yes. That was only done for two weeks and then we stopped giving orders.

Mr. Baldi: You say you use about 30 stores in the neighborhood?

Mr. Castor: Yes, besides the American Stores.

Mr. Baldi: That is in one year or what do you mean by 30?

Mr. Castor: All the time, about 30 stores.

Mr. Baldi: The same 30 stores the last year?

Mr. Castor: No, but I cover about 30 grocery stores.

Mr. Baldi: You did not mean you had been using the same 30 stores every year?

Mr. Castor: Oh, no, not since I have been on the board.

Mr. Baldi: You mean 30 stores during the last year?

Mr. Castor: Yes.

Mr. Millar: I do not think I covered 1932 income. I think you told me delinquent taxes 1st of January 1931 amounted to $55,000?

Mr. Castor: No, about $86,000 we had outstanding at the first of the year. I think that went back about ten years.

Mr. Millar: What was the outstanding delinquent taxes January 1st of this year?

Mr. Castor: I could not tell you. The treasurer would have that.

Mr. Millar: Mr. Mitchell promised to furnish us a list of the names and addresses of the persons receiving outdoor relief. Do you know whether that has been prepared?

Mr. Castor: No.

Mr. Millar: Will you see that it is prepared and sent to us?

Mr. Castor: Yes.

Mr. Millar: What legal services does the solicitor of the poor board render?

Mr. Castor: He files liens whenever there is anything worth filing for. Some of our taxes only run 6 cents. When they run up into money he goes after them. Mr. Baldi had a case on a bill where the man died. And he collected on it. That was James L. Adams, the solicitor.

Mr. Millar: Mr. Castor, we have a list of papers that have been placed at the disposition of the committee— assessment and tax records from 1928 to 1931. Also cash books for the same period?

Mr. Castor: Yes.

Mr. Millar: And vouchers for the same period?

Mr. Castor: Yes.

Mr. Millar: The general fund orders?

Mr. Castor: Yes, they are here.

Mr. Millar: The ones from 1928 to 1932?

Mr. Castor: For 1932. The other orders were burned.

Mr. Millar: They are the food orders?

Mr. Castor: Yes, but we have the bills, with the names and the addresses.

Mr. Millar: Let us have the bills then.

Mr. Castor: Well, they are here.

Mr. Millar: And the general ledger?

Mr. Castor: That is down here. The only thing we did not have here the other day was the bank book, I believe, and a copy of one of the order books.

Mr. Millar: And cancelled checks?

Mr. Castor: They were here, but the assessment and taxes for 1928, you did not have them here.

Mr. Millar: Is it possible for you to assign a room in the poor house for our use?

Mr. Castor: Yes.

Mr. Millar: And you will place that room at our disposal for the examination of these records?

Mr. Castor: Yes, sir.

Mr. Millar: Mr. Castor, in the annual report ending December 31, 1931, the last item under disbursements I see is "Sundry account, twenty-nine thirty-eight." What does that cover?

Mr. Castor: I could not tell you, I do not know what it is, to tell you the truth. The treasurer may be able to tell you what it is.

Mr. Millar: 1931, disbursement for traveling expenses, moving patients, $112.02, but in 1930 the expense for the same thing was $1181. Do you know the reason for the difference?

Mr. Castor: I do not know the reason for it.

Mr. Millar: Does that mean traveling expenses?

Mr. Castor: It cannot be that much for travel of patients, $1100, because transferring is from Byberry to Norristown, and at Byberry it was $5 and at Norristown it was $3. We did that to save $2 on a patient.

Mr. Millar: In 1930, traveling, transportation of patients, the two items are separate, and they amount to only $51, whereas in 1931 the combined items amounted to $112, an addition of over $50. Does the board go to the convention of poor directors?

Mr. Castor: Yes.

Mr. Millar: Where was the convention held last year?

Mr. Castor: At Altoona.

Mr. Millar: Altoona, Pennsylvania?

Mr. Castor: Yes.

Mr. Millar: And how many directors went?

Mr. Castor: All the directors, and the steward and matron.

Mr. Millar: And is it a custom for those persons to go?

Mr. Castor: Yes, it is an act of the legislature that gives them the right to go.

Mr. Millar: And the same act authorizes them to collect their traveling expenses?

Mr. Castor: Positively.

Mr. Millar: How long does the convention last?

Mr. Castor: Three or four days. It is three days in Harrisburg this year—the 3rd, 4th and 5th of October. At Altoona we required five days.

Mr. Millar: In the minutes of the board for August 20, 1931, there is an appropriation of $2000 for convention expenses?

Mr. Castor: That is correct.

Mr. Millar: Is that for the expenses of these 11 persons going to Altoona for three or four days?

Mr. Castor: Yes, five days.

Mr. Millar: Does the board get vouchers for the expenses?

Mr. Castor: Yes.

Mr. Millar: In the expenses for 1930 there was a similar appropriation. Was that for the same purpose?

Mr. Castor: Yes. 1930—let us see.

Mr. Millar: $2000 was for current expenses in 1930. Was current expenses the expense of the convention?

Mr. Castor: No. I do not know how he has written those minutes, but it would be in there. It is always in September or October—the convention is held then. One year I think they moved it up into the middle of September.

Mr. Tahl: Was it in 1930 that you said you expended $2000?

Mr. Castor: I do not know which year it was. Whatever it is, it is in the minute book; that is correct.

Mr. Tahl: You had 11 persons at the convention?

Mr. Castor: Yes.

Mr. Tahl: And the convention was five days?

Mr. Castor: Yes.

Mr. Tahl: What did you spend $2000 for? Will you explain to the committee what the $2000 expenditure was for?

Mr. Castor: Yes. They always take their wives.

Mr. Tahl: Oh, you take your wives along? Is that also provided in the act of the Legislature?

Mr. Castor: It does not say whom you should take or what you should pay. It just says the right to go to the convention.

Mr. Tahl: And you construed it to include your wives?

Mr. Castor: They always have taken them, it has always been done.
Mr. Tahl: So you used this poor money, that is the board did, for themselves and wives to go to the conventions?
Mr. Castor: That is the idea.
Mr. Tahl: Will you also explain how you can spend $2000 in three or four days, will you explain how that money has been spent?
Mr. Castor: For the hotel bills, transportation and meals.
Mr. Tahl: What is the cost of transportation?
Mr. Castor: I do not know. It depends on where you go.
Mr. Tahl: Well, this time you had it in Altoona, on this occasion what was the transportation cost?
Mr. Castor: I do not know.
Mr. Tahl. How many miles is Altoona from Philadelphia?
Mr. Castor: It is half way to Pittsburgh, is it not?
Mr. Tahl: Have you any idea what the railroad fare is to Altoona from Philadelphia?
Mr. Castor: No; I forget what it is now.
Mr. Tahl: Have you any idea what the hotel bills amounted to?
Mr. Castor: No, I do not keep a record of that stuff.
Mr. Tahl: Well, do you not think when you pay out the taxpayers' money you should have it itemized?
Mr. Castor: I do not know why.
Mr. Tahl: You did not think it was necessary to itemize it?
Mr. Castor: No.
Mr. Tahl: All right. That is your conception of the duties of the board. That is all.
Mr. Dicker: I would like the opportunity of presenting some direct testimony from Mr. Castor as to details of the poor board.
The Chairman: Very well.
Mr. Dicker: Referring to this little booklet which Mr. Millar showed you, of which I have a copy, the 1931 report, these reports are made annually by three elected auditors, are they not?
Mr. Castor: That is correct.
Mr. Dicker: They are elected by the people, and they audit your report?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Dicker: The report is printed and is available for public distribution?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Dicker: And the original report is filed in the Court of Quarter Sessions for the County of Philadelphia?
Mr. Castor: That is correct, and advertised in the Philadelphia papers.
Mr. Dicker: You have no control over the auditors or the audits, they are elected by the people in the poor district?
Mr. Castor: That is right.
Mr. Dicker: There has been some question as to the giving out of orders to grocers. In your particular district since you have just spoken for those outside of the two grocers you testified had come to you and asked you why they were not getting some of the poor board business, has there been any criticism by other merchants in your neighborhood that favoritism was being shown to a selected few merchants?
Mr. Castor: Not in my own particular district.
Mr. Dicker: Has there been any in other districts?
Mr. Castor: I have heard of it.
Mr. Dicker: In other districts of your particular poor board?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Dicker: But as I understand it each individual director is a law unto himself as to that?
Mr. Castor: Yes, sir.
Mr. Dicker: When was the first time you actually knew that Mr. Mitchell was destroying these orders?
Mr. Castor: In March of 1932 he told me he had destroyed them.
Mr. Dicker: You heard it again here last Wednesday?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Dicker: Did you have a board meeting on Thursday?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Dicker: Did you recommend any action be taken as to Mr. Mitchell because of his destruction of the records?
Mr. Castor: I brought it up before the board.
Mr. Dicker: Did you recommend that he be discharged?
Mr. Castor: Yes. They thought it was advisable because he knew the records in all the books and the audits.
Mr. Dicker: Was the question of his discharge held in abeyance with the idea of his aiding the committee?
Mr. Castor: That is the idea.
Mr. Dicker: Has there been some criticism of the right of the city controller to examine the books of your poor board?
Mr. Castor: The city controller happened to come up there one Friday. I just happened to be in there and they sent a man named Murphy, one of their auditors, with an assistant, and they said they came to audit the books. I said "I think the world of Hadley and I think the world of his office, but the board figures that Hadley or the controller has no business to audit our books," and I told him it was our desire to turn the books over to them if they could show where they had the right, and if this committee would give them a letter showing where they had the right to do that, we will be only too glad.
Mr. Dicker: Did your solicitor give you an opinion that the city controller had no right to examine the books?
Mr. Castor: Yes; the city solicitor was at the meeting and he agreed he had no right to the books.
Mr. Tahl: This request by the controller was after this committee had taken the matter up or before?
Mr. Castor: It was before, I guess maybe two weeks before. It was on Friday. I guess about two or three weeks before.
Mr. Tahl: Before this investigation had started?
Mr. Castor: Yes. the resolution had been put through. The resolution had been put through at Harrisburg, but you had not started any investigation yet.
Mr. Dicker: So that, to put yourself on record, you personally as a director of the poor board are in favor of having the city controller audit the books, but acting under the advice of your solicitor you have taken the position that he does not have the authority to do so?
Mr. Castor: That is right.
Mr. Dicker: And as long as a court of competent jurisdiction says he has the authority to do so I take it the board will permit him to examine the books?
Mr. Castor: The board will.
Mr. Dicker: What influences of a political nature have either interfered with the administration and conduct of the board or have attempted to so interfere with the conduct of the board?
Mr. Castor: The day I was elected president on March 15th, 1928, the chairman of this investigating committee came into our board room and he had the president, Mr. Titus to resign as president or chairman of the committee. He had his neighbor, Robert B. Haines in the machine outside and he had him appointed in Mr. Titus' place. He stayed as a director for one month and then he had him resign and he made some kind of a deal with Frank Dickel and Mr. Dickel was appointed in Mr. Haines' place, and Mr. Dickel was later elected for a full term.
Mr. Dicker: I understand you to say the first occurrence was March 15, 1928?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Dicker: And that was there?
Mr. Castor: In the directors' room, in the board room.
Mr. Dicker: Mr. Royle appeared there in person, did he?
Mr. Castor: Yes, sir.
Mr. Dicker: And at that time Casper Titus resigned as president of the board?
Mr. Castor: And also as a director.
Mr. Dicker: Was there anything said concerning his resignation or request for his resignation?
Mr. Castor: Mr. Royle took him outside in another room.
Mr. Dicker: You do not know what was said outside there?
Mr. Castor: No. Mr. Titus came in and handed his resignation in.
Mr. Dicker: Yo do not know what happened outside but Mr. Titus came back and resigned?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Dicker: What happened the next day?
Mr. Castor: Mr. Haines was appointed in Mr. Titus' place.
Mr. Dicker: You mean he was elected by the other members of the board?
Mr. Castor: By the other members.
Mr. Dicker: And did Mr. Royle have anything to say in connection with his election?
Mr. Castor: He brought him in and said he wanted him elected in Mr. Titus' place.
Mr. Dicker: And did the board follow his suggestion?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Dicker: And he was elected?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Dicker: He was elected a director?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Dicker: And president?
Mr. Castor: No, I was elected president.
Mr. Dicker: And he remained for a month?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Dicker: And then he resigned?
Mr. Castor: Yes, sir.
Mr. Dicker: And Mr. Dickel was then elected by the board in his place?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Dicker: Was there any verbal suggestion made by anyone that Mr. Dickel should be elected to the board? Did someone, did Mr. Royle specifically—
Mr. Tahl: Wait a minute. What is the purpose of this? He was elected. After all, we are interested in the conduct of the poor board, whether they conduct their business properly, and what has this inquiry now to do with it.
Mr. Dicker: I would say it was very pertinent when the people are supposed to elect the members of their board, if an individual comes before the board clothed with some intangible but very powerful political power and says "I have John Jones here and I want him elected to conduct the affairs of the organization and to spend $150.000 of the taxpayers' money."
Mr. Tahl: These men were elected and they did not have to follow anybody's judgment. I do not think this is relevant, and speaking for myself I would ask the gentlemen not to persist with the examination along that line.
Mr. Dicker: I would like to say this: That it seems to me it is just as relevant as to whether these men are to be criticised or not for the exercise of their discretion in taking the suggestions of political leaders in the election of members of the board.
Mr. Haws: Who has criticised it—
Mr. Dicker: I have not finished my sentence. I say it is just as relevant as that 30 grocery men are being picked by the poor board. My purpose in developing this testimony is to give this information as to how some of these poor boards are being administered. If you do not want to hear that testimony I will not pursue this line.
Mr. Baldi: What was the question?
(The reporter read the questoin as follows: "Mr. Dicker: Was there any verbal suggestion made by anyone that Mr. Dickel should be elected to the board? Did someone, did Mr. Royle specifically"—
Mr. Tahl: My suggestion is that I personally feel that I am not interested in any politics in that ward or any ward up northeast. All I am interested in is to get the facts of how this board is administered and what they do with their money. I will ask you to give us facts.
Mr. Dicker: I was careful to say to Mr. Castor not to say anything that was not stated in his presence.
(The pending question was again repeated by the reporter).
Mr. Dicker: Did Mr. Royle have anything to say about the election of Mr. Dickel to the board in your presence and hearing?
Mr. Castor: Mr. Royle told me himself he was going to get together with Mr. Dickel.
Mr. Dicker: What did you understand that to mean?
Mr. Castor: To have him put on the board.
Mr. Dicker: Subsequent to that conversation with Mr. Dickel, was he put on the board?

Mr. Castor: Mr. Dickel was put on the board.
Mr. Dicker: Do you know anything, Mr. Castor, about the issuance of relief orders by members of the board, for vote purposes around election time?
Mr. Castor: I do not.
Mr. Tahl: Now, Mr. Castor, of course in administering the affairs of the board you and your directors did what you thought was the best thing to do?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: You did not permit anybody to interfere with your judgment, did you?
Mr. Castor: What do you mean by that?
Mr. Tahl: I say you did not let anybody interefer with your duties?
Mr. Castor: In what respect?
Mr. Tahl: In whatever came out in your official capacity, your action was not controlled by anyone?
Mr. Castor: I did myself, yes.
Mr. Tahl: How about the other members of the board?
Mr. Castor: I cannot speak for them.
Mr. Tahl: But you were not influenced by anybody to do the wrong thing, were you?
Mr. Castor: I was not.
Mr. Tahl: You are speaking for yourself?
Mr. Castor: Yes, speaking for myself.
Mr. Millar: Did you vote for or against Dickel?
Mr. Castor: I did not have a vote.
Mr. Millar: Why?
Mr. Castor: I was president.
Mr. Millar: You mean for us to gather the thought that Mr. Dickel is not the proper person to be on the board?
Mr. Castor: No, I do not say that.
Mr. Millar: Do you mean to say that he is disqualified?
Mr. Castor: No.
Mr. Millar: Would you say he was inefficient?
Mr. Castor: No.
Mr. Millar: Or not intelligent?
Mr. Castor: No.
Mr. Millar: Or crooked?
Mr. Castor: No.
Mr. Millar: What is wrong with him? And you considered him well fitted for the position?
Mr. Castor: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: And do you think he should not be recommended for the job?
Mr. Castor: What do you mean?
Mr. Tahl: If you thought you were qualified for something would you think it would be improper for someone to urge your appointment?
Mr. Castor: No.
Mr. Tahl: What is your criticism then?
Mr. Castor: I have no criticism, except for a man in the Legislature to come into the board meeting and take part, and then call for an investigation of the poor board.
Mr. Millar: Did he have a vote?
Mr. Castor: Who?
Mr. Millar: Mr. Royle?
Mr. Castor: He had better than a vote. If they did not go along they would not be elected.
Mr. Millar: What do you mean by that?
Mr. Castor: The ward would not be for them. That is better than a vote.
Mr. Millar: Who told you that?
Mr. Castor: I know it.
Mr. Millar: Then you think he has great influence in the section in which the poor board operates?
Mr. Castor: He does with the leader.
Mr. Millar: Does he get the votes?
Mr. Castor: He has been getting them.
Mr. Millar: Then he seems to have the people with him too, does he not?
Mr. Castor: Apparently.
Mr. Millar: What is your criticism of that?
Mr. Castor: I have no criticism.
Mr. Millar: You took occasion immediately after this resolution was passed to throw some darts around?
Mr. Castor: I did not throw any darts.
Mr. Millar: Did the papers corectly quote you in what they said?
Mr. Castor: In what respect?
Mr. Millar: Tell we where they incorrectly quoted you.
Mr. Castor: You tell me.
Mr. Millar: You said this committee should be investigated and the newspaper reporters are not telling the truth?
Mr. Castor: I never said such a thing. Whatever I say I will stand back of it.
Mr. Millar: Even back of the records that were destroyed?
Mr. Castor: I had nothing to do with any orders that were destroyed.
Mr. Millar: Do you think if the operation of the poor boards can be improved as the result of an intelligent investigation that that should not be made?
Mr. Castor: It should be made.
Mr. Millar: But you are opposed to it?
Mr. Castor: The more investigation the better I like it.
Mr. Millar: Why do you think they need it?
Mr. Castor: I do not think they need it but I want to clear myself, because this thing started in 1926, and the day of the meeting Mr. Royle said: "Don't bring the 1926 and 1927 records, but start in 1928, when Castor was elected president."
Mr. Millar: Who said that?
Mr. Castor: The subpoenas. Mr. Royle changed the subpoenas from 1926, he did not take in 1926.
The Chairman: How far back do you want to go?
Mr. Castor: As far as you like, the further the better.
Mr. Millar: That is another one of your misstatements?
Mr. Castor: It is not a misstatement.
Mr. Millar: Mr. Royle did not prepare the subpoenas; the subpoena is one that I prepared, I prepared the subpoenas.
Mr. Castor: It was signed by the chairman.
Mr. Millar: I said I prepared them, and what I put in—1928 was not put in.
Mr. Castor: I say it was.
Mr. Millar: I say it was not.
Mr. Dicker: I have a subjoena here. This says to bring all cancelled checks and all other books since January 1st, 1926, except only the current books and records of the said board.
Mr. Tahl: These subpoenas were prepared by Mr. Millar of the committee and of course they were then signed by Mr. Royle, but Mr. Royle did not prepare these subpoenas.
Mr. Millar: And he did not prepare the notices that went with the subpoenas, and you, Mr. Dicker, know he did not.
Mr. Dicker: I am quite sure of that.
Mr. Tahl: There is no doubt that you have some feeling against the chairman of this committee.
Mr. Castor: I have not a thing against Mr. Royle. We were always friends until the councilmanic election.
Mr. Millar: You are perfectly satisfied to submit all the records and all your papers to the committee?
Mr. Castor: I am willing to submit everything and help them in every way I can help them.
Mr. Tahl: That is the idea, and your are satisfied of course this committee has nothing in mind except to develop the facts are they appear?
Mr. Castor: I am satisfied of that. I happen to know everybody that is on it.
Mr. Millar: And you do not think the committee ought to be investigated?
Mr. Castor: I never said such a thing. If I said it I would stick to it but I never said such a thing.
(Mr. Castor was excused.)
Mr. Millar: Who is the President of the Roxborough Poor District?
Mr. Pope: I am.
(Mr. Pope thereupon came forward.)

Testimony of Ralph W. Pope (heretofore sworn.)

Mr. Pollish: To aid the committee along the lines they want to interrogate this witness, I have prepared for the purpose of the witness certain salient facts that I would like to read into the record. It so happens that we are prepared only to account for the records of the poor board since the present board have been members of it. There are no records available to us of what took place prior to January, 1930, when the present board took hold of the affairs of the poor district, and we want to show that by efficient administration and economy this board has in the course of two and a half years wiped out a deficit of $8000.
The Chairman: The committee will accept your statement without reading it at this time.
Mr. Millar: You are president of the Roxborough Poor District?
Mr. Pope: Yes, sir.
Mr. Millar: Will you give us the exact name of the poor district?
Mr. Pope: Directors of the Poor of Roxborough.
Mr. Millar: And what is the geographic area of the district?
Mr. Pope: It takes in 18 of the 30 divisions of the ward.
Mr. Millar: Can you give us the streets?
Mr. Pope: I would have to give you a map because it is an irregular line, but I can furnish you with a map.
Mr. Millar: Is it the upper or lower end of the ward?
Mr. Pope: It is the northeastern end of the ward.
Mr. Millar: Then, to give us an idea of it—
Mr. Pope: Possibly, I can give you a brief outline.
Mr. Millar: For instance, the southern line is where?
Mr. Pope: It runs down into Ridge Avenue and School Lane, and then it goes along Ridge Avenue to Terrace Street, up Trerace Street to Walnut Lane, which was known as Schurr's Lane; up Schurr's Lane to Manayunk Avenue, and straight through Manayunk to an imaginary line to Parker Avenue, and then down to the river, and then to City Line.
Mr. Millar: Do you know the population in that district?
Mr. Pope: I cannot give you that off hand.
Mr. Millar: Do you know the area in square miles?
Mr. Pope: I cannot give you that.
Mr. Millar: How many directors are there?
Mr. Pope: Three directors.
Mr. Millar: And who are they?
Mr. Pope: John Sheldrick, John Kenworthy and myself.
Mr. Millar: And Mr. Kenworthy's term expires in 1934?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Millar: And your's in 1936?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Millar: And Mr. Shledrick's in 1938?
Mr. Pope: That is correct.
Mr. Millar: Do you have a poor house?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Where is it located?
Mr. Pope: On East Shawmont Avenue.
Mr. Millar: How much ground have you?
Mr. Pope: 22 acres.
Mr. Millar: Is it under cultivation?
Mr. Pope: 16 acres of our land are under cultivation and we have borrowed and are using five and a half acres of other land that is under cultivation.
Mr. Millar: And the poor house is located on this property?
Mr. Pope: On our property, yes.
Mr. Millar: On your 22 acres?
Mr. Pope: Yes, sir.
Mr. Millar: What is the capacity of the poor house?
Mr. Pope: 15 men and 8 women.
Mr. Millar: Is it filled to its capacity now?

Mr. Pope: As far as the men are concerned, yes, and there is room for one woman.
Mr. Millar: Any children?
Mr. Pope: No.
Mr. Millar: Are the men and women separated?
Mr. Pope: Yes; the men are on the second floor and the women are on the first floor.
Mr. Millar: Have you any applications for admission that you cannot honor?
Mr. Pope: No.
Mr. Millar: Have you found any necessity for more room?
Mr. Pope: Not during the time I have been there.
Mr. Millar: How long have you been there?
Mr. Pope: Since January 1, 1930.
Mr. Millar: A little over two years?
Mr. Pope: Yes, sir.
Mr. Millar: How many employees has the board now?
Mr. Pope: The board has a steward and a matron. That is all.
Mr. Millar: Do they live there?
Mr. Pope: Let me qualify that. We have one man who looks up and audits our tax books.
Mr. Millar: The steward and matron live at the poor house?
Mr. Pope: Yes sir.
Mr. Millar: What is the salary of the steward?
Mr. Pope: The steward receives $90 a month, $1080 a year; the matron receives $35 a month.
Mr. Millar: Who cultivates the ground?
Mr. Pope: The steward.
Mr. Millar: And the inmates?
Mr. Pope: The inmates, yes.
Mr. Millar: Do you pay the inmates anything?
Mr. Pope: There is only one man there that is paid. He is allowed $1 a week for tobacco. Otherwise there is no other person paid.
Mr. Millar: Do the inmates take care of the cooking and laundry?
Mr. Pope: They do—supervised by the matron.
Mr. Millar: Is the condition of the property good or bad?
Mr. Pope: Very good.
Mr. Millar: And you have on the outside this one man who audits the taxes, did you say?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Millar: What is his name?
Mr. Pope: John A. Blankin.
Mr. Millar: What is his salary?
Mr. Pope: We pay him $250 a year for all the work, including furnishing the books, checking the taxes and auditing and straightening out everything, and turning over the definite amount received.
Mr. Millar: If you know, on January 1st, 1931, what was the amount of the delinquent taxes?
Mr. Pope: I could not tell you that.
Mr. Millar: Can you approximate it?
Mr. Pope: No. I cannot say that I could. The receiver of taxes would know that.
Mr. Millar: The receiver of taxes collects your poor tax for you?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Millar: And is that paid by an appropriation from councils?
Mr. Pope: By an ordinance of councils that authorizes the receiver of taxes to pay us the amount collected for us.
Mr. Millar: And how are you paid—monthly?
Mr. Pope: March 15th each year we receive a partial payment of $12,000, and then the balance, whatever it may be—this year it amounts to $14,972.87—leaving a balance of $2,972.87 still due us for 1931 taxes, which we are working on this year.
Mr. Millar: The receiver of taxes only pays you after he collects, does he not?
Mr. Pope: Yes, sir.
Mr. Millar: If all the taxes for 1932 were collected what would be the income from that source?
Mr. Pope: I could not give you the definite amount but I would say it would be in the neighborhood of $14,000.
Mr. Millar: Do you know the amount of delinquent taxes at the beginning of this year?
Mr. Pope: No.
Mr. Millar: This $2,900 you spoke of is delinquent, is it not?
Mr. Pope: No; that was all collected with the taxes; the total collections collected last year would be $14,922.
Mr. Millar: And that $2,900 has not been paid?
Mr. Pope: That is correct. There is an ordinance in council now for that to be paid.
Mr. Millar: It is not a blanket ordinance, you have to get a separate ordinance every time the taxes are paid?
Mr. Pope: I believe that is estimated by the budget that is made up by the receiver of taxes, that is put into the councils each year.
Mr. Millar: Does the collector of taxes charge you or charge the board for collecting taxes?
Mr. Pope: I believe we only received four mills.
Mr. Millar: But you do get the four mills?
Mr. Pope: Four mills a hundred on city, two mills on country and one mill on farming.
Mr. Millar: And the collections last year were close to $15,000.
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Do you have the proportion of overhead to income, in percentage?
Mr. Pope: Not in percentage.
Mr. Millar: Have you it in dollars and cents?
Mr. Pope: The overhead last year: Three directors, $1,500; and the steward and matron and the pay for the man for the tax bills.
Mr. Millar: What was the figure—
Mr. Pope: You mean as far as salaries are concerned?
Mr. Millar: No, maintenance. I mean the buildings, not the individuals.
Mr. Pope: Maintenance for the buildings and so forth, we have that in our annual reports for the two years.
Mr. Millar: Do you know how much it costs you to operate the poor house?
Mr. Pope: Yes. For the home, which includes the salary of two people, in 1930 it cost us $4678.35.
Mr. Millar: You say that was for the year 1930?
Mr. Pope: Yes, sir. In 1931 it was $4995.
Mr. Millar: And what was the population last year?
Mr. Pope: 15.
Mr. Millar: And at the present time the population is 23?
Mr. Pope: No, the total is 15—11 and 4. Last year there were 11 and 5, 16 in all.
Mr. Millar: Have you the population there for 1930 and 1931?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Millar: What was the population for 1930?
Mr. Pope: 15; and 16 in 1931.
Mr. Millar: And now it is 15?
Mr. Pope: That is right.
Mr. Millar: What is done with the product of the land under cultivation?
Mr. Pope: You mean the vegetables?
Mr. Millar: Is it used on the place?
Mr. Pope: The vegetables are fed to the inmates first. In other words their wants are taken care of, and then any surplus is sold.
Mr. Millar: To whom?
Mr. Pope: To whoever will buy it. Many hucksters go back and buy and wherever we can get the best price we sell it.
Mr. Millar: Do you know the value of the farm products for 1931?
Mr. Pope: Yes. I have the receipts from the farm in 1931 over and above what was used in the home.
Mr. Millar: What was that?
Mr. Pope: $591.41.
Mr. Millar: And do you know what was used in the home?
Mr. Pope: We have not an accurate account for 1931 but we will have for 1932. But I can assure you that they were given the choice before any were sold.
Mr. Millar: Do you have any income from other sources than taxes?
Mr. Pope: Yes. We have some board from inmates, interest on bank accounts, and we also have a slight amount we get for disposal of manure, besides that which goes on the farm.
Mr. Millar: What was the gross income last year?
Mr. Pope: Including the loan we borrowed—
Mr. Millar: Did you borrow any money?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Millar: How much?
Mr. Pope: Last year $3500. Including that it was $19919.57.
Mr. Millar: And what were the expenses?
Mr. Pope: You want the expense of what was paid out to the other institutions?
Mr. Millar: I want to get in groups the disbursements outside of relief. It was how much?
Mr. Pope: $1040. That includes groceries, coal and clothing and shoes.
Mr. Millar: Can you tell us quickly what the other disbursements were?
Mr. Pope: Yes. The farm was $497.22. That was feed, seeds and so forth, labor and blacksmith. The home, which included groceries, clothing, light, repairs for home, doctor and medicine, ice, hardware and supplies for home, equipment and storage, matron, $4990.95.
Mr. Millar: What else?
Mr. Pope: Miscellaneous, including printing and postage; Norristown State Hospital; Children's Aid Society; safe deposit box, tax books, telephone, session of directors of the poor, purchase of auto truck, interest on loans, total $4670.31. The bill at Norristown Hospital was $3620.21.
Mr. Millar: How many patients have you there?
Mr. Pope: At the end of 1931 at the Norristown Hospital we had 30 patients; one patient in the Philadelphia General Hospital; one patient under the care of the Children's Aid Society, and one patient in Allentown State Hospital.
Mr. Millar: And what were the other disbursements—or is that all?
Mr. Pope: That is all.
Mr. Millar: I thought you told me one group was $4900. The outside relief is about what?
Mr. Pope: $1040.
Mr. Millar: And this last group, $4000?
Mr. Pope: Yes, sir.
Mr. Millar: That s a total of $11000 and your gross income was $19000—
Mr. Pope: No, the total disbursement was $19919.57.
Mr. Pollish: Mr. Pope forgot to state that a loan of $4500 was repaid.
Mr. Millar: In other words, the disbursements practically equal the receipts?
Mr. Pope: They did equal them, yes.
Mr. Millar: Did you have to borrow any money?
Mr. Pope: We have not borrowed any money this year and we hope we will not have to if we get our share.
Mr. Millar: From where—from the Talbot fund?
Mr. Pope: No, I mean from the city.
Mr. Millar: How much did you get from the Talbot fund this year?
Mr. Pope: $20156.80.
Mr. Millar: On August 27th you still had $302.80 left?
Mr. Pope: That is correct.
Mr. Millar: Have you any other cash in bank besides that?
Mr. Pope: Yes; we have cash in bank at the present time amounting to $982, I believe.
Mr. Millar: Including this Talbot balance?
Mr. Pope: No, separate from that.
Mr. Millar: And a toal of $1200 now?
Mr. Pope: Yes; but that Talbot fund does not mean anything as far as we are concerned. That is administered separately.
Mr. Millar: You distribute it, do you not?
Mr. Pope: No; the Lloyd committee distributes it and we have paid the bills.
Mr. Millar: Is that true of all the poor boards?
Mr. Pope: I don't know. It is true of ours.
Mr. Millar: How many people are receiving outside relief?
Mr. Pope: From the Talbot?

Mr. Millar: No.
Mr. Pope: We have about sixteen families now; that is all.
Mr. Millar: And have you a basic rate for each family?
Mr. Pope: Yes. We figure then on what the requirements of the family may be, our orders very seldom run over $5, unless it is an unusual case, where a family may consist of six or seven children.
Mr. Millar: Are those orders issued on written application?
Mr. Pope: No.
Mr. Millar: Verbal?
Mr. Pope: Yes, and we generally receive them through the churches or police department or personal application.
Mr. Millar. I do not remember the number you gave. Did you say 15?
Mr. Pope: About 15 or 16 families.
Mr. Millar: Has that average been maintained during the past year?
Mr. Pope: No, it has been up to 25 or 28 and even more than that before the Talbot fund—possibly up to 30.
Mr. Millar: We are talking about the relief from the district without the Talbot fund.
Mr. Pope: Yes, I am speaking of that. Before the Talbot fund there were cases that had to have relief and we stepped in and we took care of them until the Talbot fund became active.
Mr. Millar: To whom are these orders issued?
Mr. Pope: To grocers.
Mr. Millar: What form does your relief take—fuel?
Mr. Pope: Fuel.
Mr. Millar: Meats?
Mr. Pope: Coal and groceries.
Mr. Millar: Milk?
Mr. Pope: Milk—but very little milk because we have milk at the poor house and if any family needs it we can take care of it that way.
Mr. Millar: Clothing?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Including shoes?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Millar: Rent?
Mr. Pope: No rent.
Mr. Millar: The orders of course are written orders, are they not?
Mr. Pope: No, they are not. You see we are a small community up there and we have a grocer that has been taking care of that for some time. Previous to my going on there he was doing that and we checked him several times and if anything he was quite a help to us. I mean he would go into a family and if he found somebody in the family had gotten work he would call us up and let us know about it.
Mr. Millar: How did he know to whom you want relief given?
Mr. Pope: We give him the names, of course.
Mr. Millar: In writing?
Mr. Pope: It may be in writing and it may be by telephone.
Mr. Millar: Have you a list of the persons to whom you give relief?
Mr. Pope: Yes, sir, we have that each month and what they receive is sent along with that.
Mr. Millar: And your orders are given to one grocer?
Mr. Pope: No. There are three. One handles the Roxborough, one the Blue Bell Hill section, which takes in Wissahickon Avenue. They are sent over there for convenience.
Mr. Millar: Has the secretary any contract with your coal man?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Millar: And how about your clothing?
Mr. Pope: Generally we let them go out and purchase that wherever they can.
Mr. Millar: Have you the signature of the recipient of the merchandise?
Mr. Pope: You mean of the grocers?
Mr. Millar: Yes.
Mr. Pope: That is generally checked by the grocer and we do not worry about it.
Mr. Millar: How often does the grocer render his bill?
Mr. Pope: Once a month.
Mr. Millar: And you have to keep track of how much you authorize him to give and check that up?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Millar: You can do that because you are not furnishing relief to so many people now?
Mr. Pope: Yes. You see with the amount of money we have up there we could not employ clerks to do those things, if we expect to get by on our allowance.
Mr. Millar: Is your poor district divided into three separate districts under the jurisdiction of one of the three directors or not?
Mr. Pope: No.
Mr. Millar: You could give an order for any place in the district?
Mr. Pope: Yes; and so could the others. Whoever gets the case first goes ahead with the case and relief is given as quickly as possible. In some cases if we get a call and the case is explained to us thoroughly possibly we put an order in right away. We may have some calls on Saturday reported from a church or a police station, that there is such and such a family needing help very badly, and we might order relief right away and then investigate later.
Mr. Millar: How was the Talbot money handled?
Mr. Pope: The orders, investigations and so forth were all handled by the Lloyd committee. They wrote the orders. The bills were rendered to us and they were audited by the Talbot committee and kept by them and we paid the bill, in accordance with the bills they had ordered.
Mr. Millar: Did they give you the cancelled orders then?
Mr. Pope: Yes. We have those; we have the cancelled orders. We have these copies and all the records of the Talbot fund and their file index and everything else.
Mr. Millar: So that we understand this, was the money received from the state treasurer?
Mr. Pope: From the city treasurer.
Mr. Millar: And the state treasurer paid the city treasurer and the director of Public Welfare—
Mr. Pope: Allocated it.
Mr. Millar. And then remitted to you the amount allotted?
Mr. Pope: That is correct.
Mr. Millar: The orders were issued by the Lloyd committee?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Millar: And the bills rendered each month to the poor board paid out of the Talbot fund?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Millar: How many families in your district received relief from the Talbot fund?
Mr. Pope: In the neighborhood of 460 to 475.
Mr. Millar: Per week?
Mr. Pope: Yes, sir.
Mr. Millar: How is this present Talbot fund to be distributed—the same way?
Mr. Pope: We do not know anything about it. We do not receive anything at all. I understand it is to be administered by this committee that has been appointed, of which I think Mr. Staples is chairman. In other words, we refer any applications we receive to 1450 Cherry Street.
Mr. Millar: Do you know whether there is a duplication of relief from this Talbot fund to people who are already receiving relief from you?
Mr. Pope: You mean the present one?
Mr. Millar: Yes.
Mr. Pope: So far as we know there is not.
Mr. Millar: Is there any way of your checking that?
Mr. Pope: We have not so far. As a matter of fact we do not even know what they are doing at all.
Mr. Millar: You do not know to whom they are giving the relief?
Mr. Pope: No.
Mr. Millar: So, for all you know the same people may be receiving orders from the two different sources.
Mr. Pope: I would not say that because we know our people very well in our community and we would hear of that if that were true; in other words, the next door neighbor would be tickled to death to come and tell about it.
Mr. Millar: Suppose a man gets an order and cashes it downtown.
Mr. Pope: Of course that is possible and that might not be known but you would be surprised how quickly they find it out.
Mr. Millar: Have you any trouble with your grocer charging more than the market value for merchandise going to the poor
Mr. Pope: We never have. We have had no such complaints.
Mr. Millar: Have you ever had any complaints about people not entitled to relief getting relief?
Mr. Pope: We have had complaints brought to us when the Talbot fund was functioning, which we reported to our investigator and they checked it up and reported back to us and we found one or two—but very few.
Mr. Millar: Did you ever have any complaints about people not residents of the district obtaining relief from the district?
Mr. Pope: No, because we investigated pretty thoroughly, and they must establish a residence for one year in our district.
Mr. Millar: If you do not know them you probably know someone that does know them.
Mr. Pope: That is the idea.
Mr. Millar: Have you any other information you would like to give the committee?
Mr. Pope: No, sir; I have no further information, than our two reports. And if there is any other information you want we would be glad to give it to you. You have a copy of the report.
Mr. Tahl: I understood you to say that your income is about $14,000 a year.
Mr. Pope: Yes. That is the amount of tax we figure on.
Mr. Tahl: What is your total income?
Mr. Pope: Last year it would have been $16,419.57. That included cash on hand.
Mr. Tahl: What was the overhead for that year—the total overhead?
Mr. Pope: The salaries of the directors, $1,500. ——
Mr. Tahl: I would like you to give me a total figure; in other words, I want to know what is the percentage of cost of overhead expense?
Mr. Pope: We have not figured that.
Mr. Tahl: Can you tell me the total expenses of the running of the board that year?
Mr. Pope: No other expenses except the salaries, because we do our own investigating. Our solicitor serves without any saalry. Our doctors are only paid by visits that they make, and the matron and the steward are the only ones that are there.
Mr. Tahl. You have your members of the board that you pay?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: How many members have you?
Mr. Pope: Three members.
Mr. Tahl: That is $1500?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Tahl: And your investigator is paid how much?
Mr. Pope: There is no investigator.
Mr. Tahl: What other expenses have you?
Mr. Pope: The auditor of the tax books.
Mr. Tahl: How much is that?
Mr. Pope: $250. Three auditors at $10 a piece, which is $30, and the salaries of the steward and matron.
Mr. Tahl: What is the total of that?
Mr. Pope: Last year it was $1375 complete.
Mr. Tahl: For both?
Mr. Pope: For both.
Mr. Tahl: And that is the total amount of your expenses?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Baldi: At the beginning you said something about not having any records back of when?
Mr. Pope: January 1, 1930.
Mr. Baldi: Can you tell us why that is so?
Mr. Pope: No. I asked for them and they told me they were not there.

Mr. Baldi: Whom did you ask?
Mr. Pope: The remaining director, Mr. George E. Dorworth.
Mr. Baldi: Was he one of the directors before you?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Baldi: Who else was a director then?
Mr. Pope: Nathan Jones, and the director whose place I took was Harry Markley.
Mr. Baldi: And when you went in there there were no records of the previous years?
Mr. Pope: That is correct.
Mr. Baldi: And you have no records now of anything prior to 1930?
Mr. Pope: I have not, no, sir.
Mr. Baldi: Have you seen any of the records before that?
Mr. Pope: No—only the statement they showed me of their audit for 1929, which was a written statement and that has gone since then?
Mr. Baldi: Do you know what became of that?
Mr. Pope: No.
Mr. Baldi: And there is no way of our finding out what was done prior to 1930, is there?
Mr. Pope: As far as the present board is concerned, there is not.
Mr. Baldi: No record whatsoever of any disbursements or ——
Mr. Pope: Wait a moment. There is a cash book there, yes, sir.
Mr. Baldi: Who has that?
Mr. Pope: That is the book we have taken in and turned back. They have a record of where it is. It is the current tax book.
Mr. Baldi: Does that go back to beyond back of 1930?
Mr. Pope: Yes.
Mr. Pollish: And you have the order book?
Mr. Pope: We have the order book but no checks or stubs.
Mr. Baldi: They will be turned over to the accountant?
Mr. Pope: Yes. Everything is available.
Mr. Baldi: Have you any outstanding applicants to the asylum?
Mr. Pope: No.
Mr. Baldi: You have room for more women?
Mr. Pope: We have room for one or possibly two more women?
Mr. Millar: We have a list of some papers that are missing or, rather papers we would like to get from your district. Will you take a note of them, please? It may be that they are are all there but if not we want to get them.
Mr. Pope: If there are any there they will be available.
Mr. Millar: All tax records, including the assessments.
Mr. Pope: They are all in the tax books.
Mr. Millar: The minute book and the cash book.
Mr. Pope: They have been turned in and recorded —— that is the cash book has; the minute book has not.
Mr. Millar: The cancelled checks and cancelled vouchers.
Mr. Pope: They have been turned in.
Mr. Millar: As I understand, there are no such things in your district as relief orders.
Mr. Pope: That is right.
Mr. Millar: Except the Talbot orders?
Mr. Pope: That is right, any they are available.
Mr. Millar: And the auditor's reports?
Mr. Pope: They are available. I filed those; there are copies of them here.
Mr. Millar: And the Talbot records.
Mr. Pope: Are you through with the Roxborough board?
Mr. Baldi: Yes, we are for the present.

(Adjourned subject to call of chairman.)

Hearing by the Committee Appointed by the Pennsylvania State Legislature To Make Investigation of the Poor Boards of Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Pa., December 19th, 1932.

Pursuant to notice, a meeting of this Committee was held on this date, at 3.30 o'clock p. m., in Room 234, City Hall, Philadelphia, Pa.

Present:
The Members of the Committee:
Sheppard H. Royle, Esq., Chairman.
Albert S. Millar, Esq.,
Edward Haws, Esq.,
Joseph F. M. Baldi, 2nd, Esq.,
Herman J. Tahl, Esq., Presiding.
Edward N. Polisher, for the Roxbury Poor Board.
Rodger F. Williams, Esq., for James Bonner.

Mr. Royle: Gentlemen, the hearing will now come to order. Mr. Tahl will preside.

Mr. Tahl: Gentlemen, this meeting will come to order. Mr. Krekstein, will you please take the stand.

I. H. Krekstein, sworn:

By Mr. Baldi:
Q. What business are you in Mr. Krekstein?
A. I am a Certified Public Accountant.
Q. How long have you been a Certified Public Accountant?
A. Since 1925.
Q. Did you examine, as a Certified Public Accountant, the records of the Directors of the Poor of the Borough of Roxborough?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And you submitted a report to this Committee, did you?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. For the year ending December 31, 1931?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Will you refer to your report? First of all, what is the location of the Roxborough poor house?
A. (No answer.)
Q. Well, you visited the house in Roxborough, did you?
A. Yes.
Q. Tell us the names of the Directors of the poor of the Borough of Roxborough as you found them as of the present time?
A. Ralph W. Pope, John A. Sheldrake, John Kenworthy.
Q. In making up this report what period of time did you cover?
A. We examined the books of account and the records of the Directors of the Poor of the Borough of Roxborough for the year ending December 31, 1931, and we analyzed their annual reports for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1925, and the years ending December 31, 1927, 1928, 1929, 1930 and 1931.
Q. What records did you find back of 1930?
A. We found a cash record back of 1930, for 1926, and there was another record at the Alms House that went back as for as 1900.
Q. Who had possession of those records?
A. They were in the Alms House.
Q. As I remember it, Mr. Pope told us that there were no other records there other than those he gave you. Are these the records he gave you?
A. He gave us a cash book that dated back to 1926, but the other records were in the poor house, and I found it there in looking over the records.
Q. And that took care of a period before 1930?
A. Yes.
Q. In your report you have a heading "Location"; tell us what you have put there?
A. This Borough includes all of the 21st Ward and a small part of the 38th Ward. We are informed that the property owners in the 38th Ward, although residing in this poor district, are not within the election division that elects their directors of the poor and auditors.
Q. By that you mean that the tax payers in the 38th Ward have no say as to who the Directors will be?
A. They do not vote for the Directors.
Q. That is what I mean, in the sense of voting?
A. That is right.
Q. Yet they pay the poor taxes?
A. Yes.
Q. When they are collected, of course?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you give us the duties of the administration of the present Directors?
A. According to their minutes, Ralph W. Pope was elected to office at the general election in November, 1929, and assumed office January 1, 1930.
Q. Go ahead.
A. John A. Sheldrake was elected into office January 14th, 1930, by George E. Dorwart and Ralph W. Pope at a meeting of the Board of Directors held that day, to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Nathin L. Jones. Mr. Sheldrake was elected into office at the general election November 3, 1931. John Kenworthy was elected into office September 27, 1930, at a meeting of the Board of Directors to fill the unexpired term of George E. Dorwart, who resigned May 29th, 1930.
Q. Where did you get that information?
A. From the Minute Book, and from the information of the general election returns of November 3, 1931.
Q. According to the minutes, then, Nathan L. Jones, for example, has resigned?
A. Yes.
Q. What else do you have about Nathan L. Jones with reference to being on the Board and later an inmate of the house?
A. I believe you have reference to this, Mr. Baldi: Mr. Nathan L. Jones was an inmate of the Norristown State Asylum at the time he resigned from the Board. Is that what you have reference to?
Q. Yes, go ahead.
A. And it was while he was there that his resignation was obtained and a successor elected.
Q. Now, you have a memorandum here about salaries. What is this memorandum about salaries being raised?
A. The salary of each Director was increased in 1930 from $300. to $500. per annum.
Q. You did not find out about those figures? That is an Act of Legislature?
A. Yes.
Q. You speak of auditors. Who were the auditors?
A. The present auditors are Earl Harlan, Homer Parsons, and James Jellett.
Q. And you found that they submitted their reports annually?
A. Yes.
Q. Signed by them, of course?
A. That is right.
Q. Now, come down to the heading, "Collection of Taxes." What can you tell us about the tax rate for 1931?
A. The tax rate for 1931 was as follows: City property, four mills; suburban property, 2 mills; and farm property, one mill.
Q. In other words, that is put into the "Collected" column?
A. Yes.
Q. Who collects the taxes there?
A. The Receiver of Taxes for the City of Philadelphia acts as colector of taxes for this district, and by ordinance of council pays the amount of poor taxes in accordance with rates indicated to the Directors of the poor in the year following colection.
Q. Does that take into consideration delinquent taxes, too?
A. Yes.
Q. And does that show delinquent or not collected taxes?
A. We were unable to find any record of delinquent taxes.
Q. Do you mean that there is no record of any delinquent taxes collected by the Roxborough Board?
A. No, I do not mean that. I can best explain it this way: the property owners make payment to the Receiver of Taxes at the same time they pay their other city taxes, and at the end of the year they employ someone to take a transcript of the paid tax bills. He then prepares a book showing both current and delinquent taxes paid, and that represents the amount the City owes to the Roxborough district, and by ordinance of council, in the succeeding year they pay that into the district.
Q. Does that sum include the delinquent and current taxes?
A. Yes.
Q. Is there any division at all?
A. The book shows delinquent and current taxes settled. When I said they had no record of delinquent taxes I meant they have no record of the taxes that are unpaid at any particular time.

There is nothing in their records to indicate how much is collectible on prior years.

Q. Well, can you tell from the records how much delinquent taxes were collected for the year 1930?

A. No—yes, we can.

Q. Let me hear that. What is it?

A. I couldn't give it to you in that form. I have the books here, but in order to do that we would have to add them up.

Q. That is what I wanted to know, whether you can tell from their books whether there is shown a certain amount of delinquent taxes paid?

A. Yes; they show how much delinquent taxes have been collected.

Q. And how about the assessed valuation of the property?

A. The assessed valuation of the 21st Ward is as follows: City property, $38,958,500.00; suburban property, $12,604,800.00; farm property, $1,624,550.00, making a total of $53,187,850.00. This does not include the assessed valuations of the 38th Ward. This information was taken from a published report by the Board of Revision of Taxes for 1931, and in view of the fact they only collected from a portion of the 38th Ward there is no available information showing what the assessed valuation is of the property in this poor district.

Q. Now, this book that you refer to is prepared by John A. Blankin, I see?

A. Yes.

Q. That is an annual affair?

A. Yes.

Q. From that book can you tell what properties owe delinquent taxes?

A. No; it only shows a record of delinquent taxes paid to the City.

Q. Suppose somebody does not pay?

A. There is no way of knowing that unless you search the records for the particular property in question.

Q. In other words, there is no way of knowing what taxes are delinquent on a certain property?

A. No.

Q. And that information has not been submitted to you?

A. We have no record at all.

By Mr. Tahl:

Q. Mr. Krekstein, is there a record, a proper record, kept of the doings of the Board, from your examination of all the records?

A. That is, in addition to the books and the records, other records, of the institution?

Q. Yes.

A. I would say no.

Q. There is not any proper record kept?

A. There are records kept, but I consider them improper.

Q. How many families does this Board take care of in the way of outside relief?

A. In 1931 they provided for 23 families.

Q. And what was the method used in providing relief for these families?

A. No investigators are employed, and each Director investigates any application for relief in his district that comes to his attention. If he finds the applicant worthy he communicates with the merchant that is selected and requests him to furnish the necessary commodities in accordance with the amount of relief allowed.

Q. Do I understand you to say, Mr Krekstein, that your investigation shows that the Directors designate the kind and variety of food that these people are to get?

A. No, he does not. He merely instructs the merchant to deliver up to a certain amount of merchandise.

Q. Without giving an opportunity to these poor people to select the variety of food?

A. As far as I know, they are not selected in any one manner. The Director does not tell the merchant what kind of food to deliver, but he specifies the amount.

Q. And then the merchant picks out the kind and variety of food?

A. That is correct.

Q. Did you find out how many merchants were receiving these orders from this particular Poor Board?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. How many?

A. There were three receiving orders for food, one for coal, and one for medical attention.

Q. Now, how much was disbursed for outside relief by this Board in 1931?

A. $1,074.

Q. Was this equally divided among the various merchants?

A. Do you want me to give the names of the merchants receiving orders, and how much they received?

Q. Yes, do that.

A. The merchants who received business are S. J. Ralston, $104; George Blumenauer, $725.25; Wiliam Maginn, $113.00; Hare and Cute Coal Company, $97.75; Dr. Linton Turner, $34.00, making a total of $1,074.

Q. From that, then, it appears that George Blumenauer, receiving $725.50 word of business, received the most business?

A. That is right.

Q. And, what did you find with reference to the prices paid for these various articles? Were they the prevailing market prices, or were they higher or lower than the current market prices?

A. We have made a comparison of some of the prices paid to Mr. Blumenauer for representative commodities with prices advertised by chain stores during the same periods, and we have prepared a schedule showing the result.

By Mr. Baldi:

Q. What do you mean by the "advertised prices"?

A. When we compared the prices paid by this particular poor district, we compared them with prices advertised by chain stores on the same dates purchases were made by the poor district. We used newspapers for that purpose. We obtained newspapers bearing the dates on which purchases were made by the poor district by them.

By Mr. Tahl:

Q. What did you find?

A. Do you want me to read many of them?

Q. No; I want you to give us in brief what you found.

A. We found, invariably, that the prices, the prices paid to the local merchants were higher than the advertised prices of chain stores.

Q. For instance, take certain items like eggs. Will you look at your report and tell us what the current price was for eggs at that time?

A. In February, 1931, we found that the current prices advertised for the better quality of eggs was 30 cents a dozen, and the price paid to the merchants by the poor district, as was stated before, was 35 cents.

Q. How about butter?

A. The price paid to the local merchants was 38 cents, and the advertised price was 33 cents.

Q. How about tomatoes?

A. Tomatoes, canned tomaties, the price paid to the local merchants was 15 cents a can, and the price advertised was six and a quarter cents.

Q. How about coffee?

A. As of the same time—February—the price paid to the local merchants was 35 cents, and the advertised price for the better quality of coffee was 27 cents. That is, for a pound.

Q. How about beans. I see you have an item of beans here. What did they pay, and what was the current advertised price?

A. The price paid by the poor district to the local merchants was 15 cents a pound, and the advertised price was 10 cents a pound.

Q. Without going into it any further, these items indicate that every article that was bought by the poor district from the local merchants was bought at a price higher than the advertised price, in the percentage that you have indicated with reference to these items; that is true, is it not?

A. In our opinion, the prices paid by the poor district were higher than those advertised as of the same time.

Mr. Tahl: I want to say, Mr. Krekstein, I have examined your report very carefully, and I want to say that the facts as covered in that report indicate extravagance on the part of the Board, and maladministration, and I want to say further that the manner of keeping the books has been slipshod, and it is evident to me, therefore, that these Boards ought not be permitted to function in this reckless manner, and I want to say that drastic action ought to be taken to eradicate this evil. For my part, I want to say publicly that I am in favor of destroying this condition, and I intend to sponsor such legislation. I do not see why people who have charge of public funds should waste them. This money is to be used for the poor, the unfortunate, and there is no reason why this money should be wasted in a manner like this.

Mr. Polisher: Don't you think it would be better to wait until you hear from this Board before making such statements. Don't you know that the present Board has reduced a deficit of $8,500.00 in two years. Whatever went before the present tennure of this administration has nothing to do with us, or with these gentlemen. Show us the facts on which you base your conclusions, instead of making statements of your own. To make such statements publicly without evidence and figures to substantiate such assertions is unfair to this Board.

Mr. Tahl: Evidence is what we are producing. The evidence you have heard thus far is only scratching the surface.

Mr. Polisher: We want an opportunity to know from this man how he got those figures.

Mr. Tahl: Do you think, Mr. Polisher, that this Board ought to pay 35 cents a dozen for eggs when the prevailing market price is 30 cents a dozen? Is that proper?

Mr. Polisher: Let me tell you about that.

Mr. Tahl: Do you think that is proper.

Mr. Polisher: Since you have asked information of me, give me an opportunity to give it to you. We buy eggs at home from a farmer, eggs that are supposed to be first-class, within a couple of days old, and we pay a few pennies more for them, but we buy them because they are better quality eggs than we could get from the stores in the neighborhood. That is the answer. You wanted the answer.

Mr. Tahl: Well, when you deal with your own money, you can do as you please with it.

Mr. Polisher: What I use in my own home, I think, is good enough for that home.

Mr. Tahl: When people are charged with the administration of funds of taxpayers, I think they should be very, very careful about expending them.

Mr. Polisher: Mr. Tahl, do I correctly understand you to mean that we are not furnishing first-class supplies to these people?

Mr. Tahl: No. You know that under the law they are not permitted to sell rotten eggs, and therefore, these eggs are proper for use, or they would not be bought.

Mr. Polisher: Mr. Tahl, you apparently do not understand the egg business. There are all kinds and various grades of eggs, and they can be bought at various prices.

Mr. Tahl: Mr. Polisher, do not waste time. We have other things to come up here in addition to this.

By Mr. Baldi:

Q. Mr. Krekstein, with reference to page 6 of your report you have showing what was considered one delivery of merchandise to one of the poor, delivered by the merchant by Mr. Blumenauer. Give us those items of merchandise and the prices charged. I want the public to know that?

A. This invoice was dated February 28th, 1931, and it represented some food delivered to one of the needy.

1	Eggs	.35
1	Coffee	.35
2	Bread	.20
1	Corn	.18
½	Cheese	.26
1	Peas	.18
1	Macaroni	.13
1	Sausage	.35
1	Box codfish	.15

1 Crackers ..... .10
1 Salmon ..... .19
1 Can Spaghetti ..... .15
1 Prunes ..... .15
1 Sauerkraut ..... .15
1 Hucksmokes ..... .35
Making a total of $3.24

Q. Now, as a result of your investigation you would say that that was the average allotment of goods?

A. That is correct.

Q. If these people complained about the contents of the assortment what change would be made?

A. If complaint was made to the grocer he would change his assortment on his next delivery.

Mr. Baldi: Do any of the other members of the Board wish to ask any questions?

By Mr. Royle:

Q. What was the price of that coffee in 1931?

A. The price was 35 cents a pound.

Q. What was the Board paying for it?

A. That was the price paid when they received their relief orders.

Q. And what was the advertised price at that time?

A. 27 cents.

Q. Now, there is a difference there of 8 cents?

A. Yes, and by the way, Mr. Royle, this was cheaper coffee; we did not take the cheapest coffee we could find. We took the advertised price of higher quality coffee.

Q. You took the higher price as advertised, for the coffee, by the chain stores on the same date?

A. Yes.

Q. But there are many different kinds of coffee, are there not?

A. Oh, yes; but we compared that 35 cent coffee with the coffee advertised in the newspapers at 27 cents.

By Mr. Tahl:

Q. By the way, Mr. Krekstein, the eggs that you quote as having the current price at the time, they were not rotten eggs, were they? They were practical eggs for food?

Mr. Polisher: Did you eat them?

The Witness: We took the eggs advertised at the highest price, and we assumed that they were the best quality eggs sold by the chain stores at that time.

By Mr. Tahl:

Q. And that applies to every commodity listed in your report? You used as the advertised price the highest advertised prices you found for proper quality merchandise?

A. We did that to the best of our ability.

By Mr. Royale:

Q. There are different qualities in eggs, too. Let us get down to soup. Campbell's soup, which sells for 15 cents in one store. What was the Roxborough Board paying for that commodity?

A. We were not always able to identify the particular brands. We had to confine ourselves to certain qualities. In other words, if the general stores had their highest quality commodities advertised at a certain price, we would take that price, and in endeavoring to find the same quality in merchandise bought by the Poor Boards we always endeavored, wherever possible, to give the Poor Boards the most advantageous prices.

Mr. Royale: I think we should confine ourselves to one particular, specific item that we can all agree on, some concrete example, like Campbell's Soup, for instance, and then we can tell whether the Board is paying more than it should be paying.

By Mr. Tahl:

Q. What was the price paid by the Poor Board for spaghetti, and what was the advertised price?

A. The price paid by the Poor Board was 13 cents.

Q. And what did you find the then current market price to be?

A. 5 cents.

Mr. Polisher: What about size? There are different sizes in cans of spaghetti.

Mr. Baldi: Well, I am sure that if it was advertised in our local papers it would be good spaghetti, so we don't have to worry about that.

Well, of course, another thing, in answer to some of these arguments, there is no reason why the Poor Board should supply absolutely the best of everything. Certainly, we want to be fair and buy what is right, buy what the average person would buy, but there is no need for buying absolutely the best of everything. I think that is what our accountant has in mind. Are there any other questions?

By Mr. Tahl:

Q. Mr. Krekstein, what is the capacity of this—I understand that this poor Board has an almshouse; is that right?

A. That is right.

Q. And it also has patients or inmates at the outside?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, taking their own place, what is the capacity out there?

A. The capacity is 16 inmates—pardon me, a possible 17.

Q. How many inmates are there at the present time?

A. 16.

Q. How many rooms do they have there?

A. 16 rooms for sleeping quarters for the inmates.

Q. And the one suite of rooms is occupied by the steward, and the other party, whatever her name is—the matron—how many rooms are occupied by the steward and the matron?

A. The steward and the matron occupy five bedrooms, a private diningroom, a private living-room, and in addition to that there is a large reception room used by the Directors' staff, and by the inmates for chapel services.

Q. Who comprise the members of the steward and matron's family? The steward and matron are husband and wife, of course?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. How many members constitute their family?

A. They have two children and a parent of either the matron or the steward; I don't recall which.

Q. And they, themselves, and their two children, and their own parent, they occupy five bedrooms, exclusive of the living-room and another room that you say they have there?

A. That is right.

By Mr. Baldi:

Q. What proportion of the building is that?

A. About 25 per cent.

Q. In other words, if there was just the matron and stewad there, there would be about five other rooms for other people?

A. Yes, but you must bear in mind that these rooms are not in the inmate section of the house.

By Mr. Tahl:

Q. They have the better portion of the house?

A. Yes.

By Mr. Baldi:

Q. How many inmates did you say are there, or how many rooms are there for them?

A. 16 rooms, and at the prezent time there are 16 inmates.

Q. That is excluding these five bedrooms occupied by the steward and matron?

A. Yes. Oh, there is one vacancy in the inmates' section of the house, which is caused by the fact that two people sleep in one room. Each person occupies one room, with the exception of the case I just mentioned, where two men sleep in one room, making one room vacant.

Q. To get back to your report, you have a heading here, "Maintenance of Inmates in other institutions." Give us an instance of what happened outside of the Roxborough House?

A. In my report I have summarized the number of inmates, weekly rates and total paid to each institution during the calendar year 1931. That summarization is as follows: The Norristown State Hospital has 28 inmates, at a weekly rate of $3,000, and it has been paid $3,461.33.

The Children's Aid Society has one inmate, at a weekly rate of $4.25 and it has been paid $221.58.

The Allentown State Hospital has one inmate, at a weekly rate of $3.00, and it has been paid $158.88.

The Bureau of Hospitals—Byberry has one inmate, at a weekly rate of $5, and it has been paid $241.43.

The total number of inmates, therefore, taken care of by these institutions is 31, and these institutions have been paid $4,083.22.

Q. Where did you get that information?

A. From the records of the Poor District.

By Mr. Tahl:

Q. Mr. Krekstein, I would like to ask you this. From your examination of the books of the Board how much does it cost to maintain an inmate per week?

A. Reference is made to Exhibit B, schedule No. 1, showing total cost of maintaining the farm and Almshouse, which cost is $6,581.68, including overhead for the year ending December 31, 1931. The cost of maintaining each of the 16 inmates, is $411.35 per annum, or $7.91 per week. In arriving at this cost ——

Q. Pardon me just a moment. I just want the answer. Now, you say that it cost $7.91 weekly per inmate?

A. I have not finished the section showing the total cost.

Q. Excuse me; I will come to that. I want to know at this time how much does it cost to maintain one of the inmates per week?

A. $7.91 per week.

Q. And in arriving at that figure you did not take into consideration the cost of buildings or anything like that, did you?

A. No; nor did we include the value of the farm products consumed in the home.

Q. Can you tell us, from your figures, if you were to add the cost of the buildings and ground, and so forth, how much it would cost, or how much does it cost to maintain one of the inmates at the Roxborough House?

A. If you will permit me to read this paragraph I think I can better explain it.

Q. You can answer that?

A. It would total $13.68 per week.

Q. And what is the cost of maintaining an inmate in the outside institutions?

A. You are including the hospital cases with these other cases, but I can give you the price. The members of the Poor Board of Roxborough Township pay to the Norristown State Hospital $3.00 a week per inmate for 28 inmates there, but that is not the cost. That represents one-half of the cost, because the State Asylum has the other cost.

Q. Well, now, don't you think, Mr. Krekstein, that according to your figures it would be much cheaper if these inmates were boarded outside?

A. My opinion is that they could be boarded outside for less money than they are paying for the maintenance of the institution at the present time.

By Mr. Baldi:

Q. And that is really because of the small number there in the house; is that what you mean? In other words, your expenses are great, but you are only allowed to apportion them over a small number — 16?

A. Yes.

Q. There are just 16 people there?

A. Yes.

Q. In other words, a larger number of people there, would, possibly, bring down the cost?

A. Yes, but this institution has no more room for more than one additional inmate. You could never bring it down that way.

Mr. Tahl: Which only goes to show the uselessness of the Board.

Mr. Polisher: Which only goes to show the size of the institution.

Mr. Tahl: It shows that it costs $13 to board an inmate at the Roxborough Institution, while an inmate can be boarded in an outside institution for $7, or $5 or $6. That is what it goes to show.

By Mr. Baldi:

Q. By the way I see in your report you say there is no record kept of the admissions of these patients. What do you mean by that?

A. They do not keep a record of the patients they send to other institutions. In order to find that information it would be necessary to go to that institution where the patient is kept.

Q. To get back to the building, can you find out what the cost of the building was?

A. We found no record showing what it cost to erect the building.
Q. How long ago was it erected? Did you find that out?
A. We were told it was erected about 11 years ago.
Q. What is it? Is it just one building, or what?
A. No; there is a house made of stone, a barn made of stone, and there are several minor buildings.
By Mr. Tahl:
Q. Mr. Krekstein, would you mind turning to page 14 of your report? What percentage of the income of the Board is used for outside relief?
A. 8.29 per cent.
QQ. And what percentage is used for the home and farm?
A. 42.96 per cent.
Q. And what percentage is used for Directors' salaries?
A. 11.57 per cent.
Q. And other expenses?
A. 5.69 per cent.
Q. In other words, there is nearly 17 per cent. for overhead?
A. 17.01 per cent. represents the overhead cost.
By Mr. Baldi:
Q. What about the surrounding land? How much land is there?
A. We found that poor district owns approximately 30 acres of land, and they also have use of 5 additional acres which have been donated by a neighbor, which is used for farming.
Q. When you refer to farming, what is raised there?
A. The usual products found on a truck farm, and also products used for their animals.
Q. Are any records kept of those things?
A. Very inadequate records are kept of the farm products. By examination of the records there we could not ascertain what the yield is per acre, nor what the yield is per crop, and we cannot tell whether it is profitable or unprofitable to maintain the land.
Q. All you know is that the land is under tilling for farming purposes at the present time?
A. That is right.
Q. I see that you do have one illustration of the sale of farm products, which was for August, 1931. In that illustration are your referring to products raised on the farm in the month of August?
A. That is right. We are illustrating the incompleteness of the record by reciting a copy of one of their slips showing the sales for one particular month.
Q. That is a copy of their record?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And what does it show?
A. Corn, $39.74; lima beans, $6.35 ——
Q. In other words, you have no idea of the quantity sold, but just the name of the article and the price charged or paid for it?
A. That is right. This is only a record of what was paid for it, and there is no record of the quantities sold, or of the unit price, nor is the purchaser of the produce stated, nor is it stated how much was used in the home.
Q. And the total of that sales slip, $88.59 indicates that there was $88.59 worth of farm produce sold which was raised on the property there?
A. That is right.
Mr. Tahl: Mr. Polisher, you represent the Board?
Mr. Polisher: I do.
Mr. Tahl: Do you want to ask any questions?
Mr. Polisher: I do.
Mr. Tahl: (Addressing stenographer). You will note Mr. Polisher's appearance for the Board.
By Mr. Polisher:
Q. Mr. Krekstein, when the present administration took office in January of 1930, did you notice, from your examination, what the deficit was?
A. We don't have any record of that in our report.
Q. Did not this particular Board hand to you at the last meeting published statements in newspaper form of the financial condition of the Poor District?
A. I believe it did.
Q. Could you not by examination of that report give us the amount of the deficit that existed on January 1, 1930?
Mr. Tahl: You see, Mr. Polisher, these accountants were instructed to confine their efforts to the year 1931. We did not want to increase the cost of this accounting work, and so, therefore, we would ask you to confine yourself to the period covered by the accountants in their report.
By Mr. Polisher:
Q. What was the deficit the first of January, 1931?
A. I don't know.
Mr. Baldi: There has been no testimony of that, Mr. Polisher.
By Mr. Polisher:
Q. Well, did you make an examination of the records kept by the Board during all of the year, 1931?
A. That is right.
Q. Did you check over their bank account?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you check over their receipts?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you see the published statement of their financial statement that appeared in the newspapers, for January, 1931?
Mr. Tahl: Now, Mr. Polisher, we have not gone into that end—
Mr. Polisher: If this Committee is interested in showing inefficiency, we want to show efficiency. That is all there is to it.
Mr. Tahl: You can only examine this man along the examination indicated by the Committee, and there is no use wasting time. He did not cut these statements out of the newspapers and read them.
Mr. Polisher: But they are part of our records, Mr. Tahl. We gave these accountants everything we had, including a financial statement as of January 1, 1931, and he has testified that he made an examination of all of our records, why can he not give us a simple fact like that?
Mr. Tahl: Are you asking about subsequent to the 1st of January, 1931?
Mr. Polisher: That is all I am asking him.
By Mr. Polisher:
Q. If you will look through your records you will find statements of the condition of this Board, and I will ask you—
Mr. Baldi: If you want to read the statement, to yourself, go ahead, but we have lots of other things to do here today, and we cannot take a lot of time. If you have anything to bring to our attention, go ahead and do it, but we don't want to take too much time.
Mr. Polisher: I want to bring to the attention of this Committee the fact that when the present administration of this Board took office, commencing January, 1930, they were faced with a deficit of $8,500. from the operations of the previous administration.
Mr. Tahl: You can offer your testimony, but we do not want any statements.
Mr. Polisher: Well, Mr. Baldi asked me for a statement just a moment ago, and that is why I am offering this statement.
Mr. Tahl: No; you better offer any testimony you have. We do not want just statements. That is what you say. Your opinion is from hearsay. Do you have any witness's testimony or proof to offer?
Mr. Polisher: If my last statement was hearsay, then your own accountants' statements are hearsay.
Mr. Tahl: If you have any witness to produce we will be glad to hear him. What are you going to do, Mr. Polisher?
Mr. Polisher: I told you that I just understood from your Committeeman that if I had a certain fact I wanted to bring to your attention, I could do so.
Mr. Tahl: If you have evidence you can do that.
Mr. Baldi: That is what I had in mind, when I said that if you wanted to bring a certain fact to our attention, you could do so; I meant if you had certain evidence, it would be all right to produce it.
Mr. Polisher: I see. All right, you want me to bring it in by testimony.
Mr. Tahl: Yes.
By Mr. Polisher:
Q. Now, Mr. Krekstein, in your opinion, you said, the records kept by this Board are inadequate?
A. That is right.
Q. Considering the kind of work they do up there, and the business they have to handle, what, in your opinion, would be the proper records to keep? Possibly, you can aid us.
A. It would probably be too lengthy for me to state it from the witness stand.
Q. Well, just tell us briefly?
A. I should say a system of accounts that is its common usage in similar institutions. This institution has no record at all of the inmates, and in order to find out when a person was committed to the institution, you might have to look back for 20 years.
Q. You know, of course, that in view of the fact the Board has been trying to economize, they eliminated all paid investigators?
A. I never saw one that was employed there.
Q. At any rate, they had no paid investigators, during the period of your examination of the books?
A. That is right.
Q. And they had no stenographic or bookkeeping services rendered, did they?
A. Not during the period of 1931, they didn't.
Q. And you know that their counsel, in an effort to keep down the cost of administrating affairs serves without payment?
A. There is no record of it.
Q. Certainly not, because there have not been any payments to counsel.
Mr. Tahl: What has a lawyer got to do with 23 inmates?
Mr. Polisher: I don't have a thing to do with the inmates. All I do is represent the Board, Mr. Tahl.
Mr. Tahl: I see no use for an attorney's representation there.
Mr. Polisher: There are a lot of things in the Legislature for which there are no use, but we serve without pay.
Mr. Tahl: Let us not waste time, but get down to the matters involved here.
Mr. Haws: Mr. Polisher, in practicing economy, do you want us to believe that because they do not keep records, they do that as a matter of economy?
Mr. Polisher: Yes.
Mr. Haws: You say that is a matter of economy.
Mr. Polisher: I want to express to the members of the Committee this thought, that the members of the Board, themselves, go out and personally investigate the facts rather than employ someone at $20, or $25 a week to go out and do it. They go out and investigate the facts themselves.
Mr. Haws: Do they keep records of what they find out?
Mr. Tahl; They only had 23 families under their care in the course of a whole year. They only had 23 families to investigate.
By Mr. Polisher:
Q. Getting down to the prices, Mr. Krekstein, of course, you are not in a position at this time to tell us whether you compared similar qualities of products?
A. We believe, Mr. Polisher, that we found—
Q. No, do not give us any beliefs.
Mr. Tahl: Mr. Polisher, please be polite to the witness.
Mr. Polisher: I would not be impolite to Mr. Krekstein for the world. You are doing me an injustice. We want the facts.
By Mr. Polisher:
Q. Now, is it not a fact that you took what you saw in their records, like "a can of tomatoes, and compared it with the current prices advertised in the nawspapers for tomatoes, and by that you made your comparison?
A. Mr. Polisher, if I wanted to be unfair, or, perhaps, a little fairer, then I could have selected for comparison products advertised in the newspapers which were not better or best grade products. We have examined the records of many boards, and we have compared prices paid by these boards, and we found some that were buying 20 and 23 cent coffee, and yet this Board was paying 35 cents.
By Mr. Baldi:

Q. What do you mean by other Boards?
A. Other Boards, the records and accounts of which we examined. We did not make this examination superficially; we did it carefully.
By Mr. Polisher:
Q. You have not answered the question. Did you compare class A commodities in the five mediums you used with Class A commodities from the local merchants?
A. I went a step further than that. I went to see representatives of chain grocery stores and asked them if the quality of their best merchandise compared favorably with these articles, and they said they would be glad to open up any package I desired to have opened and submit it to a test and so determine which was the best quality.
Q. Did you examine similar qualities of goods mentioned in your report?
A. We have done better than that. We have compared the poor district prices with the highest prices at the chain stores.
Q. For instance, when you say on page 6, "beans" 15 cents. What kind of beans were they? Were you comparing the same kind of beans?
Mr. Baldi: It is hardly fair that the "beans" must be of a certain quality. It is the Poor Board's money, and it should be spent for supplies of a quality with which no fault could be found but it is not necessary to buy the highest grades.
Mr. Tahl: What are you trying to find out?
Mr. Polisher: I am trying to find out whether he is telling us about marrow beans, or some other kind of beans. That is all I want to find out.
Mr. Tahl: Mr. Polisher, I want to remind you that this Committee is only extending courtesy to counsel. The Board really could be without counsel, and these things are not material, or, at least, should not take preference over other things we have to do this afternoon.
Mr. Polisher: Is that my admonition, Mr. Tahl?
Mr. Tahl: I think you will understand the spirit of it.
Mr. Polisher: Yes, I understand.
By Mr. Polisher:
Q. You know, of course, that the Poor Board maintains no medium of transportation?
A. I don't know anything about their transportation.
Q. Well, now, you examined the physical property up there?
A. Oh, yes. They have a truck.
Q. And what is that truck used for?
A. For hauling farm products and any other use they apply it to.
Q. Do you know whether or not it is in running condition?
A. I did not examine the truck, nor did I drive it.
Q. That is all.
By Mr. Tahl:
Q. Mr. Krekstein, does the Poor Board maintain records from which they can show that the prices they paid, are they proper, current prices?
A. I found no evidence of any attempt being made to compare prices.
Q. By the way, how is the merchandise ordered for their own institution?
A. I would assume, by the prices they pay, that they order over the telephone.
Q. Did you speak to the matron about this? Did you ask her?
A. Yes, I discussed the statement with the matron.
Q. And what did she say to you?
A. She said she was obliged to buy from certain merchants.
Br. Mr. Baldi:
Q. What do you mean by "obliged"?
A. She does not have her choice in buying for this institution.
Q. Who does the choosing?
A. I didn't go into that in detail with her, but I assumed, from her remarks, that she is instructed by the Directors where to place her orders.
Q. Do the records show whether they were using marrow beans or any other kind of beans?
A. I didn't go into——.
Q. I say do the records show whether they were using marrow beans or any other kind of beans?
A. No.
Q. Do they show any certain kinds of meats they were using?
A. Oh, yes.
Q. What were they using?
A. Are you referring to the institution now?
Q. Yes, to the institution?
A. Inquiries at the home with reference to that showed very lax methods. No verification is made of quantities received, or comparison of prices charged. Apparently, there is no shopping, and evidently all purchases are made by telephone. We have not made a complete analysis of purchases, but a comparison of some of the prices paid for food stuffs and groceries indicate that this home is paying considerably more than prevailing market prices during the period under review. I am reading from my report, and I think this section answers the question. In order to illustrate the point, we show below a comparison of the prices paid for meats in February, May, August and November, 1931, with the prices paid by a consumer of the best quality meats that the market provides during the same periods.
By Mr. Tahl:
Q. What does your comparison show?
A. In February the institution paid 31 and ½ cents for ham, and it was bought by the party with whom we are comparing this price, for 26 and ½ cents.
By Mr. Baldi:
Q. As of the same time?
A. Yes, as of the same time.
By Mr. Polisher:
Q. The same quantities?
A. Well, not the identical same quantities, but about the same quantities.
Q. You are comparing prices with the prices paid by whom?
A. Paid by another institution.
Q. What other institution?
A. I won't mention the name.
Q. How many inmates did this other institution have?
A. They had practically the same number.
Q. Is there any other institution in this city that has 16 inmates?
A. I said another institution, and not a poor district. I have gone further than that, and I will show you—
By Mr. Baldi:
Q. We have enough on that ——
A. Well, they paid 34¼ cents for sausage while this other institution I am referring to paid 30 cents. They paid 48 cents for rump steak while the other institution only paid 38 cents. They paid 40 cents for bacon, and the other institution paid 30½ cents. For ribs of beef they paid 38 cents, and the other institution paid 28 cents. For pork chops they paid 28 cents, and the other institution paid 23 cents. Then there is a reptition of the succeeding items.
By Mr. Tahl:
Q. And the meats were all from one designated merchant?
A. Yes.
Q. From whom?
A. A. Wilby's Sons.
Q. So that, during the entire year there was but one place from which they bought meats?
A. That is right.
By Mr. Polisher:
Q. Mr. Krekstein, did you take the trouble to compare the prices which the Lloyd Committee paid for similar products?
A. I didn't think that the Lloyd Committee maintained institutions.
Q. But did you take the trouble to investigate how much they paid?
A. No. Our investigations were confined only to the poor districts in Philadelphia.
Q. Did it not occur to you that perhaps an agency doing the same kind of work ought to be included in your comparison of prices?
A. We have investigated into that and find that a lot of these agencies used the chain stores because the prices are cheaper.
By Mr. Baldi:
Q. Mr. Krekstein, refer to your report on the Overseer of the Poor of Moreland Township. What period did you cover in this report?
A. The period from April 5, 1924 to September 12, 1932.
Q. Now, as to the location, what can you tell us about that?
A. This township is located in the northern part of the 35th Ward, adjoining Byberry Township on the northeastern side and adjoining Oxford-Lower Dublin Poor District on the southwestern side. It is interesting to note that the boundaries of the election divisions are not similar to the boundary lines of the township. Election division number two of the Thirty-fifth Ward is apparently intended to be Moreland Township, but actually includes a part of Byberry Township in the vicinity of Somerton. Moreland Township also extends in the southwest into a part of the election divisions of both Lower Dublin and Delaware Townships.
Q. In other words, do you have that same condition, where the poor district overlaps another ward, or another section, and you have people paying taxes there into the Poor Board Fund and not voting for the members of the Board; is that correct?
A. That is correct, with one exception, this Township is in one ward but overlaps into the election division of another.
Q. Yes, but the point is that some people pay taxes there, but have nothing to do with the election of the officers of the Board who disperse the money?
A. That is correct.
Q. Who was overseer of the poor there?
A. James Bonner is known as the Overseer of the Poor of Moreland Township, and has acted in the capacity continuously for approximately twenty years, but was unable to produce an election certificate. An examination of the general election returns of November 3, 1931, indicate that William P. Bonner was elected as the overseer of the poor. Therefore, James Bonner, is acting without official authority. Our report covering Byberry Township will show that William P. Bonner is known and is acting as Overseer of the Poor of the Second District of that township.
Q. Now, to get down to the auditors, does an auditor go over the accounts there?
A. Yes sir.
Q. Well, tell us about that?
A. Abraham Updike was elected on November 3, 1931. No audits has been made since April 6th, 1925. At that time J. F. Delaney and Abraham Updike signed statements as auditors, certifying to the correctness of the bash balance, but left the space for the amount blank.
Q. In other words, they said there was a cash balance, but left the space for the amount blank, to be filled in later?
A. Yes, and I presume it is still blank.
Q. It is still bank?
A. Yes.
By Mr. Carroll:
Q. Mr. Krekstein, do I correctly understand that all they expended for relief from 1924 to September, 1932, was $600?
A. To be exact, $603.94.
Q. For a period of eight years?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you think that proper for a Board of that kind?
A. I am in no position to make a statement regarding their usefulness, but it is certainly indicated that they granted very little relief, whether it was because there was no occasion for it, or what, I don't know.
Q. How about taxes there, how were they collected?
A. Very poorly collected.
By Mr. Baldi:
Q. Who collects the taxes?
A. James Bonner, he is supposed to collect both delinquent and current taxes, but the condition of delinquent taxes is very bad at the present time.

Q. What do you mean by "very bad"?
A. I mean that they are not being collected, and the failure to collect delinquent taxes is due more to the negligence of the Overseer than to the inability of taxpayers to meet their obligations, because no attempt is being made to collect them.
Q. In oher words, what comes in, comes in, and that is the end of it?
A. Yes. There is no record kept of what taxes are paid and what taxes are delinquent.
Q. Do you know of any collectors out at the present time endeavoring to collect delinquent taxes?
A. No, there are no collectors other than Mr. Bonner.
Q. You say that from the records you found?
A. That is right.
Mr. Williams: My name is Rodger F. Williams, and I would like my appearance noted for Mr. Bonner.
Mr. Tahl: It may be noted.
By Mr. Williams:
Q. Mr. Krekstein, do your records show how taxes have been levied in this district?
A. Yes, they do.
Q. What do you find for the years from 1928 to this year?
A. If Mr. Tahl will permit me, I would like to quote from a section of my report in connection with that.
Mr. Tahl: Go ahead.
The Witness: The tax rate is eight mills on real estate and fifty cents for each tenant of a firm. As previously stated, no taxes have been assessed for 1927. Does that answer your question?
Mr. Williams: Yes. No taxes have been assessed since 1927?
The Witness: That is right.
Mr. Williams: That is all.
By Mr. Baldi:
Q. Now, Mr. Krekstein, turn to your report on the Overseers of the Poor of Byberry Township. What period did you cover in that examination?
A. We covered the period from February 1, 1919 to September 12, 1932.
Q. Have you anything to tell us about the location of this district?
A. Byberry Township is located in the extreme northwestern section of the Thirty-fifth Ward. It adjoins Moreland Township on the east, Montgomery County on the west, and Bucks County on the north and northeast. The first election division of the Thirty-fifth Ward is intended to comprise Byberry Township. In addition to this, Byberry Township extends into the second election division, which is intended to comprise Moreland Township. As a direct result of the variance in the boundary lines, taxpayers residing in the Byberry section of the second election division, vote for an Overseer of the Poor for Moreland Township, and do not have an opportunity to elect the Overseer in Byberry Township.
Q. In other words, we have the same overlapping as we have had in the two previous districts?
A. That is right.
Q. We have the same situation here?
A. Yes.
By Mr. Tahl:
Q. Now, this Poor District of Byberry, the district that we are referring to, will you turn to page five of your report on that? How are poor orders ararnged there, poor orders for relief?
A. Speaking of the first mentioned Mr. Bonner, Mr. James Bonner, he apparently arranges directly with the merchants for purchases, no relief orders being issued. Among the papers we found receipts for most of these purchases, but there is no record indicating that the needy actually received the merchandise listed. In the bove list you will find that Edwin K. Bonner received a total of $109.25, or approximately twelve and one-half per cent. of the amount expended for outside relief.
Q. During the entire years from 1926 to 1931, how much relief was given out by this Board—outside relief?
A. $836.63 for outside relief for the period from February 1st, 1919 to September 12, 1932.
Q. That is 13 years?
A. Yes.
Q. How much?
A. $838.63.
By Mr. Baldi:
Q. There is no institution there for that?
A. No. They have to maintain inmates at other institutions.
Q. How much does that amount to?
A. $321.44 has been expended by Mr. Edward K. Bonner in his district during the period I mentioned before. There are two Mr. Bonners, and two districts, and they ought not to be confused.
Q. On page 5 you say something about the Talbot Fund Relief. What did you mean by that?
A. We are referring also to Edwin K. Bonner, and in addition to that, the Overseer administered the Talbot Fund Relief to the extent of $267.11, through his usual bank account. In this connection it is interesting to note that the Overseer not only did not use relief orders as prescribed by the Talbot Act, but that in a majority of the cases he drew checks to the order of the recipients. A summary of the manner in which these funds were expended is indicated in my report.
Q. Anyone receiving a check would receive the benefit of it?
A. Yes.
Q. That person would cash the check and buy the articles with it?
A. We can only presume that.
Q. But that was what he was supposed to do, although there is no record of that?
A. That is right.
Q. How about the tax rate?
A. The tax rate was five mills for the years 1924 and 1930 when taxes were collected. No penalties or interest are charged for delinquent payments. No proper record is kept, either of taxes collectible or of the taxes paid. In order to prepare the tax duplicate, Mr. E. K. Bonner obtained a list of assessments from Louis Farrell, real estate assessor. The type of book in use is a very crude affair, and our audit reveals that many assessments are omitted. There is no doubt that important information, such as unpaid taxes and assesments, should be kept in a substantial book so that it becomes a permanent record, and there also is no doubt that the information should be kept in a methodical manner, so that anyone examining the records could get a complete and comprehensive picture of the condition of affairs.
Q. Next take your report of the Bristol Board.
A. We just have a rough draft of that.
By Mr. Tahl:
Q. Mr. Krekstein, have you made an examination of the Bristol Board?
A. Yes.
Q. What is the location there. What are the boundaries?
A. This township is within the Forty-second Ward in the City of Philadelphia.
Q. That takes in the entire ward?
A. That is right.
Q. Who are the directors on the Board?
A. They are not known as directors, but as guardians, and they number four.
Q. Now, you examined the records of this Board for the year 1931?
A. We did.
Q. What were the expenses of this Board during the year, 1931 — the expenditures?
A. You mean what were the disbursements during the period?
Q. The expenditures?
A. During the year ending December 31, 1931, outside relief was $87,795.80; maintenance of inmates in institutions, $8,436.67; cost of tax collections, $10,506.75; overhead expenses, $10,994.84; tax refund, $6.20.
Q. Now, Mr. Krekstein, was there sufficient income during the year 1931 to cover their expenditures?
A. In order to cover their expenditures, it was necessary for them to increase their loans from the bank by $25,000.00, and in addition to that, it was necessary for them to forego the payment of bills from institutions where they are maintaining inmates.
Q. In other words, there was a deficit during the year, 1931?
A. Positively.
Q. Have you examined their payroll?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. Has their payroll been increased or decreased during the year, 1931?
A. Compared with what year?
Q. The previous year.
A. You refer to, I believe, 1932?
Q. 1932, I mean. Has the payroll been increased during 1932, as compared with 1931?
A. Yes, it has been increased.
Q. By how much?
A. Approximately $6,000.
Q. Did they put any additional employees on during the year 1932?
A. Yes, they did.
Q. Did they increase the salaries of their employees during the year 1932?
A. In certain cases, yes.
Q. Notwithstanding the fact everybody has been getting a cut, these Boards have seen fit to increase the salaries of their employees.
A. I can read this section of the report, if you want me to, Mr. Tahl, this section in reference to that.
Q. Read that.
A. Under salaries we listed the persons and the salaries. Do you want me to read both the names and the salaries?
Q. Yes.
A. The salaries in 1931 were as follows. Under the heading of guardians we have:

Guardians:
Ambrose T. Stanton	$ 250.00
Charles Deeg	250.00
Alfred Swann	600.00
Richard Harris	500.00
Harry G. Rintz	500.00
Total for the Guardians		$ 2,100.00
Secretary and Solicitor:
Barnett Lieberman	$ 1,250.00
Total		$ 1,250.00
Auditors:
George W. Hankinson	$ 300.00
William Richards	500.00
Total		800.00
Collectors:
William Worff	$ 2,400.00
John Brown	2,400.00
John McPayle	1,500.00
Total		$6,300.00
Collector and Investigator:
Andrew T. Hamilton	$1,500.00
Total		1,500.00
Investigator:
Wayne H. Seers (who went on the payroll March 15, 1931)	950.00
Total		950.00
Writing Tax Books and Bill Clerks:
Ruth E. Swann	1,530.00
Grace Weikel	1,200.00
Elizabeth Leavesley	100.00
Rose Slugman	62.50
Total for writing tax books and bill clerks		$ 2,862.50
Grand total for the salaries		$15,762.50

Q. That is the payroll for 1931?
A. Yes.
Q. What is the total payroll for 1932, without reading the names of these people?
A. I have not listed it in that way. The only way I could give it to you would be to give it to you the way I have it in the report. The foregoing list of salaries shows the amounts paid to each guardian and employee during the year ending December 31, 1931. Reference to the minutes book indicates that on January 5, 1932, Mr. Oscar Moyer was appointed business manager at an annual salary of $2,500.00. Grace Weikel's salary was increased from $1200 to $1400 per annum. Joseph Hare was employed as an investigator at an annual salary of $1,500.00; Wayne H. Sears was appointed as delinquent tax collector on a commission basis to be determined at the end of the year, with a drawing account of $1,500 per year; and Patrick McGlone was employed in the same capacity, and on the same basis as Mr. Sears. At the same meeting Andrew T. Hamilton was discharged from his duties as delinquent tax collector and investigator, to take effect on January 15, 1932. At the March meeting of the guardians the following were employed to assist in transcribing the tax books, with compensation of $100 each, and 50 cents as expenses for each day they were engaged in the work: Mrs. Bauman, Mrs. Doningues, Mr. D. Egan, and Mr. White. The minute book presented for our scrutiny does not include September, October, November and December meetings of 1932, and therefore we cannot describe any further changes in the payroll. As a result of these various changes, the salaries for 1932 will be increased from $15,762.50, as is itemized above, to $21,112.50. It seems inconsistent for this Poor District to increase salaries in view of present conditions, and in view of their present liabilities. That will be discussed later. This inconsistency is further stressed by a resolution passed at a meeting held on January 13, 1932, "That because of the insufficiency of the funds on hand to pay all the bills presented at this meeting, the treasurer be and is hereby given authority to select the creditors that are to be paid with the funds on hand."

By Mr. Baldi:

Q. There is an increase of about $6,000?

A. Probably a little less than $6,000.

By Mr. Tahl:

Q. Now Mr. Krekstein, did you investigate the dealers from whom the Board was purchasing food?

A. Yes, we did.

Q. What were the prices charged or paid by the Board as compared to market prices on the outside?

A. We found practically the same conditions existed here as existed in the previous Board, which condition I have described, namely, that the prices paid to the merchants by the Board were higher than prices advertised in the newspapers on the same dates.

Q. About how much more did they pay, as far as a percentage basis is concerned?

A. I am not in a position to say that, and I do not have as detailed information on this Board as I had on the Roxborough Board, and I prefer describing it at a later time.

Q. How many merchants were selling merchandise to this Board? Have you got that?

A. Yes, I can give you that information. Out of a total of $74,639.52, twenty-two merchants received business totalling $72,727.69, and twenty-two more merchants received business totalling $1,911.83. To give you specific instances of how this business was distributed, one merchant received $15,196.00 in business, another $10.253.85, another $5,765.70, another $5,717.50, another $5,479.00, another $4,456.25, another $3,034.62, another $2.852.00, another $2,527.84, and so on. I might say that more than 50 per cent. of the purchases were from six grocers.

Mr. Tahl: Hearing adjourned until such time as occasion demands another meeting.

HEARING BY THE COMMITTEE APPOINTED BY THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE LEGISLATURE TO MAKE INVESTIGATION OF THE POOR BOARDS OF PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia, Pa., January 13th, 1933.

Pursuant to notice, a meeting of this Committee was held on this date at 2.30 o'clock p. m. in Room 248 City Hall, Philadelphia, Pa.

Present:

The Members of the Committee:

Sheppard H. Royle, Esq., Chairman.
Albert S. Millar, Esq.
Edward Haws, Esq., Presiding.
Joseph F. M. Baldi, 2d, Esq.
Herman J. Tahl, Esq.

Paul J. Reilly, Esq., for the Germantown Poor Board.
Barnet Lieberman, Esq., for the Bristol Poor Board.

Mr. Royal: Gentlemen, the meeting will now come to order. Mr. Haws, you may preside.

Mr. Reilly: Mr. Chairman, before you go on, you subpoenaed three witnesses, Mr. John Marsden, president of the Germantown Poor Board; Frederick, Day, secretary, and Frank Linck, superintendent of the Germantown institution, and I want to say that I represent those individuals, and that I have advised them that they should refuse to appear before you. That might explain why they have not appeared before this committee. I have advised them not to, because I believe this committee is without authority.

In addition that that, I might say that I regard you gentlemen as five individuals, rather than an authoritative committee, and I will ask you to return to the Germantown Poor Board whatever property you have in the way of books, papers, and other records you have in your possession, and unless you do return those things, I will bring such action in the courts as to compel you to return them. I should think about a week would be about enough time for you.

Mr. Haws: Mr. Reilly, what property does this committee have that belongs to you?

Mr. Reilly: You have books, papers and records.

Mr. Haws: Mr. Reilly, upon what do you base your authority for advising these people to refuse to come here?

Mr. Reilly: If I recognized you as a committee, I would not have so advised them, but inasmuch as I do not recognize you as a committee, I advised them, as individuals, not to come here to testify. To newspaper men I have nothing to say.

Mr. Haws: For your benefit, I will read you the authority of this committee which is based on a decision of the House.

Mr. Reilly: I understand that.

Mr. Tahl: Mr. Reilly, do I understand that the Germantown Poor Board, of all the boards in the city, is now refusing to submit itself to the authority of the committee? Is that your position?

Mr. Reilly: I don't recognize you as a committee, sir.

Mr. Tahl: Mr. Reilly, I asked you whether that is your position, the position of the Germantown Poor Board, that you refuse to submit yourself to our authority. Do you or do you not?

Mr. Reilly: I can answer that by saying, if by your question you want me to say you are a committee, I will say "no," but if on the other hand, by your question you want me to say you are not a committee, I will say "yes."

Mr. Millar: You regard these men as individuals?

Mr. Reilly: Yes.

Mr. Millar: And your advice to these members of the Germantown Poor Board was given to them by you personally, or as counsel for the Board?

Mr. Reilly: Of course, my advice to them would be as individuals. I advised them not to appear here, or if they appeared here, not to take any form of oath. However, my request for you to return the papers and things I have asked for, is in my capacity as counsel for the Board.

Mr. Tahl: Well, I want the record to show that, with reference to those who have refused to testify, the committee will consider that matter at the proper time.

Mr. Haws: For the benefit of those concerned, I will read a rule of the House with reference to the authority of this committee. It is rule No. 65, page 1070, of Smull's Pennsylvania Manual. It says:

> "65. On a motion to discharge an investigating committee authorized by the House, the point of order was raised that this motion is out of order. The investigating committee has been authorized under a resolution of the House and ceases to exist after this House adjourns sine die. 'In a ruling of the Catlin Commission it was held that a committee acting under a resolution of one of the Houses of the Assembly would have no right to subpoena witnesses and no right to insist upon that subpoena being obeyed during the recess of the interim of the General Assembly. Therefore the committee would be without power,' and the motion would be futile. The Spacker overruled the point of order for this reason: There is no parallel between the Catin Commission and this committee. The Catlin Commission was appointed to investigate matters over which the Senate had no particular jurisdiction of the House. This committee is solely and exclusively within the jurisdiction of the House. The question of whether or not the House shall prefer charges. The Attorney General has given an opinion in which he says: 'There is no doubt of the right of the committee to proceed with the investigation after the adjournment of the House,' and it is likewise the opinion of the Chair. (Legislative Journal, June 27, 1913, pp. 5372 and 5373; Journal H. R. p. 5773.")

Mr. Tahl: I want to say this, that the committee feels that it has the power and authority to proceed, because it was given power by the House, when this committee was formed, and that certain power provided that this committee shall, until such time as our report is filed, make investigations as we deem proper, and bring in witnesses to testify in connection with our investigations. I believe the other members of the committee will agree with me that we have the power to proceed. With reference to those who refused to obey our subpoenas, we will take the necessary and proper action about that.

I. H. Krekstein, recalled

By Mr. Haws:

Q. Mr. Krekstein, of course, you recognize this report (indicating), as having been prepared by your firm?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And there is no use of going into whether you know the district covered by this Poor Board?

A. May I ask, Mr. Haws, which Board you mean?

Q. The Germantown Poor Board, the Township of Germantown. Now, will you tell the committee, generally, what you found in connection with your examination of that Board?

A. In connection with what phase of the work, Mr. Haws?

Q. Well, first, with reference to the election of officers?

A. The officials in charge of this poor district are known as managers, and at the present time are as follows:

John Marsden, President
James F. McClellan, Vice-President
Frederick S. Day, Secretary
Harry C. Davis, Jr., Treasurer
Horace H. Schaeffer, Assistant Secretary
Samuel C. Knox, Assistant Treasurer
Frederick W. Kurz
Richard A. Cronshey
Thomas A. Conolly

An examination of the general election returns of the County of Philadelphia on November 3, 1931, indates that Messrs. Marsden, Knox and Cronshey were elected on that day and at a meeting of the managers held on January 4, 1932, were "sworn in."

The managers are paid no stated salaries, but receive compensation for the duties they perform.

Q. What duties do they perform for which they receive compensation?

A. At the beginning of each year they vote themselves certain compensation for acting as chairmen of the various committees.

Q. Is there anything in the law that allows them to do that?

A. It was the opinion of their solicitor that they are not entitled to compensation for the usual and ordinary duties that they perform for the Poor District, but if they perform any duties that are not usual or customary, they are entitled to compensation for their expenses, and along those lines, instead of voting themselves salaries, they vote themselves expenses and allowances.

Q. Did you find that the duties performed by them, for which they voted themselves expenses, were of an unusual nature?

A. I can best state it by citing exactly what they received. For the year ending December 31, 1931, the following men recieevd the following compensation, as chairmen of the various committees, and as assistant secretaries, and treasurers:

Harry C. Davis, Jr., Treasurer	$ 250.00
Fred S. Day, Secretary	250.00
Horace H. Schaeffer, Assistant Secretary	150.00
Richard A. Cronshey, Assistant Secretary	75.00
Richard A. Cronshey, Chairman House Committee	200.00
James F. McClellan, Chairman House Committee	200.00
Thomas A. Conolly, Chairman of Accounts Committee	250.00
Fred W. Kurz, Chairman of Supplies Committee	150.00
Samuel C. Knox, Chairman of Hospital Commitee	75.00

That is a total of $1600.00.

Q. Would you call the duties they performed as secretaries, treasurers and chairmen of these committees, unusual duties?

A. I would believe that the duties they performed are usual. We find, in the other boards, that we examined, that the directors, managers, guardians, or whatever they call themselves, perform similar duties and receive salaries as compensation for such duties, and the duties that these particular managers performed are no different from those performed by the others.

Q. I also notice that in your report you state there is a list of elected auditors?

A. That is right.

Q. What are they supposed to do?

A. They are supposed audit the books and the records of the institution, and accounts of any other transactions that transpire.

Q. And they received compensation for that?

A. They did during the year ending December 31, 1931. The auditors received compensation totalling $516. A check for this amount was drawn to the order of G. Harry Reitter. We were unable to find any record indicating the rate of compensation for the auditors, but were advised by Mr. Tyler, the chief clerk and investigator, that they are paid at the rate of $2 per night. In addition, we observed that a check for $150 was drawn payable to the order of Mr. James L. Tyler, for auditing committee. The members of this committee were the following managers:

James McClellan, Chairman,
Harry C. Davis, Jr., and
Thomas A. Conolly.

Q. Then they received an additional compensation, in addition to the salary they received as treasurer, secretary, assistant secretary and so forth?

A. That is right. In other words, there were two types of audits, one was performed by the elected auditors, and the other performed by the managers, and both received compensation.

Q. And you stated that the managers are paid under salaries?

A. That is right. Well, it comes under the heading of "expenses."

Q. Yes. Those amounts are booked as "expenses for unusual duties," and I am trying to find out what are the unusual duties? What are the duties of the board of managers that they do not get paid for? They seem to get paid for everything else?

A. I would like to read to you in connection with that something that appeared in the minute books of January, 1932. This, I think, will make it clear. At this meeting, of January, 1932, a communication from Paul Reilly, solicitor for the board was read into the minutes, explaining that in his opinion the managers occupy unsalaried offices, because, "The act of 1929, is not applicable and salaries as such are not permissible legally." If a manager performs some service which is not regular, ordinary, usual and recurring, in the performance of his duties as manager he may be paid. If a manager incurs expense in performance of his duties he may be paid his expenses. Duties of a regular, ordinary, usual and recurring kind delegated to secretary, treasurer, or committee who are managers are not legally compensible out of the poor funds.

Q. But they did receive salaries, notwithstanding that, according to your report?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. Now, it seems to me that this poor board had a lot to pay out. They had to pay the president, vice-president, secretary, assistant secretary, treasurer, assistant treasurer and chairmen of various committees? They had to pay all of those people?

A. That is right.

Q. And they had to pay a clerk and ivestigator, James L. Tyler, $2,400 a year, according to your report?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did he have to do, if you know?

A. He is in charge of any investigation in the line of relief work.

Q. And he seems to be in charge of other offices. He has an assistant clerk at $1,200 a year?

A. That is right.

Q. Does my memory serve me correctly on this? Mr. Tyler, it seems to me, is a gentleman who made a statement to us at one time that he received no salary?

A. I don't recall that statement, Mr. Haws.

Mr. Baldi: No, it was not Mr. Tyler who said that.

By Mr. Haws:

Q. And then there is a solicitor, Paul Reilly, who received $450 for his work in that connection?

A. Yes, sir; and Mr. Reilly also received $31.93 during the same year as a commission on tax collections.

Q. And Dr. Charles H. McDevitt, in the roll of "outside physician" received $1,100 for his services during 1931?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are his duties?

A. Well, when he receives requests to serve patients who are unable to pay, they pay him $1,100 for such services.

Q. Whether he makes any visits or not?

A. Well, that is Dr. McDevitt's salary. I don't know anything about his visits.

Q. And the house superintendent gets $1,700 a year?

A. Yes.

Q. And the matron receives $800 a year?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the general assistant receives $480?

A. That is right.

Q. And there is a house physician at $900?

A. Yes. sir.

Q. And a nurse at $1,200?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And an assistant nurse at $520?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. As well as an engineer at $1,320?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then there is a fireman, cooks, cleaners, chambermaid and waitress, general houseworkers, floor-polisher, waiters, dishwashers, and gardener, at varying salaries?

A. Yes, sir.

Incidentally, I might say that the floor-polisher is a grandson of the general superintendent's.

Q. Now, regarding tax collections, William H. Cameron, on the collection of current taxes, at a commission of five per cent, was given $4,879.87 during that year?

A. That is right.

Q. And then there are delinquent tax collectors?

A. Yes. There are two delinquent tax collectors receiving 25 per cent, and one delinquent tax collector receiving 20 per cent.

Q. There was a delinquent tax collector by the name of Moll, who received 25 per cent. on delinquent taxes, his commission amounting to $5,662.10?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Another delinquent tax collector, at 25 per cent., a man by the name of Berger, who received in commissions, $7,269.78?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. While Paul Reilly, on delinquent taxes, received only 20 per cent. commissions, amounting to $31.93.?

A. That is right.

Q. Is there any explanation as to why there were so many delinquent taxes?

A. There was no explanation in the records, but it appears that their taxes were very delinquent, a little bit more so than usual, and it seemed to run along with the thought that the rate of commission on the collection of delinquent taxes is higher than the rate of commission on the collection of current taxes. The rate of commission on the collection of delinquent taxes is 20 or 25 per cent., while the commission on current taxes is only 5 per cent.

Q. Did they offer any explanation as to why one delinquent tax collector got 20 per cent. commission, while two others got 25 per cent.?

A. No.

Q. They did not offer any explanation for that?

A. No.

Q. If it is worth 25 per cent. to collect one item, I should think it would be worth 25 per cent. to collect another one.

By Mr. Millar:

Q. There are only two delinquent tax collectors, really?

A. Yes, the collections of the third collector amounting to only $31.93, in the way of commissions.

Q. Mr. Krekstein, did you notice any tendency on the part of this board to let taxes fall delinquent so that they could collect delinquent taxes, on which there is a higher commission?

A. It was quite noticeable.

Q. Were you able to examine their records to see the percentage of delinquent taxes.

A. No, we could not, because the books were in the hands of the District Attorney at the time we were making our investigation.

Q. And you did not want to interfere with his work?

A. That is right.

Q. As a matter of fact, most of the taxes in connection with this particular board were delinquent?

A. That is right.

By Mr. Tahl:

Q. Although you are not able to ascertain the percentage of delinquent taxes?

A. No, because the records were in the District Attorney's office at the time of our investigation.

Mr. Millar: We did not subpoena the records, because we did not want to interfere with the work of the District Attorney.

By Mr. Haws:

Q. They also had a man writing up tax books?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. For which work he received $650?

A. That is correct.

Q. He received $500 for writing the current books, and only $150 for writing the delinquent books?

A. Yes.

Q. It seems to me there were more delinquent taxes to write up than there were current taxes, were there not?

A. Well, there couldn't have been more.

Q. Well, according to the salaries paid, it seems as if there were more?

A. Yes, but the rate of commission on delinquent taxes was high, and that might account for the salaries paid, but actually, there were more current taxes collected than there were delinquent.

Q. Then, most of the taexs were not delinquent?

A. No, I don't believe so.

Q. Then you have in your report, "According to the minutes of the reorganization meeting held in January, 1932, the managers were to receive allowances for 1932 expenses as follows:"?

A. That is correct.

Q. Is that the same as we have just discussed, or is this in addition to that?

A. Yes. We have just discussed the expense allowances in January, 1931, but at the reorganization meeting in January, 1932, they again fixed the expenses for that year.

Q. They raised the salaries?

A. Yes.

Q. And the salaries for 1932 indicate an increase of $300 over the total payments for the same purpose in 1931?

A. Yes, sir. They have increased their expense allowances by $300.

Q. In these times, with things going on as they are, that seems to be just out of gear.

A. Yes.

Q. You did not read into the Act of 1809 that created this Board?

A. No.

Q. So that you have no knowledge of whether or not those expenses, or whatever they call them, are legal?

A. That is right.

Q. Did you find in your investigation into these relief orders that were given out any particular indications that some were getting more than the other fellow, or—

A. Well, we have found quite a lot of information in connection with that, which we have submitted in our report. With reference to that phase of our work, each manager is assigned to one of the nine divisions that the Poor District is divided into.

In order to prepare a list of all the families that received relief during 1931 it was necessary for us to analyze all of the relief orders that were presented by the merchants. In this way, we compiled a schedule showing the names and address of each family and the amount of relief they received. Investigators employed by your committee used this schedule in preparing questionaire used in interviewing the needy families, who received the relief orders. At the date of our report, namely, December 19, 1932, the investigators had not yet completed their work, and, therefore, the results of their investigation is not included herein.

We have scrutinized and compared a number of the relief orders and in our opinion the managers are administering this function in a very lax manner. As an illustration of this, we submit a few examples of our findings:

1. A number of merchants did not retail on the relief orders a description of merchandise furnished. A few of the merchants who were negligent in this respect in February of 1931, were Francis F. Murphy, George Davidson, H. Porter, A. McCaughey, Eugene Palledlo, Morrison's Market, S. Richaman, Clement J. Clark, and Thomas Armstrong, etc. The same condition was prevalent in other months also.

We brought in some of these orders to show you exactly how they presented them. It is customary to write on the order the exact amount of merchandise, the unit price, and the total, but we found that quite a lot of them just sent back the orders showing the amount owing, with no details at all to support it.

By Mr. Baldi:

Q. Pick out one such order?

A. Here is an order addressed to Francis F. Murphy where neither the unit price, quantity of food, or recipient is mentioned, but in spite of that the managers thought it wise to pay this bill.

Q. In other words, you cannot tell from that whether the recipient got the merchandise at all?

A. It is impossible to tell.

By Mr. Millar:

Q. And you cannot check the merchandise the quantity or the price?

A. Nothing at all.

Q. Did they have any system of checking up in the Germantown Poor Board?

A. None that I could find.

Q. Did you ask if they had any system of checking up?

A. No.

Q. Did they show you any?

A. No.

Q. Did they claim they had?

A. No. Shall I proceed?

Q. Yes.

A. 2. Very few merchants mentioned the weight or kind of meat furnished. An illustration of that is this: Here are a batch of orders drawn on the Cherry Store. In most instances they mentioned the type of merchandise delivered, but when it came to meats, they didn't mention the price at all. We find that running all through the Cherry orders. They would not put the per pound price on the order.

Q. Well, did they submit any detailed statement to the Board?

A. No, sir. Many grocers only showed the kind of food supplied, but failed to mention the quantities. We have a batch of orders here that indicate that. Mr. Williams, of 59 East Church Lane, received business totalling $1,328 in 1931, and never mentioned either the quantity or the price of the food. He only listed the type of food, and the total amount of the order. In other words, this merchant mentioned what the food was, but he didn't say anything about the price, the unit price, or the quantity. We have to assume it was a correct price.

Q. In other words, the result of what you are saying now is that the board paid these bills without any consideration for whether or not the prices they were paying were the current market prices?

A. That is right.

In other cases they did not put in any dates, and they never checked the order when it came back for payment to see if it was correct. Frequently, the recipients of relief orders failed to sign the orders. It is a rule that where a person receives relief, they should sign the order, so that the signatures can be verified, to make sure that the proper person receives the relief, but here we have a number of illustrations, where the recipients had not signed the orders, which proves that somebody else might have gotten the merchandise. In other cases the signatures of the managers are not authentic, and it appears that someone else has been signing their names. I can show you that best by having you look at the orders. Here is an illustration. This is the correct signature of Frederick S. Day, a manager, and here is an order that purports to bear his name, but it is not his signature at all. Anybody can see it by looking at it, and we found frequent occurrences of that, indicating that they were not comparing the signatures of the managers to see that they were authentic. Orders in some instances were duplicated on the same day to the same families. Little, if any, supervision is exercised over the selection and prices of foods purchased by the needy, and we bring a few illustrations on that. We have here four orders that were issued to M. Vishera. The first one is dated January 26th, and it lists the merchandise received. There was nothing wrong about the type of merchandise in there, but in turning to an order issued on February 26th, to the same party, we find that that party received five cans of tomatoes for a dollar. The whole order was only for $4.00, and, therefore, the amount of tomatoes is out of line with the rest of the order, and the price seems to be excessive. On a further order issued to the same party, February 10th, there are four cans of tomatoes, and the whole order is only for $4.00, and the price is not 25 cents a can as is the other order, indicating a variation in price charged, and indicating also, that this family was using more than the usual amount of tomatoes, it seems to me.

It seems as though the managers were not supervising the type of food, nor the prices charged for food, giving to the needy.

We also found in other instances that sometimes orders are drawn on one merchant and presented for payment by another.

By Mr. Haws:

Q. Did you compare the prices paid for this merchandise, with prices paid at other stores?

A. Yes. We compared the prices not only with other stores, but we compared the prices charged by others of their own merchants. By that I mean that we took their own lists, to see if they were consistent, and we found a very wide variance in the prices charged for the merchandise. We aso found a variance in prices charged by an individual merchant, on their own lists, by that I mean that the merchants on one date would charge a certain price, and on a different date charge a different price, or charge different prices on the same date. Do you want me to read that from my report?

Q. No.

In other words, the price of butter, for instance, with the merchant E. F. Lower, ranged from 42 cents a pound to 46 cents a pound?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the same merchant's eggs ran from 35 cents a dozen to 40 cents a dozen?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And his coffee ran from 25 cents a pound to 36 cents a pound?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And his lard ran from 14 cents a pound to 18 cents a pound?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the price of butter, with their own merchants, varied from 35 cents a pound to 42 cents a pound.

While the chain stores charged from 31 cents a pound to 35 cents a pound?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were those comparisons made as of the same time?

A. Exactly the same time. We used the newspaper advertisments in connection with the chain stores.

Q. And the comparisons with other merchants on their lists were made as of the same time?

A. That is right.

Q. Your report contains a sample of the variation of prices?

A. Yes. If they wanted to save a lot of money, all they had to do was compare the prices of the merchants on their own lists.

Q. Or else they were treating some better than others?

A. That is possible.

Q. With reference to the maintenance of the almshouse and the farm, I see that the main building has three floors and it is very spacious?

A. That is right.

Q. Will you tell us what rooms and so forth the building is composed?

A. Yes. The main building has three floors, and is very spacious. On the first floor we found the following rooms: Large enclosed porch for use of staff and visitors, main office, manager's room, chapel, extra office and reception room, doctor's office, private diningroom for staff, male inmates lounging room, female inmates sitting room, male inmates enclosed porch, female inmates enclosed porch, male inmates diningroom, female inmates diningroom, kitchen, two bedrooms occupied by staff, additional lounging room, storeroom, numerous closets, several wash rooms, five cell rooms.

On the second and third floors, there are numerous bedrooms, bathrooms, closets, storage rooms and quarters for the staff. The hospital section of the inmates' quarters is separated from the other sections of the floors. Male and female inmates are kept apart. An elevator has been installed for the convenience of those who are unable to climb stairs. Spiral fire escapes have been attached to the outer walls of the building. We have counted approximately 100 beds for inmates in the various rooms previously described. There are from one to eight beds in a room. From our observation, we can estimate that about 175 inmates could be comfortably accommodated, as we find that a number of the bedrooms are vacant and additional beds could be placed in some of the rooms that are occupied.

A structure erected in 1928, housing the laundry and boiler room is adjacent to the main building. A new stable and garage, constructed in 1929, is also adjacent to the home.

The laundry and boiler room seems to be out of proportion of the size of the institution, and in our opinion, is suitable for a much larger home. We are informed that the laundry is only in use several days a week. Previous to the erection of this new building, the laundry and boiler room were located in the basement of the main building. The barn and garage, both from their interior and exterior appearance, seem to be suitable for a large private institution. The garage has space for four automobiles, and we find that the poor district owns only two, one of which is in use by Mr. Tyler as investigator. We are informed that the other car was donated and is of very little value, and is not in use. In addition to this, Mr. Linck, the superintendent, keeps his personal automobile in the same building.

One horse and two cows are kept in the barn, and there are about 75 chickens in the chicken house.

All of the new buildings that we described are constructed of the finest brown brick. We have learned that these same buildings were erected during the year 1927, 1928, 1929 and 1930.

An examination of the annual reports published by the managers indicated the following capital expenditures and repairs:

1926	$15,278.81
1927	6,699.00
1928	31,620.93
1929	42,625.88
1930	11,972.84
1931	1,468.25
Total	$109,665.71

Of this amount we have been advised that the laundry, boilerroom and equipment cost $35,088.79; the stable and garage $23,208.15; linoleum in main building $6,336.05; and the enclosed front porch $9,501.00, making a total of $74,133.99, leaving a balance of $35,531.72 for other capital expenditures.

Q. Now, with reference to occupancy of this building by the staff, who occupies those rooms out there—

A. You mean in reference to the staff?

Q. Yes.

A. The superintendent, Frank Linck, the matron, his wife, and their grandson, occupy a large apartment in the front part of the second floor, consisting of five very large rooms and several smaller rooms. The following employees occupy separate rooms in the building: Martha Maynard, nurse; Mary Rice, assistant nurse; Harry Skewstead, general assistant; John S. Miller, cook; P. Harvey Fluck, farmer; Lens Martin, assistant cook; Stella Hamilton, general housework; Mary Bonner, cleaner; Sue Boisbrum, chambermaid and waitress.

By Mr. Millar:

Q. That makes twelve rooms altogether for the employees?

A. Well, it is not quite twelve rooms, altogether.

Q. Including the superintendent and his family?

A. Oh, yes, including the superintendent and his family.

Q. Who else, on the staff, sleep there besides the superintendent and his wife and grandson?

A. I don't believe anyone else sleeps there.

Q. And they also have exclusive use of the porch, which costs $9,500?

A. Yes.

Q. That cannot be used by inmates of the building?

A. That is right.

Q. And the porch extends over into a very beautiful lawn?

A. Yes. It is very beautiful.

Q. And there is a very nice driveway leading into it?

A. That is right.

Q. As compared to the building occupied by the inmates, what is the type of construction of the garage, barn, chicken coop, and boiler room?

A. I believe that the garage, barn and chicken house are of much finer construction than the sections of the house occupied by the inmates. In fact, I previously mentioned that these buildings are suitable for a fine estate.

Q. Are they much better, for sleeping purposes, than the quarters occupied by the inmates?

A. I believe so.

Q. You were there; you saw them?

A. That is right.

Q. And you believe those buildings are finer for sleeping purposes than the quarters occupied by the inmates?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Even where they keep the horse, cow and calf, it is better than the place where the inmates sleep?

A. It is of much finer construction, but, of course, it is furnished differently.

Q. Naturally so.

A. I have never seen a finer garage.

Q. And the same is true of the chicken house?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you notice the cells that they have in this house?

A. Yes, there are five on the third floor.

Q. Were they occupied at the time you were there?

A. Nobody was in the cells at the time, but they told me that one inmate had to be locked in at night, because he wanders at night.

Q. Did they tell you that the inmates like to sleep there?

A. No.

Q. Well, they told us that. Did you notice the superintendent doing any work?

A. No.

Q. Did you notice him picking any daisies?

A. No, he was not picking any daisies while we were there.

Q. Well, when we were there he was picking daisies for the stenographers.

Mr. Haws: Male or female stenographers?

Mr. Millar: Female:

By Mr. Millar:

Q. Did you notice his wife doing any work?

A. No, I did not.

By Mr. Tahl:

Q. How many times were you there?

A. About three times.

By Mr. Millar:

Q. Did you notice anything different about the food served to the staff, as compared to the food served to the inmates?

A. The quality of the food is different. The food is much better than what is served to the inmates. They purchase a different kind of food altogether.

Q. I notice that in your report you have mentioned the very interesting item of tobacco and cigars purchased for the inmates.

A. Tobacco for the inmates was purchased from C. J. Krull, totalling $243.60. In addition to this, 5,800 cigars were purchased from Otto Eisenlohr and Brothers, and Manor-Crossman Company, at a total cost of $635.51, or approximately 11 cents each. We were informed by the superintendent that the cigars are not given to the inmates, but are consumed by the managers.

By Mr. Haws:

Q. That is part of their compensation, I suppose?

A. I don't know.

By Mr. Millar:

Q. How often do the managers meet?

A. Once a month, except when they have special meetings.

Q. How many managers are there?

A. Nine. The fact is that the inmates received tobacco, according to their record, in the amount of $243.60, and they have over 90 inmates, while the managers spent for themselves over $600 in cigars.

Q. In the course of one year?

A. Yes.

By Mr. Haws:

Q. What about the item of whiskey?

A. The records indicate that 20 cases of Mt. Vernon Rye Whiskey, at a total cost of $1,000.00, was purchased during the year. We find that the superintendent has kept an accurate record of the prescriptions drawn on his supply by the house physician. We have also examined the doctor's records, and note that he has accounted for each ounce prescribed, showing the name of the patient and his physical ailment. It seems extravagant to use such a large quantity of whiskey, and probably some substitute could be recommended at a much smaller cost. It must be remembered that the patients are inmates of an almshouse and are not paying patients in a hospital.

Q. You did not talk to any of the inmates to find out what they had to say about this good liquor?

A. No.

Q. Mr. Vernon is a good brand of whiskey, I understand.

By Mr. Millar:

Q. How much is that per patient for whiskey?

A. It is $11 per patient every year. That is on the average. By the way, we compared their medical costs, not including whiskey, with the costs of a number of other institutions of like character, and we found the medical costs in this Germantown institution much higher than they are throughout the State. We compared the cost for such things in the almshouses in Philadelphia with others throughout the State, and we found the Philadelphia costs much higher. In fact, the other almshouses in Philadelphia brought the costs down, as compared to Germantown.

Q. How about the item of "Conventions" mentioned in your report?

A. During the period under review, the cost of sending delegates to the annual convention at Altoona, Pa., was $950.00. In the annual report prepared by the Board of Auditors, this expenditure was included in a classification, 'Convention expenses and transportation $1,802.51.' An analysis of this account disclosed that it consisted of the following:

Automobile Expenses	$ 275.64
Transportation of Patients and Poor	160.72
Visits to Institution	416.15
Convention Expenses	950.00
Total	$1,802.51

In preparing our report of expenditures, we have charged the above items to the proper classifications.

An examination of their previous annual reports shows that the following sums were expended for convention expenses and transportation:

1928	$ 895.25
1929	2,612.91
1930	2,563.24

In other words, it shows that such costs were much higher than in previous years.

By Mr. Baldi:

Q. Do you know where those conventions were held, with respect to the years 1928, 1929, and 1930?

A. I can tell you that in a few minutes. In 1928, it was held in Philadelphia.

Q. And the expenses were $895.25 for a convention held in Philadelphia?

A. Well, that includes attending the other different institutions here. In 1929—

Q. This item of $2,563.24, for expenses for the 1930 convention, how were they divided up per person?

A. They have nine managers, but I don't believe all the managers go to the conventions.

Q. If all did go to the conventions it would come to approximately $250 per person?

A. Yes.

Q. And since all do not go, the cost is proportionately greater per person?

A. Yes.

By Mr. Millar:

Q. How about the item of "landscaping"?

A. We have prepared a schedule showing the cost of landscaping and trimming hedges for the year 1931, as $533.60. An examination of the invoices and vouchers show that the sum of $451.60 was paid to J. Franklin Meehan & Sons for landscape work, supplying and planting trees, and $82.00 was paid to W. B. Barrows for trimming hedges. It appears that Mr. Barrows charged at the rate of $7.00 a day in April and $6.67 per day in July for his services.

In view of the fact that a farmer is employed and one of the inmates acts as a gardener, it is difficult to see why it was necessary to secure outside labor for this purpose and at these prices.

Although the grounds surrounding the Almshouse present a magnificent appearance, it might be suggested that such funds be more appropriately applied to the relief of the needy.

Q. Those hedges are in front of the quarters occupied by the steward and his wife?

A. That is right.

Q. Did you notice the board fence there?

A. No. I brought these vouchers, if you would like to see how that money was spent; these are bills for the landscaping and so forth.

Mr. Haws: Would any other members of the committee like to ask any further questions on this Germantown Poor Board?

By Mr. Royle:

Q. This $900 that was spent for the Philadelphia Convention, that was used for entertaining outside Poor Boards, was it not?

A. I don't know what it was spent for, except that that was the expenses for the group attending the convention, for transportation, and so forth. We did not audit the accounts as of the time previous to 1931.

By Mr. Millar:

Q. This is a much more desirable place for inmates than any other such institution in Philadelphia, is that right?

A. This place is kept very well.

Q. Linen, blankets, and so forth, are of much better material?

A. Yes. The place is kept very clean.

Q. The entire institution is very well kept, and clean?

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Tahl:

Q. Now, we will take up the Bristol Board. This Poor District takes in the 42nd Ward?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who are the officers?

A. They call themselves guardians. They are Edwin A. Sharpless, president; Joseph Schwartz, secretary; Albert F. Forster, treasurer; Alfred M. Swann.

Q. Have you been able to ascertain the salaries of these guardians of the poor?

A. Yes

Q. The annual salaries?

A. Yes. They receive $500 a year.

Q. That is the salary on which they are elected?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do they receive money additional to what is allowed them by law?

A. Yes. Mr. Swann received as additional compensation $100 for clerical services in the office, and each guardian received an additional expense allowance of $180 during the year.

Q. Have you seen any vouchers to show what the expenses were, for which they received $180?

A. No.

Q. This board has how many collectors?

A. In 1931 the following were collectors. Do you want the names, or just the number?

Q. I just want to know how many?

A. There were three collectors regularly employed, and there was another man that acted as collector and investigator.

Q. Were all of the collectors paid the same salary?

A. No, they differed.

Q. What did they receive?

A. Two of the collectors received $2,400, while the third collector received $1,500, and the collector and investigator received $1,500. They received those amounts as salaries.

Q. Have you ascertained the reason for the difference in the amounts of salaries. Did the two receiving $2,400 do more work than the others?

A. No, I don't know why that was. Their pay checks showed that difference, and the minutes showed their salaries, in addition.

Q. Up to 1931 who managed the affairs of this board?

A. The guardians.

Q. In 1931 what happened as to who was put in charge of the business of this board?

A. Reference to the Minute Book indicate that on January 5, 1932, Mr. Oscar Moyer was appointed business manager, at an annual salary of $2,500.

Q. Have you been able to find out why there was the necessity for having a business manager at $2,500, after all these years the board went without a manager?

A. No, I really don't know why they secured his services.

Q. By the way, how much was the payroll of the Poor Board during the year, 1931?

A. That is shown in the report here.

Q. As well as the salaries for 1932?

A. Yes.

Q. And was there an increase or decrease in 1932?

A. There was an increase in salaries for 1932 amounting to approximately $6,000—a little less than that, about $5,400.

Q. Now, what was the condition of the Poor Board at the time when this increase was made; I mean, so far as its ability to pay bills is concerned?

A. At the very meeting when they set these various amounts of compensation they passed a resolution reading as follows:

That because of the insufficiency of the funds on hand to pay all the bills presented at this meeting, the treasurer be and he is hereby given authority to select the creditors that are to be paid with the funds on hand. That meeting was on January 13, 1932.

Q. And notwithstanding that, you found that there was an increase in the payroll, in salaries; is that right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Krekstein, have you examined the method of collection of taxes for the handling of funds by this board?

A. Yes, we have.

Q. Tell us in detail what you found the condition to be, with reference to the method of handling these funds collected by these collectors?

A. The Board of Revision of Taxes issued a statement showing the assessments for the 42nd Ward on February 11, 1931, to be $249,497,160.00. We have added the tax duplicates in use during 1931 by the Poor District, arriving at a total assessment of $249,078,060.00. The difference in assessments of $419,100.00 is equivalent to a tax of $167.64.

Q. Mr. Krekstein, my thought was this: a collector in charge of a certain district, I suppose? The Poor District is divided into certain districts?

A. I really didn't go into that phase of it.

Q. When a collector collects the money what does he do with it?

A. He deposits it in a certain account known as the Collector's Account, and on the following Wednesday, or something like that, he transfers the money in this account to the general fund. However, we found an overlapping of collections deposited. For instance, on December 31, 1931, a collector would have in his possession certain funds collected, and instead of being turned into the general fund then, or at the appointed time, those funds were not turned into the general fund until, maybe, the second week of January, 1932; and we found this condition existing practically all the time. In other words, the money is not accounted for, until, probably, a week or ten days past the period, it should be accounted for and then the collector renders his report to the guardians and transfers the money. In our opinion, it is not a proper way to handle these funds, because they should be accounted for immediately upon being received.

Q. By the way, what was the tax rate there in the year 1928?

A. The tax rate in 1928 was one mill.

Q. And what was the rate in 1929?

A. Two mills.

Q. And in 1930?

A. Two mills.

Q. And what was the rate in 1931?

A. Four mills.

By Mr. Millar:

Q. On the question of the calculation of the assessments by the Board of Revision of Taxes for the 42nd Ward, in 1931, what is the significance of the difference between that assessment and the assessment shown on the tax duplicates in use during 1931 by the Poor District?

A. It proves that the duplicates were not prepared accurately, and it proves that they did not add the tax duplicates to see that it compared correctly with the statement of the Board of Revision of Taxes.

Q. Might that indicate that there were some properties on which the Poor Board did not render bills?

A. It is possible.

Q. And it might also indicate that the assessment of properties on the tax duplicates used by the Poor Board were not correct?

A. That is right.

Q. It might also indicate that the Board of Revision of Taxes was wrong?

A. Yes, but I don't think so, because the figures of the Board of Revision of Taxes are usually checked and rechecked.

Q. Those figures of the Board of Revision of Taxes are gone over by the comptroller?

A. That is right.

Q. At any rate, the significance of it is that the Poor Board is not getting taxes on property assessed to the extent of $400,000?

A. That is right.

By Mr. Tahl:

Q. Mr. Krekstein, what was the cost for the collection of taxes for the year, 1931, in this Poor Board?

A. On Exhibit A, Schedule No. 3, the cost of tax collections is itemized and totals $10,506.75, and on Exhibit B, Schedule No. 1, overhead is charged to this function in the amount of $1,082.99, making the total cost of collecting taxes during the year ended December 31, 1931, $11,589.74. The total revenue from current and delinquent taxes, interest and penalties in 1931 was $89,818.43, and therefore, the cost was 12.9%.

Q. What did it cost to operate this entire board? I mean the percentage?

A. The cost was 18.26 per cent.

Q. In other words, of each $100 received $18.00 went for expenses, or a little more than that?

A. Yes, but if the basis of calculation would be applied to their tax collections, the percentage would be greate. You see, this board spent more in 1931 than it collected in revenue. They had to resort to loans, which will, in succeeding periods, have to be paid back.

Q. This board function's consists mainly of what?

A. Granting outside relief.

Q. How much was spent for outside relief during the year 1931?

A. $87,795.80.

Q. And the cost of maintenance of inmates in other institutions the same year amounted to what?

A. $8,436.67.

Q. Those two items represent the main function of this board?

A. Yes.

Q. Among how many merchants were these outside relief orders distributed?

A. Forty-two merchants.

Q. Now, the first merchant received how much of those orders?

A. Jacob Felton and Company received the most business. They received $15,196 worth of business in groceries and milk, out of a total of $74,639.52. They received 20.36 per cent. of the total business in that line.

Q. And the lowest one got how much?

A. Well, we didn't list the lowest, but merely showed that 22 merchants received less than $500 worth of business in a year, or 2.56 per cent. of the total.

Q. With reference to the charges made by these merchants, were they the same for the articles furnished by them?

A. No. We compared the prices charged by the different merchants for the same commodities, and we found a variance in prices.

Q. And how did that compare with the merchants receiving the most business, and those receiving very little business?

A. We found that those who received the most business had about the highest charges of them all.

Q. Can you tell us whether or not these merchants were selected by reason of their proximity to the people who received these orders?

A. We carefully looked into this subject, and we found that the selection was not made according to the location of the needy family to the merchant. We have prepared a map illustrating that, if you want to see it. This map indicates that a great many of the needy families had to travel quite some distance to get to the merchant supplying them. In some instances it was necessary for them to travel as many as 10 or 15 blocks, when, in fact, there were other merchants supplying foodstuffs for this Poor Board, that were much nearer than that.

Q. Show us the map.

A. (Witness explains map.) We had cases where the needy has had to go as many as 20 blocks. Of course, also, we have had cases where the stores were much nearer.

Mr. Tahl: Mr. Lieberman, we are finished with this witness. If you want to ask any questions—we want to be fair to you and the board you represent—you are at liberty to do so, or if you want to direct any questions, to the members of the committee, we will be glad to hear you.

Mr. Lieberman: I just want to say that I question the legal right of this committee to make this investigation, Mr. Millar, Mr. Baldi, and Mr. Haws, three of your members, no longer being members of the Legislature—

Mr. Tahl: We want to say this to you, Mr. Lieberman, that in subpoenaing these people, we felt that they would not testify, themselves, because we knew they would not testify against themselves, but our purpose, merely, was to have them come here and interrogate this witness, or contradict the witness, if they felt like it.

Mr. Lieberman: The people you have subpoenaed are willing to testify on any question you may testify so that the public may get the benefit of their side of the question.

Mr. Tahl: They do not have to testify, unless they wish to testify. It was our intention in subpoenaing them, merely to have them come here, and face this witness. If you feel that you want to put them on the stand, it is up to you. We will hear them. Now, unless you take that position, why raise this legal question? It makes no difference. We are not going to enforce the attendance of those witnesses. It is entirely up to them. Therefore, there is no use in raising that question.

Mr. Lieberman: I am raising that question, and I am telling you that these witnesses are willing to testify, in response to these subpoenas, because they have nothing to hide. Now, if you want to hear my legal reasons—

Mr. Tahl: If you wish to examine this witness yourself, go ahead.

Mr. Haws: Upon what do you base the illegal status of our committee?

Mr. Lieberman: First of all, the committee is not within the call of the Governor.

Mr. Tahl: I suppose you read that one in the paper.

Mr. Lieberman: No, sir; I read the opinion. Secondly, the term, of office of three of your members having expired, in my opinion, you do not have a quorum. Thirdly, these three gentlemen have no legal right to sit in this committee after their term has expired.

Mr. Haws: This committee has no appropriation, and therefore it is not applicable. The decision has no application to our committee.

Mr. Tahl: Why raise the question? What are you objecting about?

Mr. Lieberman: Oh, just as a matter of record.

Mr. Haws: Let me ask you, Mr. Lieberman, were you correctly quoted, with reference to this committee?

Mr. Lieberman: I don't know.

Mr. Haws: I just want to know whether you were.

Mr. Lieberman: I did say that I thought that the last meeting of this committee the proceedings were, in my opinion, disgraceful. That is the word I used.

Mr. Haws: In what way were they disgraceful?

Mr. Lieberman: I have made my statement.

Mr. Haws: I want to say that the committee does not take any notice of that at all. The committee feels that it should not take any notice of it, and with that, Mr. Lieberman, you may proceed to examine the witness.

Mr. Lieberman: I can raise the question.

By Mr. Lieberman:

Q. Now, Mr. Krekstein, all these bills due at the beginning of 1931 have been paid?

A. Which bills do you have reference to?

Q. The bills due on groceries?

A. I think that is right, yes.

Q. And this account which the tax collector keeps, he cannot draw on that account, except to the order of the treasurer of the board; is that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. He does not have any authority to draw any checks on that account to anybody else except the treasurer of the board?

A. That is right.

Q. Do you know that all of the grocers that have been furnishing food on our orders belong to the Frankford Association, or Unity Stores Association?

A. No.

Q. Did you check on that?

A. No.

Mr. Baldi: What would be the significance of that?

Mr. Lieberman: The prices that the Frankford Association, or the Unity Stores Association charges compare favorably with the chain stores, like the American Stores, and the A. & P., and not only that, prices charged are to be displayed on the goods. I think that is one of the rules.

Mr. Millar: Yes, but your own records show that you are giving all of your business to a few of the stores, and you are being trimmed by some of your merchants.

Mr. Baldi: And you have different prices charged in the same week for the same article by your own merchants.

Mr. Lieberman: I don't know about that, but I know that the prices of the Unity Stores compare favorably with the chain stores.

Mr. Millar: That is your opinion.

Mr. Lieberman: You cannot have a one 100 per cent. organization and we try to check up on it.

Mr. Millar: All this committee is doing is trying to indicate how the poor people can get more for the money, and pay less for the goods, but it seems that the boards are not paying any attention to the best interests of the poor.

You have been buying butter and eggs, for instance, from certain merchants, and the prices they charge you vary as of the same date, and they are always in excess of prices charged by the chain stores. Why shouldn't your board see that it does not pay any more to these merchants than it would have to pay to the chain stoes or to some of your own merchants, who make charges not as high as some of the others.

Mr. Lieberman: That is why we have appointed a business manager, for just that, and to develop a better organization. We have selected the local stores, because in many cases, the local merchants have carried the people from time to time without getting paid. They sometimes keep these families supplied with food for several weeks, and they are willing to wait for their money. The American Stores, for instance, will not do that. We are making an investigation of our own into our own affairs, in an effort to bring about better conditions. We appointed the business manager in 1932, before this committee was appointed, and from 1932 we decreased the percentage of our overhead by 2 per cent., and we increased the amount of relief given, and the number of people receiving relief.

Mr. Millar: Are you givnig any now?

Mr. Lieberman: Yes, sir.

Mr. Millar: How many people?

Mr. Lieberman: I have not checked up on that, but we are giving oders to everybody going down to the Staples Committee, pending the report from the Staples Committee.

Mr. Millar: Do you have any money with which to pay the orders?

Mr. Lieberman: Yes. All our orders are paid up, and we are using some money to repay the money we borrowed from the bank.

Mr. Millar: Then in your total receipts is included money borrowed from the bank?

Mr. Lieberman: Yes, but we are paying it back.

Mr. Millar: How long would it take for the board to get out of debt?

Mr. Lieberman: I couldn't say that at the moment. I have not received the 1932 report yet.

Mr. Baldi: How long do you have to wait for an answer from the Staples Committee approving an order?

Mr. Lieberman: It varies from ten days to three or four weeks.

Mr. Baldi: In the meantime, then, the needy requesting relief must go without it?

Mr. Lieberman: No; we give relief pending the approval of the Staples committee. After we get their report we then act accordingly.

With reference to the remark I made of the conduct of the last meeting, I want to say that I did not make it as a personal reflection on any members of the committee.

Mr. Millar: We did not take it as a personal reflection.

By Mr. Millar:

Q. Mr. Krekstein, have you gone over the boundaries of the Oxford and the Lower Dublin poor districts?

A. Yes, but we find that the township lines do not coincide exactly with the ward lines.

Q. So that you recognize the fact that something definite, in the way of legislation, ought to be enacted, whereby the boundaries can be made definite?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Byberry and Roxborough are in the same situation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, practically, the only two that are definitely bounded are Germantown and Bristol?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Moreland is also in the same situation as Oxford, Lower Dublin is, with respect to boundaries?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you find in regard to salaries paid for the year ending December 31, 1931, in this district?

Q. That was for the year ending December 31st, 1931?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Do you know the percentage that was used for payroll and disbursements?
A. I have not worked out that percentage, Mr. Miller, although we have listed the receipts and disbursements in a later part of the report. We will come to that.
Q. With reference to the 18 inmates, approximately, working in the home, and 6 working on the farm, are they paid directly by the Poor Board?
A. No, the check is made payable to the order of the stewart, and he claims that he pays them, himself, although he was unable to show us receipts for those bills. He also pays the cook in the same manner.
Q. Did you find that they have too much help?
A. Well, I would say that the payroll, in my opinion, is excessive.
Q. What is that?
A. I would say that the payroll is excessive. I didn't go into the question as to whether they have been too much.
Q. For instance, they have a farmer at $900 a year, and they pay inmates for working on the farm, $338, or, at least, that is what they paid last year. Do they operate that farm at a profit or a loss?
A. They lose money on the farm.
Q. And these expenses, with reference to the farm simply increase the loss on the farm?
A. That is right.
Q. Have you any other report to make with reference to salaries and employes?
A. I didn't hear you, sir.
Q. Have you any other report to make with reference to salaries and employees?
A. Well, in comparing the salaries paid by this Board for the various functions they performed, we believe that their payroll is high, and something should be done to either reduce the number employed, or the amounts they received.
Q. What did you find with reference to the collection of taxes?
A. Pardon me; before we pass over that I want to bring out the fact that they paid last year $4,900 to investigators, and they paid $1,000 to a social worker, but we found no case records to indicate the work performed by these people, and it is hard for us to understand that they paid that much money, if they kept no record of that work.
Q. This is the Board, is it, that had not enough room to keep their records?
A. Oh, they had enough room, but the records were destroyed, they said.
Q. Did they have enough room there?
A. Oh, plenty of room, more than they need.
Q. Did they have what is known as a record room?
A. Oh, yes.
Q. Was there room enough in that room for you to get in?
A. Oh, yes.
Q. You did not have any trouble to get into that room? You did not fall over the records as you went in?
A. No, sir.
Q. And could they get any more records in there?
A. Positively.
Q. Would it be possible to keep records for one year or so?
A. There is enough room in there to keep records for as long as they will be in existence.
Q. And there is enough room to keep, probably, all of the records of all of the Poor Boards?
A. Yes.
Q. And yet that space is not used for records?
A. No.

By Mr. Baldi:
Q. Has there been any increase in salaries?
A. I believe the president of the board told me of some increases in salaries for 1932, but we didn't audit those records, and so I don't know what the changes were.

By Mr. Millar:
Q. Did you not learn that they reduced Mitchell's salary after he testified here?
A. I don't know about that.
Q. Well, go on with the item of collection of taxes.
A. Due to the large area covered by the Poor District, it has been divided into three sections, with a collector appointed for each one, in order to facilitate the collection of both current and delinquent taxes. The tax rate in effect during 1931 was 6 mills. The divisions of the Poor District and the collectors are listed below:

Division	Collector
1. 23rd Ward	Thos. W. Schumacher, 4411 Frankford Avenue
2. 41st Ward and 35th Ward, East of Roosevelt Blvd.	Fred P. Long, 8046 Frankford Avenue
3. 35th Ward, West of the Roosevelt Blvd.	Louis Schuehler, 7104 Rising Sun Avenue.

In the course of our examination, we have totaled the 1931 tax duplicates and have compared them with the statement issued by the Board of Revision of Taxes on February 11, 1931, relative to the assessments of Real Property in the Poor District, with the following results:

	Assessments
	Tax Duplicate	Board of Revision of Taxes	Difference
23rd Ward	$ 57,902,320.00	$ 57,908,225.00	$ 5,905.00
41st Ward	50,966,875.00	50,964,475.00	2,400.00
35th Ward, including Moreland and Byberry	$122,141,755.00	$121,707,725.00	$434,030.00

It will be noted that the total of the tax duplicates for the 23rd Ward and the 41st Ward are almost equal to the totals listed by the Boad of Revision of Taxes, but that a large difference occurs in the 35th Ward. It was necessary to combine the assessments in Moreland and Byberry with the section of the 35th Ward in the Poor District now under review in order to arrive at the total assessment of the entire 35th Ward,so as to compare it with the total shown by the Board of Revision of Taxes. We have observed that there are duplications of assessments in the different Poor Boards which comprise the 35th Ward amounting to $649,700.00, as may be noted in the following analysis—then that shows how that is made up. That is shown in the report.

The duplication of assessments indicates the lack of definite dividing lines among the Poor Districts concerned. This lack of co-ordination produces an injustice, in view of the variation in tax rates in the Poor Districts referred to.

Each tax collector receives, in addition to a current tax duplicate, a delinquent tax book showing the unpaid taxes for the proceeding year. All assessments, delinquent two or more years previous to the current taxable year, must be filled in by the collector himself. Each collector employs a different system in recording these previous years' delinquent assessments, and these systems will be discussed in more detail later in this report.

On the subject of current taxes, we have totaled the amount of 1931 assessments:

	T. W. Schumacher	F. P. Long	L. Schuehler
Total Assessments Collectible Per Tax Duplicate—1931	$57,902,320.00	$85,107,970.00	$82,358,735.00
1931 Assessments Delinquent December 31, 1931	16,859,125.00	28,460,550.00	27,524,950.00
1931 Assessments Collected Per Tax Duplicate	41,043,195.00	$ 56,647,420.00	54,833,785.00
Tax @ 6 Mills Per Tax Duplicate	24,625.92	33,988.45	32,900.27
1931 Tax Collected Per Cash Receipts Book.	24,838.55	33,275.32	33,141.72
Difference Over or Short	212.63	713.13	241.45
Capitalized at 6 Mills Equals Assessment of	$ 354,383.00	$ 1,188,550.00	$ 402,416.00

Q. That shows that Mr. Long was short?
A. That is right.
Q. Are there records kept in such shape that you can obtain information readily?
A. Very difficult to check their records.
Q. Do they make deposits on the day they are received, or the day afterwards, or what?
A. They do not. Each person keeps his own account, but he is not obliged to deposit money into that bank account on the day he receives it. He can collect taxes and put it into his bank account a week from today. All he has to do is to account for the total taxes collected, at the time the board meets. All he has to do then is show his bank account, show that the money in bank is equivalent to the money he collected up to the end of the month.
Q. In other words, the collectors had to account at this month's board meeting for collections in December?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And it might happen—I am not saying it does—that they are using collections from January 1st to date?
A. That is right; and that is our criticism of it.
Q. That is, as to keeping their records?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, as to the delinquent taxes, did they have any system?
A. No, each collector reports—I would like to read into the record a paragraph on that, if you want me to.
Q. I don't want to make it too long. I want to simplify it. Each collector is employed by the board with a book?
A. That is right, and that is how I got the records for the 1931 delinquent taxes. It was necessary for us to total the delinquent tax records kept by the tax collectors, both at January 1, 1931, and December 31, 1931, in order to prepare a comparison of delinquent taxes collected, as shown in the cash receipts book, with collections as shown in the delinquent tax records. The various methods employed by each collector in recording delinquent tax information, are set forth in our report.
Q. In the case of Mr. Schumacher, who has a record only of one year previous to 1931 delinquent taxes, his system of marking properties delinquent was by the use of are "X"?
A. That is right.
Q. And in the case of Mr. Long, he represented taxes delinquent for what year before 1930 with a figure "1"?
A. That is right.
Q. And a figure "2" for taxes delinquent two years before 1930.
A. Yes.
Q. And a figure "3" for three years before that?
A. Yes.
Q. And the figures "4" and "5", for four and five years, respectively, before 1930?
A. Yes.
Q. And he marked his records with an "X" when the taxes were delinquent for an indefinite period before 1930?
A. Yes.
Q. Do they have any definite method of collecting taxes in that way?
A. No, they have not.
Q. Do you have anything more to say with reference to the collection of taxes and delinquencies?
A. Only what is in my report. We brought the delinquent books in to illustrate our points. Each of these books kept by the collectors employ a different system in keeping a record of the number of years delinquent. I forgot another thing. This book here merely shows the date of payment, without indicating the amout paid.
Q. So that there is no record anywhere in that book of the amount of delinquent taxes paid; is that right?
A. That is right. This opens up a great laxity, or, I shoud say, permits great leeway to the collectors. It certainly gives them a great opportunity to be dishonest, without a great deal of effort, and something ought to be done to remove this condition so that they will not have so much leeway in the collection of taxes.
Q. Apart from the question of hoaesty, it indicates that the Board has certainly failed to give this matter the attention to which it is entitled?
A. That is right.
Q. Now, what have you to say as to the outside relief, do they have any investigators? I think you reported that they have investigators?
A. Yes, they have investigators, to whom they pay $4,900 during the year ending December 31, 1931, and they have a social worker to whom they pay $1,000. Each director is assigned to a particular territory and each application for relief in that territory is referred to him. During 1931, four investigators were employed at a total cost to the poor district of $4,900.00. At the option of the director, an investigator may be assigned to investigate an application. The report is prepared in duplicate, one copy being filed with the secretary and the other copy being retained in his own files. We found, however, only a small number of these reports in the files, and they were kept in a very haphazard fashion.

When the director approves an application, he draws an order in duplicate directing the merchant he selects to furnish the applicant for relief with supplies in the amount shown on the order. The original copy of the order is given to the needy person, and the copy is sent to the secretary for his files. The director retains for his record a stub showing the same information.
Q. How about the case records, you had difficulty finding them, did you?
A. We found only a few such records, and they did not represent more than ten per cent. of the cases investigated.
Q. Do you know what the value to the Board was of these investigators, with the exception of that indicated by this ten per cent. of the records?
A. I can see no value rendered by them at all, although we were told that these investigators made reports to the individual directors who assigned them to the cases.
Q. On the matter of outside relief, is there any check made on the prices paid for merchandise?
A. No, and we found most of the records were destroyed. We were unable to find out what prices they were paying for the foods purchased, but from inquiry made by us we found that they absolutely did not check the prices, nor anything else, in connection with these relief orders.
Q. Do you have any report on the number of merchants receiving the orders?
A. Yes. About five merchants received 40 per cent. of the business. About ten of the merchants received 22 per cent. of the business, and the balance received about 35 per cent. of the business. They did business with over one hundred merchants.
Q. And 71 merchants received less than $500 worth each?
A. Yes. 71 merchants only received a total of $9,663.55.
Q. Out of a total of $66,038.83?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Does the Board keep the bills received from these merchants?
A. No, we did not find them for 1931—oh, I am wrong about that statement, Mr. Millar. We did find them for 1931, but we did not find the orders for the merchandise for which the bills were incurred.
Q. Well, did not the bills give you an itemized statement of the supplies furnished?
A. No, just the number of articles, and the total, and in some cases just the total.
Q. Is that also true of these supplies for the institutions, themselves?
A. No. They have the invoices showing the supplies purchased for the institution, and we were able to compare prices there.
Q. What was the average number of inmates in the home there during the year 1931?
A. 78 inmates.
Q. And what was the per capita cost of supporting each inmate?
A. $362.47 per annum, or $6.97 per week. In these figures, we have not charged the institution with depreciation on buildings and equipment, nor with interest on the value of the land.
Q. This institution is also paying for the keep of persons in that poor district in the Philadelphia General Hospital, as well as in other institutions?
A. Yes, but they are not paying those bills. They stopped paying those bills at the Philadelphia General Hospital in April of 1931.
Q. Do you know why?
A. The directors feel that inasmuch as the city levied a tax of 7 cents for health purposes, it is responsible for hospital cases and should not look to the poor district for payment. In connection with payments made to State institutions, we find that the State assumes one-half of the actual cost in dollars per week per inmate, and in addition, credits the poor district with one-half of any amounts collected for their board.
Q. Are such amounts owning kept as a liability in their books?
A. No, they don't keep a general ledger showing their liabilities.
Q. Do you know what their liabilities are?
A. No, we do not. The books do not disclose that. It would be necessary to go through the bills and pick out the unpaid invoices.
Q. It appears that they owe the Philadelphia General Hospital $34,000.00; is that right?
A. Yes, as of December, 1932.
Q. And they owe Byberry, $2,000?
A. Yes, as of the same date.
Q. Will you describe the grounds and buildings?
A. This poor district owns approximately 115 acres of land located in the vicinity of Cottman Street near Frankford Avenue. The home situated on this plot is a three-story brown stone structure which was erected in 1868. The building has been modernized to a certain extent, having composition floors throughout. We noted that the interior of the building is very uneconomically laid out.
The building is utilized as follows:

Basement:
- Lounging room for male inmates
- Sitting room for female inmates
- Kitchen for all inmates
- Diningroom for male inmates
- Diningroom for female inmates
- Dispensary and storage rooms

First Floor:
- Sleeping rooms for male inmates:
  - Dormitory, 18 beds
  - 1 room, 4 beds
  - 1 room, 5 beds
  - 1 room, 2 beds
- Sleeping rooms for female inmates:
  - Dormitory, 9 beds
  - 1 room, 3 beds
  - 1 room, 2 beds
- Directors' meeting room and office
- Living room for staff
- Private kitchen for staff
- Private diningroom for staff
- 2 or 3 storage rooms

Second Floor:
- Sleeping rooms for male inmates:
  - Dormitory, 31 beds
  - 1 room, 2 beds
  - 1 room, 1 bed
  - Hall, 1 bed
- Sleeping rooms for female inmates:
  - Dormitory, 20 beds
  - 3 bedrooms for staff.
  - 1 sitting room for staff
  - 1 den (office) for staff
  - 2 or 3 storage rooms

Third Floor:
- 4 very large rooms, 3 of which are used as storerooms, one being furnished, but not occupied.

The laundry is housed in a separate building adjoining the home. In addition to this, there are two barns, one of which is used for storage of crops and farm machinery. The other barn is used for the livestock and storage of hay and grain. At the presnet time, the livestock consists of 3 horses and 3 cows. There are 200 to 300 chickens in a chicken house near the barn. Another large two-story building is used as a garage and toolroom. The steward explained that one of the rooms in this building was originally used as sleeping quarters for tramps. Among a number of minor buildings, we noted a large wagonshed.
Q. Is the ground under cultivation?
A. There's about 20 acres of the 115 acres they own under cultivation.
Q. And you say it is being cultivated at a yearly loss?
A. That is right.
Q. At least, it was in 1931?
A. That is right.
Q. Is there any record kept of what is produced?
A. Yes, some sort of a record, but it is not of any consequence. I would say that the records are of no value at all, in connection with the produce raised there.
Q. Are all of the products used in the institution?
A. I believe there is a small portion sold on the outside, but it is principally supposed to be used in the institution.
Q. Are the materials used there, such as in linens and bedding, as good as it is in Germantown?
A. No. It does not compare with that used in Germantown.

Q. Is the place kept clean?
A. Fairly clean, but when you compare it with an institution like Germantown, it suffers by the comparison.
Q. In other words, if you were a poor man, you would rather live in Germantown?
A. Oh, yes.
By Mr. Royle:
Q. What is the difference between Germantown and Oxford, so far as linens are concerned? Linens and bedding are all the same, are they not?
A. No. You will find in Germantown that they have white covers on the bed, known as spreads, or counter-spreads, but in Oxford and Lower Dublin, there is nothing on top of the men's beds. In the female section they have some covers on top of the beds, but they are not of the quality there is in Germantown, nor are they as neatly arranged. There is a lot of difference. They have lots of room in Germantown, and they don't have to crowd so much as they do in Oxford and Lower Dublin.
By Mr. Millar:

Q. In comparison with the farm buildings, or out buildings, in Germantown, the Oxford and Lower Dublin buildings are not nearly as good, are they?

A. No, not nearly so good. The buildings at Oxford and Lower Dublin are buildings such as you would expect to find on a farm, but the buildings in Germantown are of much finer construction. Oxford has new buildings, but they are not as luxurious as the buildings in Germantown.

Q. Did you have occasion to go into the question of prices of linens?

A. Yes, we did. We examined their linen bills carefully. In the period from January 1, to February 13th, 1931, supplies totaling $255.00 were purchased from Pollacks, 4360 Frankford Avenue; included in these purchases are several items as follows:
5 1-3 Doz. Unbleached Pillow Cases @ $6.00 Doz. $32.00
5 1-12 Doz. Unbleached Sheets @ $17.40 Doz. $94.25

We have had occasion to examine prices charged to the Germantown Poor District by the Department of Welfare, Prison Labor Division, for similar merchandise and find that bleached sheets cost then $11.00 per dozen, and bleached pillow cases were charged to them, at that time, at $3.30 per dozen. If you will compare these prices with those charged by Pollacks, you will agree with us that the Oxford and Lower Dublin poor district has paid an excess of $2.70 per dozen pillow cases, and $6.40 per dozen for sheets. In addition to this, the quality of the merchandise purchased by the Oxford and Lower Dublin poor districts is inferior to the quality of the same type of goods purchased by Germantown poor district, in view of the fact that the former is unbleached and the latter bleached.
Q. And you compared the prices paid for foods for the inmates, with prices paid for food for the staff?
A. Yes. We compared beef especially.
Q. And how about ginger ale and tobacco, and things of that sort?
A. Oh, yes. Of a total of $441.50 spent for tobacco $85.50 was used for the purchase of 950 cigars @ $.09 each, and the balance of $356.00 was used for the purchase of other tobacco. Eleven cases of ginger ale, containing 528 bottles at a cost of $75.30, was purchased during the period under review. The steward, Mr. Kelly, explained to us that both the cigars and ginger ale were consumed by the directors.

In connection with whiskey, two cases of pints of Dougherty's Private Stock was purchased from Carl F. Lauber in May, 1931, at a cost of $100.00. This was authorized at a meeting of the Board of Directors. The steward keeps a prescription record showing the quantity of the liquor on hand and the disposition thereof during each month. At the time of our visit in December 1932, his November, 1932 records were not complete. A further record is maintained by the house physician showing the details of each individual prescription. This record is not kept in the institution, and we did not examine it. The steward, furthermore, explained that the house physician, in addition to prescribing the doses, administered them personally.
Q. Did you make any inquiry of any of the inmates as to whether they received whiskey, and in what quantities, in connection with treatments?
A. No; we did not interview any of the inmates at all.
Q. Did you come across anything that indicated that the inmates were treated in that way?
A. No. These records are not at the institution. They are under the observation of the house physician, and we did not interview him concerning it.
Q. You did not do that in Germantown, either, did you?
A. Yes, we did in Germantown, because the house physician kept regular hours there, and we made an appointment to meet him.
Q. And the consumption of whiskey in Germantown was proportionately more than in Lower Dublin and Oxford?
A. Yes. The Germantown Institution used twenty cases, whereas this board used only two cases.
Q. So that the per capita part was not nearly so high here as it was in Germantown?
A. That is right.

Q. What have you to say with reference to the expenses incurred at the convention?

A. On Exhibit A, Schedule 5, it is shown that $2,000.00 was spent for the annual convention. We learn that the convention in 1931 was held in Altoona, Pennsylvania, and ten delegates were authorized to attend. Those who attended were, the eight directors, the steward and the matron. A check was drawn to the order of Oscar W. West, chairman of the convention committee, and no detail expense vouchers were required. The steward stated that each delegate received $200.00, and that he and his wife, although receiving $400 in total, did not spend that amount and were not required to refund or account for the balance. There is no doubt that the directors should be criticized for an expenditure of this nature.

In prior years, the following amounts were spent for conventions:

Year	Check Payable to	Place of Convention	Amount
1930	Carl Ebert	Allentown	$ 1,125.00
1929	Lewis F. Castor, Jr.	Conneaut Lake	2,500.00
1928	Lewis F. Castor, Jr.	Philadelphia	800.00
1927	Each Delegate $200	Hazelton	2,600.00
1926	Each Delegate $300	Erie	1,200.00
1925	Rudolph N. Carson	Lancaster	1,000.00

It is interesting to note that at the meeting of the directors held on August 20, 1931, when a resolution was adopted authorizing the expenditure of $2,000.00 for the annual convention, a resolution was also passed authorizing the treasurer to hold up the payment of the bill received from the Norristown State Hospital until sufficient funds were available to pay same. It seems inconsistent to spend $2,000 for a convention when they were unable to meet payment of current expenses, and had bank loans of $45,000.00 owing at this date.

Q. Now, do you know if the same number of delegates or representatives, attended the Allentown Convention, in 1930, as attended the convention in Altoona, in 1931?
A. I don't know the number of delegates attending, but I would assume that the same number attended.
Q. Did you speak to any of those delegates, with the exception of the steward?
A. No, I only spoke to the steward about it.
Q. Do you know if he was up to this date returned to the Poor Board that part of the $400 which he did not spend?
A. He did not say anything to me about that when I was there, which was in November or December of 1932.
Q. Do you not know whether he has returned it yet?
A. No.
Q. But you know, according to what he told you, that $400 was appropriated for the attendance of his wife and himself at the convention, although he did not spend the full $400?
A. That is right.
Q. And you know that $200 was appropriated for each of the delegates attending?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know if they spend all of the $200 allotted to them?
A. I didn't go into the question of how much they spent, but from information, they furnished, I would assume that it did not cost $200.
Q. Did they issue any statement as to how much it cost?
A. No.
Q. Has any delegate returned any part of the $200 allowed him for attendance at this convention?
A. No, no one has returned anything.
Q. Go on and tell us about the general expenditures?
A. The total cash disbursements for the year ending December 31, 1931, exclusive of Loans Repaid, is shown on Exhibit "A" as $168,754.49, and, in order to show the ratio that each item bears to the total, the following summary is presented:

	Amount	Ratio
Outside Relief	$ 88,970.65	52.72%
Home and Farm	23,070.62	13.67
Other Institutions	26,017.86	15.42
Directors' and Officers' Salaries	5,600.00	3.32
Secretary's Salary	2,000.00	1.20
Collectors' Commission and Text Books	8,666.79	5.14
Purchase of Safes for Collectors	617.40	.36
Other Epenses	13,811.17	8.17
Total	$ 168,754.49	100.00%

On Exhibit B, it is explained that disbursements exceed receipts exclusive of Bank Loans, by $39,272.90. This causes the various overhead expenses to show a smaller percentage to total disbursements during 1931 than would normally be expected. It is natural to expect that during succeeding periods, it will be necessary for the Poor District to reduce the bank loans, and this will result in a higher percentage of overhead expenses at that time. The various expenses are shown above as 3.32% for directors' and officers' salaries; 1.20% for secretary's salary; 5.14% for collectors' commissions and tax books; .36% for purchase of safes for collectors; and 8.17% for other expenses, making the total expense for the period 18.19% of the total expenditures, exclusive of bank loans. In other words, about $.18 of every dollar spent was used for the payment of expenses.

If, on the other hand, we would confine our comparison of expenses to tax receipts only during the year ending December 31, 1931, an entirely different result would be obtained. The total receipts from taxes, interest and penalties were $124,541.42, and the total expenses, including collectors' commissions, were $30,695.36. On this basis, the expenses are 24.5% of tax receipts and of every dollar of taxes received during the year $.24½ was used for expenses.

Q. Do you have anything else to report, Mr. Krekstein?

A. No. I don't, Mr. Miller, although I might state that the cost of administration with the Philadelphia Poor Boards is much higher than it is in all other institutions of like character throughout the State.
Mr. Haws: Is there anyone here representing the Oxford Board that wants to ask the witness any questions, or testify?
(No response.)
Mr. Haws: Do you, Mr. Castor?
Mr. Castor: I have nothing to say.
Mr. Haws: Do you, Mr. Kelly?
Mr. Kelly: I have nothing to say.

Mr. Millar: I want to move that the reports on the various Poor Boards we have been investigating be made a part of the record.

Mr. Royle: All right.

Mr. Tahl: And I would like to get on the record the fact that the Committee has subpoenaed the president, secretary and steward of each Poor District, for the purpose of affording each the opportunity of examining the witness, or contradicting statements made by the witness, or testifying themselves, and they have not appeared.

In addition to that, I would like on the record the fact that Mr. Reilly has admitted that these officers in the Germantown District were subpoenaed by the committee, and were given such opportunity here this afternoon.

On behalf of this committee I want to make another statement. This committee has held a number of public hearings since its inception. The committee in making these investigations has no political aspects whatever, nor has it made any efforts to favor any one, or punish any one, but it has endeavored, merely, to do its full duty, to the citizens and taxpayers of Philadelphia.

Its expense was more than justified by bringing to light the method of operation of the poor boards of Philadelphia. We feel that in making public the last three investigations, the only thing left to do is to make our report to the present Legislature. Therefore, the committee hereby brings to a conclusion its present investigation of the poor boards of Philadelphia.

PARTIAL AUDIT BY THE COUNTY CONTROLLER OF PHILADELPHIA OF THE ACCOUNTS OF THE FAIRMOUNT PARK COMMISSION.

Will B. Hadley, Controller — David Wilson, Deputy Controller

CONTROLLER'S OFFICE
County of Philadelphia
Department of City Controller
City Hall, Philadelphia

March 28th, 1933.

To the Honorable Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania:

Gentlemen:

I am transmitting herewith to your honorable body copy of a partial audit by the County Controller of the accounts of the Fairmount Park Commission. The Commission was created by the General Assembly.

The audit indicates very clearly an entire disregard of the provisions of the Act of Legislature fixing the duties of the Commission. The Commission has consistently failed to file an annual report with the City Council of the City of Philadelphia as required by law, since 1915, and has refused to permit a complete audit of its accounts.

The County Controller of the County of Philadelphia, the constitutional, elective, fiscal officer of the County of Philadelphia, respectfully petitions your honorable body on behalf of the citizens of the County of Philadelphia, that a Legislative investigation of the Fairmount Park Commission of Philadelphia County be instituted.

Very truly yours,

WILL B. HADLEY,
Controller.

March 28, 1933.

Hon. Will B. Hadley,
Controller, County and City of Philadelphia,
City Hall, Philadelphia.

Dear Sir:

Your auditors have gone as far as possible in their examination of the accounts of the Fairmount Park Commission by reason of the fact that the Commission has failed since 1915 to prepare or to file with City Council report "of its activities" and has refused to permit an examination of the rent books, bank account and checking account, including cancelled checks. They have also failed to file a report of the $3,000,000 of trust funds belonging to the City of Philadelphia and have refused to permit an examination by the Controller's auditors of the securities and other assets which constitute said trust funds.

The Fairmount Park Commission, created by an Act of the Legislature and authorized to manage Fairmount Park property, has set up a government of its own within the County and City of Philadelphia with executive, legislative and judicial branches. They control over 6,446 acres and have extended their autocratic powers to national, state and municipal highways, usurping many of the rights guaranteed by the Legislature to the municipal government under the terms of the City Charter. The Commissions is made up of ten citizens representing the banking-utility group and a numbr of political office holders who are leaders in the political organization. For a number of years the powers of the Commission have been delegated largely to one member and the secretary.

There has been filed with the Attorney General a petition to have the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania bring a mandamus proceeding against the Commission to compel compliance with the Act of the Legislature in the matter of filing an annual report and to require the opening of the books of the Commission for an audit by the Controller. The partial audit has developed the following:

An increase in the City debt during the past four years of $9,111,878 in addition to interest amounting to $1,140,331.53, due to the taking of land for park purposes without the consent of the people. Mandamuses have been issued and must be paid out of City funds. The annual interest and sinking fund charges must be included in the tax rate each year for the next fifty years. There should be an investigation of the lands taken, the price paid, the value at the time of taking, the name of the owner and the attorneys representing the parties.

In spite of the fact that the Act of the Legislature requires that all income from Fairmount Park shall be deposited in the City Treasury, the secretary failed to deposit one dollar in City Treasury for a period of fourteen months from October 21, 1931 to December 22, 1932, having in his hands on December 16, 1932 City moneys that should have been deposited in the City Treasury as follows: $14,960.17 of 1930 receipts, $24,369.27 of 1931 receipts, and approximately $65,000.00 of 1932 receipts, or a total of $104,329.44. In the latter part of December, 1932, the secretary made a deposit in the City Treasury of $14,962.17, representing the balance of 1930 receipts, and on February 8, 1933, deposited an additional sum of $26,153.99, leaving a balance of City funds not deposited in the City Treasury amounting to $65,294.97. In addition the Secretary has failed to account for interest on City funds deposited in bank to the credit of Thomas S. Martin, Secretary, Commissioners of Fairmount Park. Up until 1926 the receipts from Fairmount Park were deposited in the name of Thomas S. Martin, Secretary. Sometime after the Corn Exchange National Bank took over the account the words "Fairmount Park Commission" were added to the signature card and printed upon the checks, but the account is still subject to the Secretary's signature without a countersignature and is not protected by a bond as is required under the Act of Legislature requiring that all depositories of City funds shall furnish surety bonds or United States government bonds as a guarantee. Councilman Bryant furnished the Controller's Office with a number of cancelled checks, some of them showing that they were drawn to the order of the Fairmount Park Commission in payment of rent of properties in Fairmount Park. These checks were not deposited in the Fairmount Park account but were endorsed on the back by Thomas S. Martin, Secretary, and cashed.

The audit disclosed that rents and other income from golf courses and tennis courts is handled by employees of Fairmount Park Commission who are not bonded; in one case after a shortage of $1,170.00 was found it appeared that this man handled over $30,000 a year of Fairmount Park moneys.

The City maintains fully equipped repair shops for the repairing of clubs and for storage purposes at each golf course. Storage charges for 1930 amounted to $200 or more per month, which is paid to the instructors. No rent is paid to the City although the instructors receive $2.00 per hour for the instruction given.

Because of the refusal to permit the auditors to examine the rent books, it was necessary to interview each tenant. In a number of cases your auditors were requested to return for the information and were then informed that Secretary Martin had instructed them not to give information. Your auditors reported that the records of the P. R. T. Company showed that the sum of $3,600 had actually been paid to the Park Commission during 1930 as rent for the property at 44th and Parkside Avenue, but the Secretary's records showed only $600 received. At the same time the auditors reported that the Commission received $3,608.85 from rental of Morris Park properties at 68th and Haverford Avenue, not reported as having been received by the Secretary. Further miscellaneous receipts were found but not reported by the Secretary in the amount of $2,084.39, or a total of $8,693.24 for the year 1930. In 1931 Ford & Kendig paid eight and one-half months rent at $400 per month for property 24th and Wood Street, or a total of $3,400. This was not reported by the Secretary, but actual payment was verified by Ford & Kendig Company. Your auditors also found that miscellaneous receipts for 1931, amounting to $3,352.50, were not reported by the Secretary of the Park Commission. After the Secretary's attention was called to the shortages set forth above, he furnished the auditors with a new statement including these amounts, but as the auditors have not yet been permitted to examine the books where these records should appear, we have nothing but the statements prepared by the Secretary as to the facts.

The Legislature directed that the Commission should rent the properties belonging to Fairmount Park, but our investigation disclosed that a number of buildings in the park are occupied rent free and tenanted by officials, employees and friends of the Park Commission, including Lemon Hill Mansion, occupied by Fiske Kimball, Curator of the Art Museum, who receives a salary of $15,000 a year; Ridgeland Mansion, occupied by Alan Corson, Chief Engineer of the Park Commission, who receives a salary of $4,500 plus $1,500 from the Park Fund; House in Hermit Lane occupied by Thomas S. Martin, Secretary of the Park Commission, who receives a salary of $4,000 plus $2,000 from the Park Fund; house at 33rd and Dauphin Streets, occupied by James Allen, chauffeur and caretaker of Chief Engineer Corson's cow, who also has a double garage and a refreshment stand; Ohio House, occupied by Captain Koch of the Park Guards. In one case the tenant stated that the Mittens had given permission to occupy a house on park property.

The rents received from park properties in 1932 decreased $12,795.67 or 52% as compared with the year 1931. Many of the tenants reported that no effort had been made to collect rents in 1932, most of the rent paid having been taken voluntarily to the Secretary's office by the tenants. The list of properties with rent paid in 1931 and 1932 discloses a drop from $550 to $300 for Tacony Creek Park Restaurant; $750 to $150 for Cobbs Creek Golf Course Restaurant, and corersponding decreases in the case of almost every property managed by the Commission for which rent is charged. The property 2009 Carlton Street is occupied by the Tompkins Rubber Company as an office and only $20.00 rent was paid during 1932. The property 2016 Callowhill Street is occupied by Wm. Hitchcock as an auto accessory store and only $20.00 rent was paid during 1932. The property 2201 Vine Street is occupied by S. Gottlieb as a small general store. $90.00 rent was paid during the year 1932. It also appears in the case of 41 properties in the Morris Park Section (2 vacant) the income dropped from $3,318.80 in 1931 to $393.50 in 1932. It is evident from an examination of the properties that the rentals charged in most cases are ridiculously low and the failure of the Commission to collect the rentals is reprehensible.

In connection with the acquisition of real estate by the Park Commission the transaction involving the condemnation of tracts of land near Wise's Mill Road shows the taking of 25 acres owned by the Hilltop Land Company, a subsidiary of the Phila. Rapid Transit Company, Dr. A. A. Mitten, et ux, Charlotte S. Houston, Jacob Kemper, and Isabella S. Johnson. Three houses on the tracts are tenantable and still occupied by the original owners, for which no rent has been received. The Hilltop Land Company took title to their tract on March 12, 1929 and the taking of the land was approved by City Council on May 28, 1929, two months later. Mandamuses issued were as follows: Hilltop Land Company for $33,942.00 and costs of $107.10; Charlotte S. Houston for $42,355.00 and costs of $132.63; Arthur A. Mitten, et ux for $26,411.00 and costs of $87.52; Jacob Kemper for $38,855.00 and costs of $148.50; Isabella S. Johnson for $38,500.00 and costs of $118.75. Adjoining these properties is a tract of 75 acres which is used by Dr. A. A. Mitten for farm purposes. This tract belongs to Fairmount Park and no rent is received. This land is used by Dr. Mitten for his cattle and dogs, and there is a slaughter house on the premises where a steer is butchered each week to feed his dogs.

A partial audit of mandamuses issued for park purposes disclosed a total of $9,111,878, with costs of $7,490.83 and interest of $1,140,331.53 to January 30, 1933, to pay for the taking of land for park purposes in the years 1930, 1931 and 1932. Of this sum over $5,000,000 was spent for "beautification" of the East Bank of the Schuylkill River.

When the building of the Art Museum was authorized it was understood that it was to cost approximately $3,000,000. The expenditures to date, however, amount to over $14,000,000, and it is probable that several million dollars more will be required to complete it. The O'Neill Company had an original contract in connection with excavation and removal of stone. Much of this stone was sold and later repurchased for the construction of the building and rockeries. One man purchased a quantity of the stone but laetr found that it had been sold to some one else. Stone was hauled to South Philadelphia for the construction of houses and a quantity taken to Germantown and used for the foundation of dwelling houses. Our investigation showed that contracts were awarded for a certain sum and that additional work was done amounting to many times the amount of the original contract under the pretence that the extra work could not have been forseen at the time of awarding the contract. Among these contracts are the following illustrations of this practice: Bulman Brothers contract dated August 2, 1926, original contract was let for the sum of $23,800 and extra work done up to the present time has increased to $334,356.57; Cates & Shepard contract dated August 2, 1926, original contract was for $22,400 and extra work increased to $356,535.30; and George A. Fuller Company contract dated August 25, 1925, original contract was for $4,501,843 and extra work increased the amount to $5,393,-968.43. None of these contracts have been completed and no one knows how much more money may be required. It is evident that bidding under such circumstances is a farce as the competitors, except the favored ones, cannot possibly know the amount to be actually spent for the work. It violates the letter and the spirit of the law covering the letting of contracts where public moneys are involved.

The Park Commission violates the provisions of the Constitution and the laws of the State of Pennsylvania by permitting park guards, who are appointed by the Park Commission and not by the Director of Public Safety, as required by law, to determine the character of alleged offences under the motor vehicle act and other acts of the Legislature and to collect fines from motorists traveling through Fairmount Park and over national, state and city highways. The Charter Act of the City of Philadelphia limits the exercise of police powers on the public highways and other public property to the Department of Public Safety, headed by the Director who is appointed by the Mayor and confirmed by the City Council. The Constitution of the State of Pennsylvania prohibits the delegation of municipal functions to any commission; therefore, the exercise of police powers by the park guards on public highways, and particularly the collection of money in connection with violations of the motor vehicle act, is clearly improper and illegal. Furthermore, park guards are not included in the Motor Vehicle Act under "Peace Officers" who are authorized to enforce the Act.

The park guards are a fine body of men and it is unfortunate that they are handicapped in the performance of their duties by reason of the fact that they are subject to the whims of the members of the Commission and their friends, and that they are not protected by Civil Service laws.

The auditors, John J. Healey, Morris E. Wilt and Howard W. Murphy, have completed the detailed data to support the facts and figures set forth in this report. I recommend, in view of the fact that the Fairmount Park Commisison was established by the Legislature and that said Commission has failed to comply with the mandate of the Legislature as to the filing of accounts annually, that a copy of this report be sent to the Governor, the Attorney General and to the State Legislature, in order that appropriate action may be taken.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) S. DAVIS WILSON,
Deputy Controller.

OCCUPATIONAL DISEASE COMPENSATION REPORT BY THE PENNSYLVANIA COMMISSION ON COMPENSATION FOR INDUSTRIAL DISEASE

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, March 20, 1933.

To the Honorable, the Members of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

I have long been convinced of the need for adequate legislation to provide compensation for occupational diseases in Pennsylvania. That need becomes increasingly urgent as new industrial processes, involving new health hazards, are developed. The problem is one which involves separate rights of employes as well as insurance companies, and requires a careful, impartial, and scientific study.

To this end in September, 1932, I appointed a Commission of ten members. The members were chosen because of their special expert knowledge and fitness to represent the different interests which would be affected by such legislation.

This Commission has made a comprehensive survey of occupational disease hazards. Its report, as herewith presented, deserves detailed and careful study.

From the data presented by this Commission, it is possible to frame legislation that will be fair and equitable to all concerned. It is my earnest hope that the Legislature may act accordingly.

GIFFORD PINCHOT.

To Honorable Gifford Pinchot, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir:

The Commission appointed by you last September to inquire into the question of compensation for occupational diseases has prepared its report which it herewith submits.

In arranging its report for your consideration it has presented its conclusions first. These conclusions have been signed by all the members of the Commission. Following the conclusions it has made some comment relative to the organization of the Commission and its membership. It has followed this with a summary of the reports of the several committees. The reports themselves are also submitted in full for more particular examination.

The Conclusions of the Commission are as follows:

1. The Commission recognizes that provision has been made for the inclusion of occupationa ldiseases within the scope of compensation by the constitutional amendment of 1915.

2. The Commission is definitely convinced that any compensation law including occupational diseases within the compensation system of the State of Pennsylvania would require a separate act with a separate framework of rules and procedure for the administration of such law in so far as occupational disease presents a problem different from that presented by accidents. In its other general provisions, such as benefit levels, it would incorporate by reference the compensation act at present in effect.

3. The Commission is of the opinion that occupational disease legislation should recognize that accidents at a given point of time with a particular employer, that occupational diseases are frequently of slow development, clear up and recur, and that special provisions fitted to this difference in character must be made.

4. Your Commission is likewise convinced that the phrase "occupational disease" has a distinct significance, but that it is not capable of such accurate definition that administrative boards and courts will be able without the assistance of scientists to determine what is or is not such a disease. It is further convinced that this question should be definitely outlined by a schedule listing the special diseases to be covered.

5. The Commission is also of the opinion that in connection with a listing of diseases there should be a general statement of the occupations within which those diseases naturally occur. The intent of such statement of listing as to limitation and/or presumption should be stated in the Act.

6. Your Commission is of the opinion that the framework of an Act should contain in addition to the schedule and the description of occupations, provisions relating to the following matters which would be applicable to all occupational diseases:

(a) Payment of compensation should be confined to diseases due to the nature of and arising out of the claimants' employment.

(b) The date of disability should be held to correspond to the date of the accident or injury in determining the time to which the obligation to pay compensation should relate.

(c) Limitations relative to the filing of claims distinctly appropriate to occupational diseases should be provided for.

(d) Provision should be made recognizing the possibility that the disease may have arisen during different periods of employment under different employers in order to determine which employer or which employers shall pay the compensation.

(e) Provision should be made also to protect the employer in the payment of compensation against a wilful misstatement of prior history on the part of the employe, or in the payment of compensation in the case of a disease, the occurrence of which or the disability incident to which, shall be due to the wilful act of the employe.

7. Your Commission is of the opinion that the diseases which will be of major importance and which will present the greatest difficulties as administrative problems, are silicosis and/or miners' asthma, and further believes that any act which includes them as compensable diseases must contain special provisions outlining the course of procedure to be followed in determining in a given case whether or not a claimant is entitled to compensation, and which employer or employers shall be held liable therefor.

8. Your Commission is convinced that the proper administration of an occupational disease act requires expert scientific determination of the broad question as to what is and what is not an occupational disease, and also to determine in any given case whether a claimant is suffering from an occupational disease due to the nature and arising out of his employment. It is, therefore, urged that any act adopted should provide for the appointment of a Board, in membership in which should be individuals possessing special medical and chemical knowledge, their findings to be regarded as conclusive in the field of their special knowledge.

9. The Commission is of the opinion that it is impossible accurately to estimate the additional cost which will be imposed upon industries by reason of the inclusion of occupational diseases in a compensation system.

10. The Commission has intentionally avoided making a recommendation with regard to the broad general question of the wisdom of the enactment of an occupational disease compensation law either at the present time or hereafter. It has regarded itself as a body whose function it is to present the various phases and problems involved in such a law if one is considered desirable by those charged with such responsibility. The members of the Commission are fully aware that additional research would throw more light upon the various questions involved. It is believed that the direction which such additional studies should take is indicated in the various sections of the report. The desirability of an early report and the demands made upon the time of the members of the Commission have prevented further investigations which would add much of value.

11. The Commission, appreciating the lack of sufficient information as to the exact nature and prevalence of chronic incapacitating miners' asthma, unanimously recommends that a survey be made by the U. S. Bureau of Public Health Service with the cooperation of the employers and employes in the anthracite coal regions.

Preliminary Discussion and Organization

The first meeting of the Commission held in October of 1932 was devoted to a preliminary discussion of the matter and of organization. The members of the Commission were all familiar with the subject, but from different points of view, all of which were necessary to its complete understanding.

There was a scientific question involved, largely medical and chemical, as to what constituted occupational diseases, as to the process in which they arose, as to their prevalence in Pennsylvania, and as to the methods of determining their existence in given cases.

There was a financial question involved which related to the effect of the inclusion of occupational diseases as an addition to the present system of compensation for accidents, upon insurance rates and upon the cost to self-insurers.

There were, more generally speaking, the respective points of view of employers and employes who would be the persons most directly affected.

Finally, there was the legal question which ultimately it was necessary to consider in connection with concrete legislative expression.

All of the members were keenly interested in the subject and felt that they would not properly carry out the purposes of the Commission, as expressed by you in your letter of invitation, unless they went into the inquiry with open minds and endeavored to get all the information possible and make that information available as the basis for legislative discussion and action.

With that purpose in mind your Commission organized with Mr. T. Henry Walnut as Chairman. A medical committee was appointed consisting of Dr. Ross V. Patterson as Chairman, Dr. Anthony J. Lanza, Dr. H. F. Smyth, and Dr. William P. Yant as mmebers. A committee on scope and cost was also appointed of which Mr. Louis B. F. Raycroft was Chairman, and Mr. A. M. Boyd, Mr. Wesley M. Graff, and Mr. Alexander Fleisher were members. Finally, a legal committee whose inquiry should refer more particularly to specific legislative proposals, consisting of the Chairman and Mr. Thomas Kennedy was appointed.

John Campbell and Elizabeth B. Bricker, M. D., from the Department of Labor and Industry, acted as Secretary and Assistant Secretary, respectively.

The several committees reported back to the Commission. Their individual reports are herewith submitted in full, and follow a summary of each of the three reports.

Summary of the Report of the Medical Committee

The Medical Committee, after commenting upon the two legislative methods of handling the subject of occupational diseases; namely, the one by which such diseases were included by general reference and the other by which such diseases were specifically designated by name and by indication of occupations in a schedule embodied in the act, recommended that for practical administrative purposes the latter should be the method followed.

As illustrative of its reasons the Committee pointed out that without a schedule much difficulty would arise in interpreting the intended scope of the law and that abuses would creep in owing to lack of information on the part of administrative officials relating to industrial diseases and their disabling properties. The schedule would remedy some of these difficulties by accuracy of definition of the diseases. It would also give a base for the estimation of carriers' charges and if properly prepared, the schedule would represent the present status of knowledge concerning industrial or occupational diseases.

The recommendation was accompanied with the statement that no schedule could be drawn which would take into account all existing occupational diseases and certainly not all of those which might ultimately be discovered to be occupational, but the advantages of accuracy of definition would out-weigh any such short-comings in the list.

In submitting a specific schedule the Committee included not only a list of diseases, but a corresponding list of occupations in which those diseases ordinarily occur:

Their schedule is as follows:

Column One Description of Disease	Column Two Description of Occupation
1. Poisoning by lead, mercury, phosphorous, arsenic	Any occupation involving the handling of or hazardous exposure of lead, mercury, phosphorous, arsenic, their preparations or compounds.
2. Poisoning by methanol, carbon hisulphide, naphtha, or volatile halogenated hydrocarbons	Any occupation involving the handling of or hazardous exposure to methanol or any preparation containing methanol, carbon bisulphide, naphtha, or volatile halogenated hydrocarbons.
3. Poisoning by manganese dioxide	Any occupation involving the handling of or hazardous exposure to manganese dioxide.
4. Brass or zinc poisoning	Any occupation involving founding or refining of brass or the melting or smelting of zinc.
5. Poisoning by benzol, or by nitro and amido-derivatives of benzol (dinitro-benzol, anilin, and others)	Any occupation involving the handling of or hazardous exposure to benzol or nitro- or amido-derivatives of benzol or its preparations or compounds.
6. Compressed air illness	Any occupation carried on in compressed air.
7. Destruction of tissue by radium or X-rays	Any occupation involving the use of or direct contact with, radium, radio-active substances, and X-rays.
8. Chrome Ulceration	Any occupation involving the use of chrome acid or bichromate of ammonium, potassium, or sodium or their preparations.
9. Epitheliomatous cancer or ulceration of the skin or of the corneal surface of the eye due to tar, pitch, bitumen, mineral oil, or paraffin, or any compound product or residue of any of these substances	Handling or use of tar, pitch, bitumen, mineral oil, or paraffin, or any compound, product or residue of any of these substances.
10. Infection or inflammation of the skin on contact surfaces due to oils, cutting compounds, or lubricants, dust, liquids, fumes, gases or vapors	Any industrial occupation involving the handling or use of oils cutting compounds, or lubricants or involving contracts with dusts, liquids, fumes, gases, or vapors.
11. Anthrax	Handling of wool, hair, bristles, hides or skins, and bodies of animals, either alive or dead.
12. Silicosis See Note (a) Contained in detailed report of Medical Committee under special discussion of silicosis	Any occupation involving exposure to the dust of silica (Si 0 2).
13. Chronic incapacitating miners' asthma See Note (b) Contained in Summary of report of Medical Committee	Coal mining industries.

In commenting upon the schedul. the Medical Committee pointed out that it has consideration to those diseases of potentially frequent occurrence in Pennsylvania, that it had not attempted to include all diseases which had been reported as occupational. The list in the Committee's opinion would cover approximately 90% of all occupational diseases occurring in Pennsylvania and "a much longer list would be required appreciably to increase the coverage." This comment was coupled with the suggestion already referred to that no list could be prepared which would include all possible occupational diseases for knowledge on the subject was growing and there were continual changes in industry with an accompanying effect upon the list.

In connection with the second column under the heading of occupations the Medical Committee recommended that this column should not be restrictive in the sense that it would limit the recovery of compensation to diseases occurring to employes engaged in those particular occupations. That was, however, an exception suggested in connection with item listed as No. 13, namely, Chronic incapacitating miners' asthma" compensation for which should be confined to employes engaged in the "coal mining industry."

Special Consideration of Miners' Asthma and Silicosis

Miners' asthma and silicosis were given special consideration by the Medical Committee. Primarily, it was thought that a large number of claims for compensation made would be because of these two diseases. Moreover, they represented peculiar problems because of their nature, particularly their slow development over a period of years with different degrees of disability incident to particular stages of development.

Of the two disesases arising from the breathing of dust, miners' asthma is peculiar to the coal mining industries; silicosis may arise from the breathing of silica dust in industries other than coal mining or mining of any sort. They are, however, related basically as dust diseases and miners' asthma is frequently involved with silicosis.

Silicosis

The Committee recommended in connection with silicosis the following:

> "For the purpose of compensation silicosis shall be considered a disease of the lungs, due to breathing air containing silica (SiO 2) dust, characterized anatomically by generalized fibrotic changes in both lungs, with a development of military nodulation, demonstrable by X-ray examination."

The Committee then proceeds to a discussion of silicosis in which it points out that:

> "The disease is divided arbitrarily into first, second, and third stages for convenience of description and possible compensation purposes."

The symptoms and showings incident to the three stages are presented and in conclusion the Committee recommends that:

> "Silicosis, at any stage, when complicated with active pulmonary tuberculosis, shall b edeemed total disability; in the absence of such infection only second and third stages shall be compensable."

An an administrative corollary to the payment of compensation for silicosis the Committee recommends that:

> "In order to establish a claim for compensation for silicosis, the claimant must have had the equivalent of two years' aggregate employment in the state of Pennsylvania, all occurring after the passage of this act, in an occupation or occupations recognized as involving exposure to silica dust."

Miners' Asthma

The subject of "Chronic incapacitating miners' asthma" presented a serious problem to the Medical Committee. In the first instance the use of the term was not considered entirely satisfactory or scientific. It was employed, however, because it indicated an affection well recognized under that title in the coal fields, both by the laity and the medical profession. In the second instance, it represented the chief disability growing out of anthracite coal mining.

It was, therefore, pointed out that the term used indicates a disabling consequence rather than the underlying causative condition and is, therefore, a symptom complex rather than a pathological entity.

It is pointed out that it is not feasible to include anthracosis itself as a compensable disease because of its prevalence.

It was appreciated by the Medical Committee that miners' asthma which is incident to anthracite mining was of very great moment in the industry and that there was no comparative experience in any other state or country which would be of use in determining the extent of the disease as a compensable condition. The effect of soft coal mining upon workers in the mines is different from that of anthracite.

The Medical Committee engaged in a painstaking effort to secure information relative to the incidence of disability among hard coal workers as a result of their occupation.

The result of the inquiry is set forth in the report. It is based upon information secured from physicians and hospitals in the anthracite region. The question was further complicated by the advisability of grouping miners into three classes:

> "(1) Those almost entirely engaged in rock drilling with the use of the jack hammer.

(2) Those largely engaged in coal mining, but occasionally using the jack hammer or drilling in rock.

(3) Those engaged almost exclusively in mining coal."

There is a difference of exposure in the three groups and a difference in the involvement of the condition with silicosis.

As a result of the replies received by the Medical Committee, it would appear that approximately 22% of the whole group of miners are suffering from miners' asthma and are either partially or totally disabled thereby.

The more active symptoms are, of course, incident to the miners engaged in rock drilling wherein the dust inhaled contains silica.

Note (b)—Special Discussion on Chronic Incapacitating Miners' Asthma

With respect to chronic incapacitating miners' asthma, the Medical Committee is of the belief that there is a disabling occupational disease of this character. Appreciating, however, the lack of any precise information as to the exact nature and the prevalence of this disease, the Medical Committee wishes to go on record as recommending that a further study and investigation of occupational diseases among anthracite coal miners be made by the U. S. Bureau of Public Health Service with the full cooperation of the United Mine Workers of America and of the coal operators in the anthracite region. The United States Bureau of Mines in cooperation with the U. S. Bureau of Public Health Service has conducted many such investigations and is now concluding a study of occupational diseases among bituminous coal miners in West Virginia, making possible a correlation of the facts ascertained from that study with those which would be obtained from a study in the anthracite region.

In any case, in order to establish a claim for compensation for chronic incapacitating miners' asthma, the claimant must have had not less than five years' aggregate employment in the coal mining industry in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, two years of which must have occurred after the passage of an Act.

Discussion of Other Included and Excluded Diseases

The Medical Committee has added to its discussion comments upon the various diseases included in its schedule although these comments are less detailed than those relating to silicosis and miners' asthma. It has also included a discussion of a number of other diseases which are not set forth in the schedule, including anthracosis, asbestosis, pneumonoconiosis from cement dust, and siderosis, with the reasons for not including these diseases as compensable occupational diseases. It has also added an additional schedule of diseases which are sometimes referred to as occupational together with a brief statement of the reasons for excluding them from the schedule.

Administrative Suggestions

The Medical Committee was impressed with the fact that the administration of a compensation act covering occupational diseases required the application of expert scientific knowledge to the determination of whether or not certain occupations gave rise to an occupational disease and whether or not in any given instance a claimant was suffering from such disease and in particular, in connection with silicosis and miners' asthma, whether or not development of the condition had reached the point of disability contemplated by the act. The Medical Committee was convinced that unless expert medical and scientific services were provided for the determination of the questions indicated, the administration of the act would be highly uncertain and the result would be unsatisfactory.

The Medical Committee expresesd the opinion that from its observation of the decisions of compensation tribunals and courts such decisions were replete with statements which persons familiar with the complexities of the subject involved, namely, that of diseases and pathological conditions, could readily recognize as incorrcet to the point of absurity.

The Medical Committee, therefore, recommended that a medical board be created to assist in the operation of the act, that its findings as to whether or not certain conditions from which the claimant was suffering were due to an occupational disease derived from given employments should be final. Furthermore, that this board should keep abreast of the development of understanding in relation to occupational diseases and from time to time make recommendations relative to the inclusion or exclusion of diseases from the list of those made compensable.

The Medical Committee further suggests specific qualifications for appointment to such a board and points out that the field to be covered is a highly specialized one and is confined largely to physicians devoting their attention to industrial hygiene and industrial health. In particular it recommends that at least one member of the board should have special clinical experience in connection with silicosis and miners' asthma as these two diseases would probably represent a large number of claims.

The Medical Committee is of the opinion that such a board containing members specially qualified and permanently appointed under proper safeguards to insure their non-political character, would aid immeasurably in the satisfactory administration of an occupational disease act.

Summary of Report of the Committee on Scope and Cost

This Committee endeavored to determine the effect which occupational disease legislation would have both as to the extent of its application to Pennsylvania industries and to its probable cost. Study was directed to the legislation and experience of other states and to statiscal and actuarial facts.

The Committee stated that there was no available report which represented a thorough investigation into this question prior to the adoption of legislation by any other state. It, therefore, was called upon to develop its own procedure.

It pointed out that there was considerable variance in the statutory provisions of the several states; some of which, such as California, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Missouri, North Dakota and Wisconsin, provide compensation in general terms. The other states, compensation for occupational disease, Illinois, Kentucky, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York and Ohio, confined their coverage to scheduled diseases. This variation in legislation was necessarily considered in connection with the experience in the several states.

For the purposes of its examination, the Committee confined itself to what are distinctly known as occupational diseases as opposed to diseases generally. As the Committee pointed out, to include diseases generally would in effect make the law a form of health insurance. Again the Committee suggested that in certain industrial communities the phrase "occupational disease" might be so interpreted as to constitute for practical purposes a coverage for old age insurance or unemployment insurance.

To establish definite confines for an act, the Committee was of the opinion that the specific diseases to be covered should be set forth in the act itself in the form of a schedule which schedule should include all the occupational diseases which are currently understood to be of real importance in Pennsylvania. In addition to the advantage to be derived thereby in anticipating costs, the Committee was of the opinion that such a list would lead to a better mutual understanding as to the scope of the act between employer, employe, and insurance carrier and that it would materially simplify the problem of administration.

The Committee was of the opinion that the intent of an occupation column should be definitely stated because, as it stated, the cost will be seriously affected by the limitation or by any direct or implied presumption of an "occupational column" and also by the interpretation of word "hazardous." but the latter diffculty will be removed if there is a competent medical board with power.

Trend of Current Costs

The Committee has pointed out the trend of the cost of compensation since the general adoption of such acts. This trend has been upward in so far as it relates to compensation for accidents and, in the judgment of the Committee, this is a factor to be taken into consideration in connection with the proposal to extend the present coverage.

The Committee points out that this trend is due, in the case of Pennsylvania, at least, to amendments to the act and to certain other factors which have added to the total cost.

As an offset to this, the Committee suggests that there is a liability at Common law for occupational diseases incurred by the employe when negligence on the part of the employer can be shown. The extent of this liability expressed in figures cannot be established inasmuch as there is not possibility of determining how many cases are brought in different jurisdictions, how many cases are settled and how many cases result in verdicts. It is assumed, however, that this common law liability represents a real menace to industry.

There is a further element which was considered by the Committee in connection with the trend of costs which relates to the present industrial situation. This question is a very grave one. It is emphasized by quotations from a recent report of the Industrial Commission of Ohio which indicates that the cost per claim for compensation cases materially increased in 1931 over 1929, due as suggested, to the tendency to convert compensation insurance into unemployment insurance, and which further suggests that there is an additional pressure to prolong the treatment of injured workers which has added to the average medical cost. The payments of compensation are not decreasing in proportion to the reduction of premiums which are based upon payrolls. As a result of these several factors, there has been a severe drain upon the insurance fund of Ohio and a necessary increase of rates.

Probable Costs of Occupational Disease Compensation

The Committee undertook to measure the effect which compensation for occupational diseases would have if applied to Pennsylvania industries by taking into account; first, the diseases for which compensation is proposed; and, second, the extent of the employe exposure to those diseases in Pennsylvania.

The Committee, therefore, took the schedule of diseases contained in the report of the Medical Committee and attempted the preparation of a list showing the approximate number of industrial wage earners in Pennsylvania exposed to the diseases so listed and the approximate amount of their wages in 1929, the most recent year for which statistics are available.

The Committee further undertook to compare the number of employes engaged in industries subject to the diseases mentioned in the schedule with similar figures in other states having occupational disease compensation and by determining the cost of such compensation in the other states, it was expected that the anticipated cost to Pennsylvania could by camparison be determined. The Committee found this line of inquiry unproductive.

The Committee also endeavored to secure from states, having occupational disease provisions in their compensation laws, information as to costs, in particular the relation of the costs of occupational disease compensation to cost of compensation for accidents, and in this connection the experience of New York, Wisconsin, California, Ohio, New Jersey and Minnesota are set forth. These figures would indicate that in the states considered the percentage of claims for occupational disease is not in excess of three per cent of the total of the claims made, including those arising out of accidents, and that payments in Ohio, made on account of claims for occupational diseases represent less than one and one-half per cent of the total of the payments for accidents.

As a further line of inquiry, the Committee then turned to an occupational disease compensation rating plan recently developed by the National Council on Compensation Insurance from an engineering and underwriting investigation of occupational disease costs. That plan contemplates a flat general occupational disease coverage rate, applicable to all industrial classifications, plus a specific occuptional disease coverage rate applicable to certain definite industrial classifications, both to be in addition to the rate for accidental injury coverage. The plan proposed is in effect a projection of the insurance carrier's experience in point of occupational disease compensation costs.

Based upon the census figures for 1929, the occupational disease charge was estimated at eight and four-tenths cents per hundred dollars of manufacturing payroll, as compared with an average compensation rate for the policy year 1929 under the accident law of about eighty-two cents. The increase in cost due to occupational disease would, therefore, be approximately ten per cent. The Committee expressly pointed out that its figures did not include chronic incapacitating miner's asthma or silicosis in the mining industry.

The difference between the figures based upon the experience derived from other states and the costs as anticipated by the National Council on Compensation Insurance is so wide that it cannot wholly be explained by differences in legislation. It is pointed out as pertinent that the insurance companies are asking for increased rates in order to enable them to carry the risks.

As a result of its analysis, the Committee stated that if compensation for occupational disease disability is considered desirable, legislation should provide that:

"(1) The disability is actual and well defined.

(2) The source of the disability is actually in the industry and occupation in which the person alleging disability has been employed.

(3) The responsibility for disability be fairly fixed on a specific employer or be fairly apportioned among several employers.

(4) The administration of the law be definite and be so safeguarded as to limitaltons that the cost of compensation can be estimated in advance so that the insurance principle can be applied to such compensation."

Summary of Report of Legal Committee

The Legal Committee approached the problem by first considering the amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania adopted in 1915 to Section 21 Article 3 thereof which reads as follows:

"The General Assembly may enact laws requiring the payment by employers, or employers and employes jointly, of reasonable compensation for injuries to employes arising in the course of their employment, and for occupational diseases of employes, whether or not such injuries or diseases result in death, and regardless of fault of employer or employe, and fixing the basis of ascertainment of such compensation and the maximum and minimum limits thereof, and providing special or general remedies for the collection thereof."

In view of the phraseology of the amendment, the Committee was of the opinion that any act drawn would necessarily be confined to "occupational diseases" and that this phrase had distinct meaning in common speech although its boundaries were vague. It is recognized that it was not possible to frame a definition which would include such diseases as were occupational in nature and exclude general diseases arising out of the employment. It was, therefore, considered advisable in the interest of administration to define occupational diseases by reference to the specific diseases to be included within the act.

The Committee also recognized that it would be inadvisable to undertake to include occupational diseases within the present Workmen's Compensation Act of 1915 without providing for a method of procedure distinctly applicable to such diseases. It is clear that there are many distinctions between accidents and diseases when it comes to determining questions relating to compensation therefor.

The Committee was further impressed with the merits of an act including a schedule of diseases as against an act which included diseases merely by a general term.

It may be true that certain diseases, occupational in nature, may be excluded if reliance is placed upon a schedule, but it is certainly true that it is unwise practice to impose upon administrative and judicial officers, the duty of determining the very complex question as to what is and what is not an occupational disease inasmuch as this phrase has both legal and scientific implications.

The question of what is or what is not an occupational disease should be determined in advance of litigation by scientists versed in the subject such as the scientific members of the Commission.

The Legal Committee is further satisfied that the schedule of diseases should contain a corresponding column indicating the occupations incident to which the diseases naturally arise and that this column which not binding upon the employer should be used to simplify the problem of the administrative officials and in determining the source of an occupational disease.

It is further suggested by the committee that the time of disability, rather than the date of the exposure and the incurring of the disease, be fixed as the date from which the obligation to pay compensation shall be dated and the date upon which certain duties shall arise on the part of the claimant.

It is further suggested by the committee that the time for filing a claim shall be related to the date of termination of the employment as well, perhaps, as to the disability, this being the rule followed in the British act and in all of those acts of Canada and the United States which have followed the British statute. There can well be a provision extending the time within the limits upon the recommendation of disinterested and competent medical authorities if in fact injustice will be done if the ordinary limitation is strictly applied.

In the case of silicosis and miners' asthma, special limitations as recommended by the Medical Committee and Cost Committee could be imposed.

It is further suggested that the employer in whose employ the claimant was at the time of the disability, shall be the one who shall pay the compensation provided that his employment was the one wherein the claimant's disease was contracted or aggravated with the possible addition of a provision by which such employer can secure contributions from prior employers.

Provision is also suggested whereby the employer can protect himself by securing from the employe at the time of employment a statement of previous attacks of the disease which is naturally incident to the employer's business.

The Legal Committee approves of the suggestion of the Medical and Cost Committees to the effect that competent medical and scientific service shall be secured in connection with the administration of the act. It feels that such assistance would be highly important in securing satisfactory administration. The questions involved will frequently be scientific. Persons qualified to speak thereon will be confined to those who have made a special study of the subject and in the case of silicosis and miners' asthma, which are diseases of a progressive nature, compensable in accordance with the Medical Committee's recommendations only when disability arises a peculiarly difficult question will be presented in determining the stage of development of the disease.

If a medical board were appointed or medical advisers were secured whose judgment would receive general approval, it is anticipated that most of the difficulties which are expected to follow the passage of an occupational disease act would be met with a reasonable solution.

Discussion

1. Meaning of Phrase "Occupational Disease"

As already suggested, the phrase "occupational disease" has a significance in common speech. It has been used by the courts frequently without any effort at definition. Our Pennsylvania courts in many decisions have stated broadly that occupational diseases are not within th secope of the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1915 and for the purposes of the particular case before them have determined that a given condition was an accident or an occupational disease and, therefore, within or without the scope of the act.

There is a suggestion as to the meaning of the phrase in the case of McCauley v. Imperial Woolen Co., 261 Pa. 312-328 which is found in the following extract from the court's opinion.

> "When, however, death results from germ infection, to bring a case of this character within the Act of 1915, supra, the disease in question must be a sudden development from some such abrupt violence to the physical structure of the body as already indicated, and not the mere result of gradual development from long continued exposure to natural dangers incident to the employment of the deceased person, as in cases of occupational diseases, the risks of which are voluntarily assumed."

In considering judicial definitions it must always be remembered that they are set up for the purpose of determining the boundary line between occupational diseases and something else. Ordinarily the distinction required to be made is between an accident and an occupational disease. We, therefore, have a reasonably clear conception of the judicial distinction between these two subjects. The distinction between occupational diseases and diseases which are not occupational, has not been so extensively defined, but there is such a distinction.

A well considered discussion of the meaning of the phrase "occupational disease" appears in the case of Indus. Com. of Ohio v. Roth. 98 Ohio St. 34 (1918). The case indicates several of the elements that are included within the phrase "occupational disease." Roth, who was a common laborer engaged by a painting contractor, was directed to heat some paints. The heating was done in a small unventilated building. At the end of the second day of this process, Roth was taken sick and died within three weeks thereafter from lead poisoning. The question of determination was whether the death was due to an occupational disease or an accident. If it were due to the former no compensation would be paid, if due to the latter, Roth's dependents would be entitled to compensation. The Industrial Commission decided that Roth died of an occupational disease. The County Court affirmed the Commission. The Court of Appeals reversed the lower tribunals and decided that the man died of an accident. The Supreme Court in its decision, reported as above indicated, also concluded that the case could properly be held one of accidental death. In reaching this conclusion it discussed at length its conception of the phrase "occupational disease" and the elements that should be taken into consideration. It started with the assumption that lead poisoning was an occupational disease, but pointed out that whether the phrase should be applied to Roth would he affected in art by his own occupation which was that of a laborer and not painter. This required a preliminary definition of occupation.

> "Occupation has been defined by the courts of this and other states to be 'that particular business, trade, or calling which engages the time and effort of an individual.' ... In other words—the employment in which one regularly engages or the vocation of one's life.
> "A disease contracted in the usual and ordinary course of events, which from the common experience of humanity is known to be incident to a partciular employment, is an occupational disease and not within the contemplation of the Workmen's Compensation Act." (which at that time applied only to a accidents) * * *
> "In the construction of the law it is the duty of a court to give to words their usual and ordinary meaning. Such meaning as they import to mankind in general and not a forced or unusual definition which may in its last analysis be technically correct, but wholly at variance with the common understanding of mankind.
>
> "Applying this fair and reasonable interpretation of the rule to the term 'occupational disease' it follows that an occupational disease is not only a disease incident to a particular occupation, but that it is a disease developed in the usual and ordinary mannner by reason of and because of the occupation in which the person suffering therefrom is or was engaged * * *
> "We are, therefore, of the opinion that the term 'occupational disease' must be restricted to a disease that is not only incident to an occupation, but is the natural, usual and ordinary result thereof; and should be held not to include one occasioned by accident or misadventure."

Somewhat similar declarations indicating the boundary between occupational disease and accident are found in a number of cases. Peru Plow and Wheel Co. v. Indus. Com., 142 N. E. 546; 311 Ill. 216; Adams v. Acme White Lead Co., 148 N. W. 485-486; 182 Mich. 157, L. R. A. 1916 A 283 and note.

In some of the cases, although much more limited in number, the court has been called upon to mark the boundary between an occupational disease and a disease which is not occupational. Gay v. Hocking Coal Co., 184 Iowa 948; 169 N. W. 360; Indus. Com. v. Cross, 104 Ohio St. 561, 136 N. E. 233; Schneider on Compensation Law, (2nd Ed. 1932), pages 643-46.

From a consideration of the cases we are of the opinion that the phrase "occupational disease" has a distinct significance. It is neither an accident on the one hand nor any disease which may happen to arise out of the employment on the other hand. Not only is it a disease incident to a particular occupation, but it is a disease developed in the usual and customary manner by reason of and because of the occupation and carries the implication that it is commonly known to be so developed. In many cases there is no difficulty in determining that a particular ailment is an occupational disease rather than an accident or a general disease, but an exact definition in general terms which would mark the boundaries accurately for all cases is impossible of statement.

Bearing in mind this distinction between occupational diseases, accidents and general diseases, it would seem clear that we must limit any Pennsylvania legislation to occupational diseases as such, and, therefore, phraseology as broad as that appearing in some of the statutes of other jurisdictions in the United States would not be applicable.

The Constitution of Ohio, as amended in 1912, Section 35, Article 2, provided for a compensation "for death, injury or occupational disease." With this phraseology before it, the Court determined that the word "injury" did not include disease and the phrase "occupational disease" did not include general diseases. Indus. Com. v. Cross, 104 Ohio St. 561, 136 N. E. 233; Rankel v. Indus. Com. of Ohio, 109 Ohio St. 152 (1923).

American Acts Covering Disease or Occupational Disease as a Compensable Injury

Certain of the Acts definitely define what are and what are not occupational diseases by designating the particular diseases which are to be considered occupational. These are the so-called list or schedule acts and include Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, and Ohio.

It should be noted that the British Act, which is the basic act for the Canadian provinces and for some of the State laws of this country, also includes a list or schedule of diseases.

In certain of the American jurisdictions, diseases are included as compensable by a general provision; namely, California, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Massachusetts, North Dakota, Wisconsin, U. S. Longshoremen and Harbor Workers, U. S. Civil Employees.

If we read the Acts adopted in these several jurisdictions, it will be noted that, with the exception of Connecticut, the phraseology of all of the Acts is too broad to be within the limits of our State Constitution.

It should be noted that in Connecticut certain of the Acts prior to the adoption of the present one, contain phraseology too broad for Pennsylvania's use.

The Wisconsin Act of 1919 was phrased so as to include occupational diseases as such. This phraseology is appropriate to our Constitution but the phraseology of the Wisconsin Act of 1931 would appear to be too broad.

It should be noted here that reference is not made to the Territorial Acts of Hawaii, Philippine or Puerto Rico.

The two former cover diseases in general terms and the latter by schedule.

It should also be noted that Illinois is not referred to particularly because of the somewhat peculiar nature of the provisions.

It should also be noted that the Missouri Act of 1925, page 375 as amended 1931, page 382, is not included in the list. That act does refer to occupationa diseases in general terms by providing that employers could elect to include occupational diseases within the Compensation Act if they so chose, but this required special action on the part of the employers.

The Kentucky Workmen's Compensation Act is also not included in the list above set forth, as it is really an accident act pure and simple, although it does purport to include injuries or death "due to inhalation in mines of noxious gas or smoke, commonly known as 'bad air' and also shall include the injuries or death due to the inhalation of any kind of gas."

This very limited provision for occupational diseases is of little assistance for comparative purposes.

Discussion

I and II. Necessity for Appropriate Provisions Regulating Procedure in Cases of Occupational Diseases

As indicated, there is a very real difference between occupational diseases and accidents. This has been expressed by the English House of Lords as follows:

> (Hence, diseases, which, when they attack a workman do so because of his trade and incidentally to it and to the processes which he uses in it, would not be within the words above quoted from the Act of 1897 without further legislation and could not be brought within its fundamental principle merely by calling them "accidents." Their peculiar character made much more extensive provision necessary. They come on gradually; their first steps may not be perceptible for sometime; their rate of progress may vary widely; they have their ups and downs. The patient sometimes makes a complete recovery and sometimes only an apparent one, and the periods, during which they may be quiescent and latent, may vary greatly."

It is obvious from the consideration of this comment as well as from our understanding of the subject, that the procedural framework of an act covering accidents is not fitted to cover occupational diseases.

In the case of Miller v. American Steel & Wire Co., 97 Atl. 345; 90 Conn. 349 (1916) the question arose as to whether the Workmen's Compensation Act passed by that State in 1913, as amended in 1915, included "occupational diseases" as well as "industrial accidents."

> "More specifically the question was whether the words 'personal injury' arising out of and in the course of his employment in our (in Connecticut) Act were intended by the General Assembly to cover diseases arising out of and in the course of his employment."

The answer depended upon the construction of the word "injury." Diseases were not mentioned in the act. In the course of its opinion the court emphasized that the act was appropriate to accidental injury but not appropriate to cases of diseases.

> "In the first place the causal relation between diseases and employment cannot as a rule be satisfactory established except by expert testimony which is likely to be beyond the reach of the Claimant * * *.
> If the General Assembly intended to include occupational diseases in the act some way would doubtless have been provided in which a claimant could get expert evidence to prove that the disease arose out of the employment.
> "There are difficulties which this act does not pretend to meet. Take the case of death or incapacity resulting from an occupational disease gradually acquired while at work for different employers. Should the last employer bear the whole burden? Again, suppose an employer or his insurer, undertakes to protect himself by having his workmen inspected at stated intervals, and by discharging those who seem likely to become incapacitated from diseases. Would not some provision have been made to prevent the industry from thus escaping the burden of the disease which it creates?"

These questions which were raised by the Connecticut court were entirely warranted as is disclosed by an examination of the decisions of several of the states which included diseases or occupational diseases without providing any framework of procedure.

The Supreme Court of Wisconsin in particular, has time and again commented upon the question. In the case of Wis. Granite Co. v. Ind. Com. 242 N. W. 191 (1932). the court says:

> "This appeal presents another troublesome question arising from the necessity of administering compensation for occupational diseases under a law providing compensation for industrial accidents. The state of our statutory law in relation to this subject has given rise to numerous troublesome questions as will be seen by reference to the case of Zurich General Life and Accident In. Co. v. Ind. Com., 203 Wis. 135; 233 N. W. 772 and case therein cited."

More recently in Nordberg Mfg. Co. v. Ind. Com. 245, N. W. 680 (Dec. 6, 1932) the Supreme Court of Wisconsin, after discussing one of these troublesome cases, concluded with the following statement:

We take this occasion to emphasize again, as we have many times in the past, that the right of an employe to compensation for an occupational disease hangs by a slender thread, in view of the very cursory statutory provisions upon which that right must rest. It has required no little judicial ingenuity to save the right in many cases where the Legislature seemed to intend compensation to be paid. It is realized full well here that most any time judicial ingenuity will be baffled, and there may come a time when a worthy employe must go uncompensated because of the failure of the Legislature to grapple with the subject in a specific and definite way.

Similar difficulties are manifest under the California Act as appears from a consideration of Assoc. Ind. Corp. v. State Ind. Acc. Com., June 1932, 12 Pac. (2d) 1075.

An examination of the decsions arising under the acts of the various states which cover in any degree occupational diseases, satisfied your committee that while the legislature's work might be simplified by merely amending the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1915, so that the words "personal injury" should be made to include occupational diseases, the courts would be put to the necessity of writing procedural rules into the act in order to make it operative.

As further comment, it may be pointed out that in Pennsylvania accidents occurring in the "course of employment" are compensable. The customary phrasing found in other statutes covers accidents "occurring in the course of and arising out of employment." There is a distinction between the two forms of expression and this distinction has been recognized by the Pennsylvania courts.

Occupational diseases as compensable matters must be confined to those "arising out of the employment." It would seem to be inadvisable to amend the present act relative to accident in this particular, inasmuch as we have built up some degree of understanding of its meaning and it would, therefore, be necessary in amending the definition of "injury" and "personal injury" appearing in the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1915 so as to include occupational diseases, to make this additional distinction between accidents and diseases; namely that the first would be compensable if occurring in the course of the employment and the second if occurring in the course of the employment and arising out of the employment.

Your committee has examined the acts of all of the states of the United States which have provisions relating to occupational diseases and has attempted to read all of the decisions of the courts incident to those provisions. It is quite clear in your committee's judgment, that those states which have attempted to shorten their legislation by providing neither a complete definition of the words "occupational disease" by schedule nor a framework by which the act may be administered have added materially to the extent of the litigation and to the burden imposed upon the courts.

IV Advisability of all Inclusive Coverage as Against a List or Schedule of Diseases

Your committee has already briefly outlined its suggestions on this subject and the following discussion will indicate in greater detail the reasons for your committee's opinion. Your committee is familiar with the attitude of Dr. John B. Andrews, Secretary of the American Association for Labor Legislation and has discussed the matter with him. It has also read his article on the subject of occupational disease compensation in Volume 19 of the American Labor Legislation Review (1929) page 237, together with a similar article by Will J. French of the California Department of Industrial Relations on accupational disease in California appearing on page 388 of the same volume. The mater has also been discussed informally with Dr. Alice Hamilton. Your committee appreciates the basis for the position taken by the three persons mentioned that occupational disease legislation should be general in coverage in order not to discriminate between persons who have a listed occupational disease and those who have an occupational disease which is not listed in the act under which recovery is provided for.

Your Legal Committee, however, is called upon to discuss the matter as a legal problem and from that point of view it appears that the advocates of the general coverage have not accurately considered the significance of their proposal.

As already suggested, certain occupational diseases are sufficiently well known as to cause little or no difficulty in determining their nature, but if the disease is so new as to be known only to those engaged in scientific research on the subject, it is obvious that someone must determine whether or not it is an occupational disease.

The advocates of general coverage would insist that this determination be left to the Compensation Board and the courts. The advocates of a schedule or list of diseases in the act would propose that the question be determined by legislation on the subject.

There are advantages and disadvantages in both methods, but it seems doubtful to your committee whether the advocates of the general coverage really understand the disadvantages of their own proposal.

If the general coverage is adopted and a claim is made based upon the contraction of a disease in the course of the claimant's employment, and the disease is not one commonly known to arise out of the nature of that employment, expert testimony must be offered to establish that fact. The result of the case, in so far as the claimant was concerned, would depend upon the character of the expert testimony, upon the credence given it, upon the reaction of the Board and the court to the evidence, both of the words used in the particular act and the phraseology of the state constitution under which the act was based.

There would undoubtedly arise many cases in which the testimony of the experts would be conflicting and the results necessarily uncertain. Furthermore, such an act would leave the field open to the taking of gamblers' chances.

Your committee has examined the laws of a number of jurisdictions containing general coverage provisions and finds that the decisions on those laws illustrate the difficulties suggested above.

California

In this state the constitution was amended in Article XX Section 21 and 1912 to read as follows:

> "The legislature may, by appropriate legislation, create and enforce a liability on the part of all employers to compensate their employes for any injury incurred by the said employes in the course of their employment irrespective of the fault of either party."

All California legislation must be read in connection with this constitutional provision.

> "Section 6 of the Workmen's Compensation Act (Stats. 1917 page 831) provides that compensation shall be given by an employer 'for any injury sustained by his employes arising out of and in the course of the employment and for the death of any such employes if the injury shall proximately cause death.' Subdivision 4 of Sec. 3 of the Act:
> "4. The term 'injury' as used in this act shall include any injury or disease arising out of the employment. In case of aggravation of any disease existing prior to such injury, compensation shall be allowed only for such proportion of the disability due to the aggravation of such prior disease as may reasonably be attributed to the injury."

The definition of the term "injury" was modified by the Act of 1919, page 912 so that the first sentence thereof read as follows:

> "The term 'injury' as used in this act shall include any injury or disease arising out of the employment including injuries to artificial members."

In this form the laws continue down to date. It should be noted in determining whether or not a disease is within the act, that it is first necessary to consider the meaning of the word "injury" as used in the constitution to ascertain whether it is broad enough to cover a disease as well as an accident.

As already noted the phraseology of the California act is broader than would be warranted by the Pennsylvania constitution. In this state we are confined to occupational diseases arising out of the employment.

Nothwithstanding the broad scope of the California act which would seem to simplify the burden of the Industrial Commission and of the courts, there is still a wide field for speculation and judicial injury as to what is or not a "disease arising out of the employment." The manner in which the courts and the Commission have attempted to handle this question is clearly set forth in the cases.

San Francisco v. Indus. Acc. Com., 183 Cal. 273; 191 Pac. 25 (1920). In this case the court first had to determine whether the definition of the word "injury" was broad enough to cover diseases. It decided that the word was sufficiently broad. Second, it had to decide whether influenza contracted by a hospital attendant during an influenza epidemic arose "out of the employment." In deciding that it did so arise, the court had to fall back upon a distinction in risk between that to which the general public was subjected and that to which the attendants at the hospital was subjected.

Pattiani v. Indus. Acc. Com., 199 Cal. 596; Pac. (1926). In this case there was a claim by a man whose regular employment was in California and who was sent to New York on a business trip where he was alleged to have contracted typhoid fever. There was evidence to show that there was an epidemic of typhoid in New York City at the time. The majority of the court held that unless it could be shown that the employer knew of the epidemic and sent his employe to New York City regardless of that fact, there could be no recovery for there was no special risk other than that to which the general public was subjected. The dissenting opinion held that compensation should be paid inasmuch as the risk of the public of San Francisco and not of New York City.

These cases, with the references contained therein to other cases, are cited merely to show that even with a coverage as broad as that of California, the Industrial Commission and the courts are called upon to draw fine lines between what is and what is not a compensable disease.

Connecticut

The story of Connecticut's early legislation is found in the case of Miller v. American Steel & Wire Co., 90 Conn. 349, 97 Atl. 345 (1916) which indicates that the first compensation act was passed in 1913 and provided for compensation for a "personal injury arising out of and in the course of his employment." This phrase did not include an occupational disease and, therefore, did not cover a case of lead poisoning.

A similar conclusion was reached in the case of Linnanee v. Aetna Brewing Co., 91 Conn. 158; 99 Atl. 507 (1916) which is based upon a death claim wherein the pneumonia causing the death was attributed to exhaustion due to the decedent's employment. An effort was made to establish that this exhaustion was an injury arising out of and in the course of employment. The court gave a definition of "injury" and of "accident" and held that the act was not broad enough to cover the claim. Compensation was denied.

Thereafter by chapter 142, section 1 of the Public Acts of 1919, the General Assembly amended Section 5341 of the Workmen's Compensation Act by inserting therein the following:

> "If an injury arises out of and in the course of an employment it shall be no bar to a claim for compensation that it cannot be located in point of time and place."

This amendment was held in the case of Dupre v. Alantic Refining Co., 98 Conn. 646; 120 Atl. 238 (1923) to represent an effort to meet the objection set up in the earlier case to a recovery and, therefore, a case of pneumonia attributed to arduous labor, over-heating and exhaustion in the course of employment, was compensable as "the contributing proximate cause of pneumonia from which the decedent died was the labor and conditions of employment."

In 1921 chapter 306 Sections 1 and 11 there were further amendments. In Section 11 appeared the following provisions:

> "The word 'injury' as the same is used in said chapter shall be construed to include any disease which is due to causes peculiar to the occupation and which is not of a contagious communicable or mental nature."

This amendment was under consideration in the case of Kovaliski v. Collins Co., 102 Conn. 6; Atl. 288 (1925). It was then held that a wet grinder was contracted pneumonoconiosis, a non-communicable disease, which developed into a tubercular disease known as "grinders' consumption" was entitled to compensation notwithstanding the fact that the tuberculosis might be communicable.

In De la Pena v. Jackson's Stone Co., 103 Conn. 93 (1925) the act was extended to cover the case of a man who died from influenza which developed into lobar pneumonia attributed to the conditions under which he labored. The court said that the injury contemplated by the act as amended did not have to be traced to a definite happening or event and that it included diseases peculiar to the occupation except those of "contagious, communicable diseases" and fell within the scope of the amendment of 1919 and since they were not peculiar to the employment, the fact that they might be communicable was not material.

In 1927 chapter 336 Sections 2 and 7, the act again amended so that it read as follows:

> "The words 'personal injury' or 'injury' as the same are used in said chapter 284, shall be construed to include only accidental injury which may be definitely located as to the time when and place where the accident occurred, and occupational disease is herein defined. The words 'occupational disease' shall mean a disease peculiar to the occupation in which the employe was engaged and due to causes in excess of the ordinary hazards of employment as such."

To this was added the following provision:

> "A personal injury shall not be deemed to arise out of the employment unless casually traceable to the employment other than through weakened resistance of lowered vitality."

This act was considered in the case of Galuzzo v. State, 111 Conn. 188 (1930). This was a claim for death due to pneumonia which was attributed to the reduction of the man's resistance by reason of his occupation, similar in facts to the De la Pena case. An award was refused.

The Court said "the amendment of 1927 from which we have quoted, had again placed the definition of compensible injury where it was when the Linnanee case was decided and the present case must rest upon the reasoning of that case rather than in the Dupre, Kovaliski and De la Pena decisions."

It is obvious from the history of the Connecticut act that the attempt to make it a general coverage act by legislative expression has not been entirely satisfactory and has raised a number of difficult problems for the courts to decide.

It should be noted here again that certain of the provisions of the changing Connecticut statutes would not be applicable in Pennsylvania inasmuch as we are confined to occupational diseases.

Massachusetts

This state is ordinarily referred to as a general coverage state for occupational diseases.

The original compencation act was passed in 1911, St. 1911 chapter 751, Part II, Section 1, amended in 1912, chapter 571 and in its present form is based upon the General Laws of Massachusetts of 1921, chapter 152. It is the oldest of the acts in the United States covering occupational diseases in any form.

The original act of 1911 provided for compensation for "personal injury arising out of and in the course of his (the employe's) employment." This phraseology is persistent down to the present time. It is, of course, necessary for the courts to determine the meaning of the phrase "personal injury."

In Hurle's Case, 217 Mass. 223 (1914) the question was raised. In that case it was decided that "personal injury" was broader than "accident." It included injuries developing over a period of time. The facts before the court related to an injury arising from the inhalation of gas extending over a period of time. The gas was emitted from a furnace as the door was from time to time opened and shut. The result was an injury to the eyes causing loss of vision. This was held to be a personal injury although not an accident because not attributable to a particular occurrence. The court suggested that it was as much personal injury as would be the throwing of small coals into the face of the claimant.

Johnson's Case, 104 N. E. 735 (1914). This was a case of lead poisoning and was held to be a personal injury. In the course of its decision the court remarked:

> "It is clear that personal injury under our act includes any injury or disease which arises out of and in the course of employment."

In McPhee's Case, 222 Mass. 1 (1915) compensation was awarded a fireman who inhaled damp smoke and was drenched by water and fire. Lobar pneumonia ensued.

A case such as the foregoing might well be compensated under an accident act.

Madden's Case, 222 Mass. 487 (1915) gave compensation for a strain to a weak heart arising out of the employment. This also might be held an accident.

In Maggelet's Case, 222 Mass. 57 (1917) a claim was made by a sign maker who asserted that he had suffered a disability due to a physical condition induced by the posture assumed by him in the course of his occupation. Compensation was refused by the court with the statement "the gradual breaking down or degeneration of tissues caused by long or laborious work is not the result of 'personal injury.'"

Pimentall's Case, 235 Mass. 598, (1920) In this case another claim was made by a cigar maker who asserted that he was suffering from occupational neurosis inducing neuralgic pains caused by the posture necessarily assumed at his work. Compensation was refused, the court pointing out that:

> "If it could be held that the employe was suffering from an occupational disease. Still the Workmen's Compensation Act does not in terms include diseases. It cannot be held to cover diseases contracted by employes in the course of and arising out of their employment."

The statement made in Johnson's Case, supra, was too broad.

In Sullivan's Case, 265 Mass. 497, (1929) a claim was made based upon an allegation that the claimant suffered from pneumonoconiosis. The claimant was a stone cutter.

The court decided that the condition from which he suffered, although known as "granite cutters' disease" was a personal injury. This conclusion was based upon the testimony of the expert who described the manner in which the disease was caused. The court carefully pointed out that diseases resulting from employment were not compensable as such. Nevertheless

> "In the case at bar there was evidence tending to show the tangible impact of particles of granite upon the lungs of the employe producing definite damage to the body * * * It might have been found to be as tangible as a broken bone."

It was, therefore, a personal injury. In this connection it might be pointed out that an Ohio court with somewhat different constitution and legal background refused to be convinced that a similar lung condition due to iron filings which were alleged to have wounded and injured the lung substance, constituted an injury. This court said:

"It is certainly quite obvious that plaintiff's incapacity resulted from a disease and not an injury for which payment of compensation has been provided by statute."

It is suggested that an examination of the Massachusetts decisions indicate that a heavy burden is imposed upon the courts to determine upon the evidence placed before it whether or not a given condition, which may commonly be known as a disease, constitutes a personal injury as distinguished from a diseases. The distinction is fine and results in very subtle statements.

The Massachusetts act specifically does not cover occupational diseases as such and the Massachusetts interpretation of personal injury could not be adopted in Pennsylvania under the phraseology of our present act nor could it be adopted under the phraseology of our constitution.

North Dakota

In this state by chapter 142 laws of 1921 and by chapter 222 Laws of 1925, the word "injury" includes the following meaning: "The term 'injury' includes in addition to an injury by accident any disease proximately caused by the employment."

This phraseology as already suggested is too broad for use in any Pennsylvania Act, in view of our constitutional provisions.

No court decisions have been located interpreting it.

Wisconsin

The last provisions of the Wisconsin Act passed in 1931 includes under the title "Definitions" the following:

"Injury is mental or physical harm to an employe and is extended to and includes disease growing out of and incidental to the employment * * * 'Time of injury,' 'occurrence of injury' or 'date of injury' is the date of the accident which caused the injury or the date when the disability from the occupational disease first occurs."

Provision of the act preceding this one which was adopted in 1919, contained the following:

"The provisions of Sections (Workmen's Compensation Act) are extended so as to include in addition to accidental injuries, all other injuries including occupational diseases growing out of and incidental to the employment."

Without going into detail relative to the decisions of the Wisconsin courts, it is sufficient to state that there has been extensive litigation, some of it at least attributable to indefiniteness of the description of diseases included within the act.

It is questionable whether the Wisconsin phraseology is appropriate to Pennsylvania legislation in view of our constitutional provision. That of the Act of 1931 is obviously not appropriate.

United States Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers Act provides that: (44 Stat. 1424)

"The term 'injury' mean accidental injury or death arising out of and in the course of employment and such occupational disease or infection as arises naturally out of such employment * * *"

This definition is incorporated into the Compensation Act covering the District of Columbia. (Pub. Act. No. 419)

In the case of Todd Dry Docks v. Marshall, 49 Fed. 2d 621, (1931) it was held to cover a case of cerebral spinal menengitis contracted by a longshoreman by infection in the course of his employment.

The Compensation Act covering United States civil employes, in so far as it relates to occupational diseases, provides: (Pub. Acts. No. 267, 64th Congress, No. 241, 67th Congress, No. 196, 68th Congress, No. 432 69th Congress)

The term 'injury' includts in addition to injury by accident, any disease proximately caused by the employment."

None of these Congressional provisions covering diseases are apt expressions for the Pennsylvania Act.

V. Advisability of Column Two—"Description of Process" ..

Discussion

The British Act in its schedule contains a list of diseases in Column One and a description of the processes in which the diseases customarily arise in Column Two, and provides in Section 44 (1):

"If the workman at or immediately before the date of such disablement or suspension as aforesaid, was employed in any process mentioned in the second column of the Third Schedule to this Act, and the disease contracted is the disease in the first column of that schedule set opposite the description of the process, the disease except where the certifying surgeon certifies that in his opinion the disease was not due to the nature of the employment unless the employer process the contrary."

It may be pointed out that the disability must in point of time be immediately related to the employment, otherwise the presumption does not arise.

In the case of Blatchford v. Staddon & Founds, (1927) A. C. 461 the disability did not occur until six months after the termination of employment. Therefore, the presumption did not arise. It would seem to your legal Committee that where the disability occurred while the man was actually employed in the process from which the disease naturally arose, it would be reasonable to assume that the man's condition was due to his employment and that such a presumption would not be dangerous to the rights of the employer.

Referring to the American Statutes the comment may be made that in Minnesota which follows the British statute rather closely, a provision similar to that found in the British Act appears as Section 4327 (8), the phraseology being as

(8) If the employe at or immediately before the date of disablement, was employed in any process mentioned in the second column of the schedule if diseases in subsection (9) of this section, and his disease is the disease in the first column of such schedule set opposite the description of the process, the disease presumptively shall be deemed to have been due to the nature of that employment."

In New York, which also follows the British act rather closely, there is no such provision and in the cases of Sokal v. Stein Fur Dyeing Co., 216 App. Div. 573; 216 N. Y. S. 167, (1926) it was held that under the phraseology of their act the column headed "Description of Processes" constituted a limitation upon the right of an employee to recover. The facts of the case indicated that the employe suffered from dermatis caused by aniline poisoning. It appears that his work required him to handle furs after the same had been dyed and it was in the course of this handling that the poisoning occurred. It was held, however, that since he was not engaged in the process set forth in column two corresponding to the disease in column one, he was not entitled to recover

The New Jersey Act contains no process column. The phraseology of the Ohio Act, Section 1465-68a immediately preceding the schedule of diseases, would suggest that the process column is restrictive of the employe's right to compensation just as in New York State.

As already suggested your Committee would not propose using the column as a restriction, but would favor the British rule and the British expression of it.

IX. Liability of Employer or Insurer for Disability Due to Pre-Existing Disease or for Re-Occurrence of a Disease—Discussion

This heading raises the principal question relative to the construction of an occupational disease act.

It should be noted that the British Act gives to the employe the right of compensation for death or disease when "the disease is due to the nature of any employment in which the workman was employed at any time within the 12 months previous to the date of the disablement or suspension." It is further provided that "the compensation shall be recoverable from the employer who last employed the workman during the said 12 months in the employment to the nature of which the disease was due."

The meaning of these provisions was originally interpreted in the case of Dean v. Rubian Art, Pot. L. D. 1914, 2 K. B., 213, as permitting the last employer, notwithstanding the fact that his business was of the nature to which the disease was due, to defend upon the ground that the employe's disease was not in any sense due to such employment.

The question was presented to the House of Lords again in the case of Blatchford v. Staddon and Founds (1927) A. C. 461, and it was then decided that the last employer was liable for the full compensation, regardless of a defense to the effect that his employment had nothing to do with the disease or disability. The facts of the case were these: A painter claimed compensation from the defendants, a firm of builders and decorators, because of a disability due to lead poisoning. The claimant had been a painter in the Navy until 1918 and had contracted lead poisoning. He was employed as a painter in 1920 and again from the beginning of 1923 until July, 1924. In mid-September, 1924, he was employed for a month by Messrs. Woollacott and Son. On October 23, 1924 he entered the defendants employment and continued there until December 12, 1924, when he left owing to an illness diagnosed as heart trouble but later found to be lead poisoning. On July 13, 1924, the certifying surgeon certified that the man was suffering from lead poisoning and was thereby disabled from earning his full wages at the work at which he had been employed. There being no date specified as the date of disability by the surgeon, it was held to be July 13th. The painter claimed full compensation from his last employer who defended upon the ground that the disease was not contracted while the painter was in their employ nor was it aggravated or accelerated during their employment, although it appears that he had been employed as a painter.

The question at issue involved an interpretation of the Act whether the defense was or was not a good legal one.

It was pointed out that the Act provided that the compensation shall be recoverable from the employer who last employed the workman during the said 12 months in the employment to the nature of which the disease was due.

That the defendant was engaged in the business "to the nature of which the disease was due" and would, therefore, not be permitted to show that the disease was neither contracted nor aggravated during the course of the employment.

It is obvious that the English rule provides a reasonably accurate though rough and ready method of procedure.

The last employer pays all the compensation. His remedy, as further provided in the Act, is to ascertain from the workman, or his dependents, the names of prior employers and, if any of them are engaged in the business to the nature of which the disease is due, he can bring them in as parties to the proceedings and secure from them a contribution to the compensation to be paid and perhaps make them pay it all but, of course, he cannot do this except with employers who have employed claimant within a period of 12 months prior to the date of disability.

It is interesting to note that in the two American states, New York and Minnesota, which base their acts upon the British Act, the liability of the employer is phrased as follows: "The total compensation due shall be recoverable from the employer who last employed the employe in the employment to the nature of which the disease was due and in which it was contracted. If, however, such disease was contracted while such employe was in the employment of a prior employer, the employer who is made liable for the total compensation * * " may appeal to the Board from an apportionment of such compensation among the several employers who since the contraction of such disease shall have employed such employe in the employment to the nature of which the disease was due. Such apportionment shall be proportioned to the time such employe was employed " * *" New York Law 1921, as amended in 1930.

Just what interpretation has been put upon this phaseology your committee cannot ascertain from the court decisions which are available, nor does it know how the provision has worked in practice.

The Minnesota Act which seems to be modelled on the New York Act contains the same provision. The New York and the Minnesota Acts add the following phrase to the English statement of the law "and in which it (the disease) was contracted.." This phrase would seem to limit the employe in his recovery and either would require him to show that the disease was contracted in the last employment or would permit the employer to defend upon the ground that it was not so contracted while in his employment. This modification, if so interpreted, constitutes a material variation from the British plan. Neither the Ohio nor the New Jersey Acts contain such a provision.

The Ohio Act provides, Section 1465-68 (a) that the following diseases shall be considered occupational diseases and compensable as such, "when contracted by an employe in the course of his employment in which such employe was engaged at any time within 12 months previous to the date of his disablement and due to the nature of any processes described herein."

The New Jersey Act provides in Section 22 (a) for compensation for occupational diseases "where the exposure stated in connection therewith has occurred during the employment and the disability has commenced within five months after the termination of such exposure." It is obvious that neither the Ohio or the New Jersey Act take into consideration some of the difficulties that are bound to arise.

Other Statutory Provisions

In the statutes of California appears the following provision:

"In case of aggravation of any disease existing prior to such injury, compensation shall be allowed only for such proportion of the disability due to the aggravation of such prior disease as may be reasonably attributed to the injury." (Section 3 of the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1917, Statutes of 1917, page 831, as amended by the Statutes of 1919, page 911).

A provision in the same phraseology appears in the Connecticut Act, Section 5223 of the General Statutes of Connecticut (c).

There have been several California decisions interpreting this provision. In the case of Blanchard v. Ind. Acc. Com., 68 Cal. App. 65, 228 Pac. 359 (1924) the claim was made for disability known as Glass Blower's Arm. The claimant worked for one employer for 12 years, for a second employer for six months and for a third employer six months, then returned to his second employer in whose employ he became disabled some 40 minutes after undertaking to blow glass. Some three or four years before, he had been compelled to cease work because of the same condition.

In California the Statute of Limitations is six months from the date of the injury. In this case the insurance carrier for the last employer made a payment of compensation which tolled the statute.

The court held that the statute began to run from the date when the disease became known to the employe. The Industrial Commission made an award and apportioned it between the three employers and then decided that the award could be recovered only as to the last one, since no claim had been made against the other two within six months from the date of the injury.

In the case of Moore Shipbuilding v. Ind. Acc. Comm., 70 Cal. App. 495, 233 Pac. 392 (1925), it appeared that the employe had worked for the Moore Shipbuilding for about two months immediately prior to March 6, or 7, 1924. From March 7 to March 10, 1924, he was not employed. Then he entered the employ of the General Metals Supply Co., in the same line of work as before and was disabled by lead poisoning on March 21, 1924. The Commission made an award and apportioned the liability in accordance with the time worked by the employe "under exposure to lead" and since the employe had worked 46 days for the Moore Shipbuilding Co. and 11 days for the General Metals Supply Co. it was determined that the insurance carrier for the former company should be held liable for 46.57% of the total compensation awarded.

The court reversed the action of the Commission and annulled the award for the reason that there was no evidence of record to show that the employe had incurred or had shown any symptons of the disease while employed by the Moore Shipbuilding Co. and the apportionment of the award was based solely on conjecture.

In the case of the Assoc. Idem. Corp. v. Ind. Acc. Com., Cal. App. 12 Pac. (2d) 1075 (1932), the question arose relative to the apportionment of the compensation on an award as between two insurance carriers. The claimant had a lung trouble arising from the breathing of dust. He had worked for the same employer for a number of years during which time he was exposed to the dust for a year and a half. Then he ran a pump for a year during which time he was not exposed to dust. Then for three or four years he was again exposed to the dust. He became conscious of some difficulty as early as 1927 and in the summer of 1928 he noticed pains in his chest. Thereafter he got gradually worse and had to leave his work June 22, 1930 because of his condition. He filed his claim five months thereafter.

The court held that the date of disability; namely, June 22, 1930, was the date of the injury and it was from that date that the six months limitation should be calculated. It appeared that the employer was insured with the State Fund to March 26, 1928, and thereafter was insured by the Associated Indemnity Corp. The court stated that the same rule should apply to successive insurers as was applied in the case of successive employers and that the award should be apportioned between the two insurance carriers. It concluded its opinion with the statement that "There may be some difficulty in making the apportionment called for here, but if so, the difficulty is properly to be solved by the Commission. We do not suggest a solution but shall leave it to the Commission to settle the problem."

In Connecticut, the provision of the law above referred to was under consideration in the case of Roufsu v. Collins Co., 114 Conn. 24 (1391). This also was a case of lung trouble occasioned by the claimant's employment which was wet grinding, beginning in February of 1917 and intermittently thereafter until September, 1922, an aggregate of 40 months From September, 1922, to July, 1924, the claimant was not working for the defendant. He returned to the defendant's employ and worked at various times at polishing until September 16, 1930, when he became disabled by reason of pneumoniconiosis superimposed thereon. During the period from 1917 to 1930 the Collins Company had two insurers and was also, for a time, a self-insurer. They all contested liability. One of the propositions advanced was that the plaintiff had the condition well established prior to July 1, 1919, the date when an amendment to the Act was passed, which made his condition compensable. It was, therefore, argued that no award could be made for compensation other than that which represented aggravation since July 1, 1919, of the pre-existing occupational disease. The court held that the burden of proof of that assertion was on the defendants and that this burden had not been met. It also suggested that the apportionment provision of the Act did not apply to the disease in question when that disease was contracted, developed and aggravated by one industry or business under employment by the same employer in one continous employment or successive employments. It pointed out that the date of the disability was the date of the injury and under the facts of the case the liability for compensation should be fixed as of September 16, 1930.

Rules Established by Judicial Decision

In Massachusetts, as already pointed out, the date of disability is considered equivalent to the date of injury, Johnson's case, 217 Mass. 388 (1914).

The rule was applied in Fsbrizio's case, 274 Mass. 352 (1931). The claimant was suffering from silicosis contracted over a period of time with one employer who had been covered by two different insurers. The second insurer took the risk as of October 17, 1929, the employe stopped work, due to disability, on October 30, 1929. The court held that:

> "The disease was a progressive one and had been growing more serious as time went on, but the insurer insured the employes on October 17, 1929, in their then condition and if the employment caused the disease to continue until finally employe was incapacitated, the insurer is liable."

In Panagotopulos's case, 276 Mass. 600, the facts indicated that the claimant was employed as a "treer" by a shoe manufacture which employment lasted for a number of years. He left this employment July 29, 1929. He was out of work two weeks then worked for another shoe manufacturing company for two weeks and was again out of work until January 20, 1930, when he worked for a third shoe company for two weeks, left and worked for a fourth shoe company for a short time. He claimed total disability as of February 20, 1930, due to poisoning caused by the use of ammonia and liquid dye polish with which he came in contact in his occupation. It appeared that this condition first became disabling on or about July 25, 1929, when he left his first employer.

An award was made against the first employer. This award was reversed upon the ground that it appeared that the condition had cleared up before the second employment was taken and that the employe had been warned that the condition was likely to become active again, if he was subjected to further exposure. The court pointed out that the employe having returned to the employment dangerous to him had broken the line of causation which connected his condition to his original employment. A similar conclusion was reached in Corey's and Maloof's case, 276 Mass., 610 (1931). In the first of these cases, it appeared that Corey was a "treer" for 16 years. He worked for one employer from some time in 1929 to March 22, 1930, there was then an outbreak of dermatitis, due to poisoning caused by the use of ammonia and liquid dye polish. He worked for a second employer September 2, 1930, and shortly after his hands broke out again. An award was sustained against the first employer for this disability occasioned by his employment for the period between March 22nd and September 2nd but it was held that the burden of proof was on the claimant of showing that the exposure while working for the second employer was not such a voluntary act on his part as to break the line of causation between his injury and his incapacity to work after September 2, 1930.

In Wisconsin the courts have great difficulty in settling the rule relative to adjusting the rights between different employers and different insurance carriers in the case of a continuing disease, which finally results in disability and of a recurrence of a disease. There is an extensive discussion of the rulings of the court on this complex question in the cse of Zurich Gen. Acc. etc. Co. v. Ind. Co., 203 Wisc. 135, 233 N. W. 772 (1930). In this case reference is made to all of the principal decisions on the subject and a rule is established which seems to have been followed in the subsequent cases of Marquette Granite v. Ind. Com., 245 N. W. 680 (December, 1932). As we read, the decisions they stand for the general proposition that the date of the injury is the date of the accident.

In the Zurich case, Anthony Martorana, deceased husband of the claimant, commenced work in the chipping room of the Falk Corporation in 1911. He continued until January 14, 1920. He then became ill. His trouble was diagnosed as chronic bronchitis. He returned to work December 8, 1921. From April 28, 1922, to September 11, 1922, he was off sick and was then advised that this trouble was due to the dust in his employment and he should get another job. He was transferred at reduced wages. On October 23, 1927, he became totally and permanently disabled. He died January 3, 1929.

Prior to July 1, 1926, the Zurich Company was the insurance carrier, after that date the Employers Mutual Liability and Insurance Co. was on the risk.

The Commission found that the decedent died of tuberculosis superimposed of pneumonoconiosis. It made an award for partial disability from August 21, 1923, to October 23, 1927, for total disability from October 23, 1927, to date of death and an award to the widow of death benefits all of which was charged against the Zurich Insurance Co. as the employment subsequent to August 21, 1923, in no manner or degree contributed to the disability.

On appeal to the county court the award was set aside on the ground that no notice of the occupational disease was given to the employer and hence the claim was barred by the Statute of Limitations. The Supreme Court in the case above cited held that the request for transfer to a lower paying job was sufficient notice. It then reviewed all of the decision relative to the question of the liability for the payment of compensation and finally laid down the following rule:

> "In the case under consideration there are three claims: (1) For permanent total partial disability; (2) for permanent total disability; and (3) for death benefits. The award fixes the amount of each and each part of the award is based upon distinct provisions of the compensation act.
> (5) Upon a full reconsideration of the entire matter, it considered that it should be held that the "time of accident," within the meaning of the statute in occupational disease cases, should be the time when the disability first occurs; that the employer in whose employment the injured workman is and the insurance carrier at that time are liable for the total consequence due thereto. So that if the end result, whatever it may be, is inevitably due to exposure already complete, that employer and that carrier became liable accordingly. If the disability is partial and there is a recovery and a subsequent disability which subsequent disability arose from a recurrence or is due to a new onset induced by a subsequent exposure. If it finds that the disability is due to a new onset, the employer and the carrier on the risk at the time the total disability manifests itself shall be liable accordingly. If, however, there is no subsequent exposure which contributes to the disability and it is not a recurrence of the former occupational disease, then the employer in whose employment the employe is when the recurrence takes place is not liable and so the insurance carrier upon the risk at that time is not liable on that account."

From a reading of the foregoing decision it would appear that in the case of Schaeffer v. Inds. Com., 185 Wis. 317; 201 N. W. 396, the Board had undertaken to apportion the liability according to the term of the exposure, but the court had reversed this action. It also appears that if the court in the Zurich case had followed a prior rule it would have held that liability for partial disability was referable to the notice of August 21, 1923 and liability for the total permanent disability which arose on October 23, 1927 was referable to that date. The liability of the insurance carrier should be determined accordingly. This principle, however, was discarded in the Zurich case.

It should also be noted that the court was urged to place more emphasis on the exposure than upon the disability, but declined to follow such a suggestion.

There has been intrduced into the present session of the Wisconsin legislature an amendment which lays stress upon the exposure. This proposed amendment is as follows:

> "102.02. In the case of disease due to a single exposure, liability shall become fixed as of the date of such exposure. In the case of any other disease, liability shall become fixed as of the last date that the injured employe was exposed to a hazard which contributed to the development of such disease. Subject to the foregoing rule, intermittent periods of temporary disability shall create a claim separate from a claim for any subsequent disability which is the result of an intervening cause."

It might further be commented that under the English rule the date of suspension, namely, the transfer from the one job to the other, would probably have been considered as the significant date and the statute of limtations would have begun to run from that time. The claimant, therefore, would have been barred from compensation at the termination of a year.

Report of the Medical Committee

Forms of Legislation

The forms of Workmen's Occupational Disease Compensation Acts which are at present in effect in the United States and other countries may be roughtly classified as follows:[1]

I. Laws which definitely include occupational diseases.
   A. Those having a schedule naming the diseases which are compensable.
   B. Those having a schedule naming the diseases which are compensable only if they occur in workers engaged in certain listed industrial processes.
   C. Those having no schedule of diseases or processes.

II. Laws which do not specify coverage for occupational diseases but the wording of which is such as to allow legal interpretation to the effect that diseases arising out of and in the course of employment are compensable in the same manner as industrial accidents.

III. Laws which definitely exclude diseases except those which result from an accidental injury.

After consideration of these forms it was believed that

(1) It is assumed that the scope of any occupational disease legislation enacted by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania should provide compensation for diseases beyond the scope of accidental injury. It is understood that existing laws of Pennsylvania provide compensation for occupational diseases if it can be shown that there was accidental injury. Form III was thus eliminated from further consideration.

(2) Form II is the most desirable from theory, but in practice there are many administrative difficulties and problems owing mainly to (a) variability ininterpreting the intended scope with the attending inability of insurance carriers to estimate costs, and much evidence of abuse of employers' liability to employe, and (b) lack of information on certain industrial diseases and their disabling properties.

(3) Forms 1-A and 1-B appear to be the most desirable from the viewpionts of (a) existing conditions in Pennsylvania, (b) ease of administration, (c) estimation of carriers' charges, and (d) the present status of knowledge of industrial diseases and their disabling properties.

Forms 1-A and 1-B provide compensation for occupational diseases in accordance with a definite schedule. The law may be a separate act or an amendment to the present workmen's compensation laws. It will be noted that both forms 1-A and 1-B are suggested. It is the intent, however, that form 1-A should be followed in the main, and form 1-B used only in certain exceptions, as for example, in the case of item 13 of the schedule presented later in this report.

[1]Report of Committee on Standard Practices in the Problem of Compensation of Occupational Diseases of the Industrial Hygiene Section, Amer. Pub. Health Assoc. Issued by the Committee on Research and Standards, Amer. Pub. Health Assoc., 1931.

Schedule of Diseases

In preparing the schedule of occupational diseases and injuries, full and careful consideration was given to limiting the list to those of potentially frequent occurence in Pennsylvania which are well definited rather than to attempt to include all diseases and injuries which have been reported to occur as a result of industrial exposure. It is believed that this limited schedule will provide coverage for approximately 90 per cent of the occupational diseases incurred at the present time in Pennsylvania and that a much longer list would be required to appreciably increase the coverage. Owing to changes in industrial processes, to the use of new products with exposure thereto, and to the increasing information and recognition of industrial diseases, it is impossible to prepare a list that will include all disability from occupational diseases. It is also believed that some of the initial difficulties encountered by other states and countries in the administration of occupational disease legislation will be obviated, or at least minimized, by starting with a limited schedule of diseases of known occurrence and importance, and later revising this list to keep it current with the observed experiences in the State of Pennsylvania and with new information on industrial diseases.

Further reasons which incline the Medical Committee to favor a schedule of occupational diseases rather than a general coverage are that the schedule defines definitely what is to be compensated, if it be decided that there should be an amendment to the present compensation Law of the Commonwealth to make compensable only such diseases as are specifically connected with industry—the true so-called occupational diseases.

A so-called blanket law is theoretically fair and just; but its practical application, if carried to its logical conclusion would be to impose an enormous financial burden upon industry, and under present economic conditions there is reason to believe that the law would be carried to its logical conclusion.

To cite an illustrative case, the Supreme Court of Idaho recently held that compensation should be paid to the estate of a man who died of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever while working in the woods for a lumber company. The court held that inasmuch as the fatal disease was caused by the bite of a tick, and that the man presumably acquired the tick which bit him during the course of his occupation, his fatal illness was in the nature of an accident, and as such was compensable. Without questioning the ustice of this, if this principle were applied throughout the country every case of malaria occurring in railway section workers, construction workers, lumber workers, and all other forms of outdoor labor, might well be deemed compensable, for if the illness resulting from the bite of the tick is an accident, presumably the illness from the bite of a mosquito is an accident. It is not maintained that claims of this type are not just, but it is urged that the average person engaged in propaganda work for all inclusive occupational disease bills has little conception of what is involved in this form of legsilation. Consequently, it is believed that the law should specifically state that these diseases should be limited to those commonly associated with industry and not usually found outside of industry.

Shedule

The Medical Committee, in accordance with the decision of the Commission in favor of the Schedule type of law, has prepared the following list of diseases as suitable for inclusion in any Act which may be drafted.

Columun One	Column Two
Description of Disease	Description of Occupation
1. Poisoning by lead, mercury, phosphorus, arsenic.	Any occupation involving the handling of or hazardous exposure to lead, mercury, phosphorus, arsenic, their preparations or compounds

Note (a) Special Discussion of Silicosis

For the purpose of compensation, silicosis shall be considered as a disease of the lungs, due to breathing air containing silica (SiO) dust, characterized anatomically by generalized fibrotic changes in both lungs with the development of miliary nodulation, demonstrable by X-ray examination.

There is a large number of occupations in which there is exposure to silica dust. This condition requires special consideration. Any legislation designed to compensate those disabled by reason of exposure to silica dust should clearly define the affection and its various degrees leading to disability. This item in the schedule is one of primary importance; hence a detailed discussion is presented and emphasis placed upon the necessity for an accurate description and definition of the conditions under which the disability is acquired, its degree, the length of exposure, and its association with tubereculosis.

For the guidance of compensation officials in the State of Pennsylvania, the following definitions and descriptions of silicosis are set down. Wherever silicosis has been made compensable either in this country or abroad, experience has shown that there is a great deal of confusion and misapprehension unless all the pertinent data are clearly defined.

The following material is copied from the report of the committee on Pneumoconiosis and of the Committee on Standards of the American Public Health Association, adopted at a meeting in Washington on November 6, 1931. Those present were:

Dr. R. R. Sayers, Chief Surgeon, United States Bureau of Mines, Chairman;

Dr. E. R. Hayhurst, Consultant on Industrial Hygiene, to the State Board of Health of Ohio;

Dr. J. P. Leake, in charge of Industrial Hygiene, United States Public Health Service;

Dr. H. H. Kessler, Consultant to the State Board of Labor of New Jersey;

Dr. A. E. Russell of the United States Public Health Service;

Dr. A. J. Lanza, Assistant Medical Director, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Chairman of Committee on Standard Practices in Compensation of Occupational Diseases.

Definition of Silicosis (Uncomplicated). "Silicosis is a disease due to breathing air containing slica (SiO), characterized anatomically by generalized fibrotic changes and the development of miliary nodulation in both lungs, and clinically by shortness of breath, decreased chest expansion, lessened capacity for work, absence of fever, increased susceptibility to tuberculosis, (some or all of which symptoms may be present), and by characteristic x-ray findings."

The disease is divided arbitrarily into first, second, and third stages for convenience of description and possible compensation purposes.

"First stage (corresponds to anteprimary stage of South Africa).—The symptoms of uncomplicated first-stage silicocis are few and often indefinite. The man may apparently be quite well and his working capacity not noticeably impaired. Slight shortness of breath on exertion and some unproductive cough, often with recurrent colds, are the most usual symptoms. The man may have a little less ability to expand his chest than formerly and the elasticity of the chest may be slightly impaired. The earliest specific indication of the presence of silicosis is the radiographic appearance, consisting of generalized arborization throughout both lung fields with more or less small, discrete mottling.

"This characteristic mottling is due to shadows cast by the discrete individual nodules of fibrous tissue in the lungs and is essential to the diagnosis of silicosis; without this finding the diagnosis of silicosis is not sustanied except by autopsy.

"Second stage (corresponds to primary stage of South Africa).—A definite shortness of breath on exertion is usually found, and pains in the chest are a frequent complaint. A dry morning cough is often present, sometimes with vomiting, and recurrent colds are more frequent. Even then the man's appearance may be healthy but he is dyspneic on exertion, he cannot work as well as formerly, his chest expansion is noticeably decreased, the movement being sluggish and diminished in elasticity.

"The characteristic radiographic appearance is a generalized medium-sized mottling throughout both lung fields. The shadows of the individual nodules are for the most part discrete and well defined on a background of fibrous arborization, but there may be here and there larger but limited opacities due to irregular pleural thickening or to a localized aggregation or nodules.

"Third stage (corresponds to the secondary stage of South Africa).—In the third stage the shortness of breath is marked and distressing even on slight exertion. The cough is more frequent; the expectoration is in most cases slight but may be copious. The individual's capacity for work becomes seriously and permanently impaired; his expansion is greatly decreased even with forced inspiration; he may lose flesh; his pulse rate may be increased and his heart may become dilated.

"The radiographic appearance in the third stage are further accentuated, the mottling is more intense, the modules are larger and taken on a conglomerate form so that large shadows are shown corresponding to areas of dense fibrosis.

"Physical examination of an individual may reveal changes in percussion and auscultation, mild in the first and increasing with the progress of the disease. These alone are not sufficient to be of great value in diagnosis of silicosis."

Pathology of Silicosis. The pathology of silicosis is well summarized in the statement on The Medical Aspects of Silicosis made at the International Conference on Silicosis held on Johannesburg, August 13 to 27, 1930. It was agreed that the microscopic pathological changes that may be produced by the prolonged inhalation of silica dust are:

"(a) The development of a condition designated in South Africa as a dry bronchiolitis, characterized by an accumulation of dust-filled phagocytes in or in relation to the terminal bronchioles, with possibly some disquamation of their epithelium.

"(b) The accumulation of dust-containing phagosytes about and in the intra-pulmonary lymphoid tissue, and their transportation through the lymphatics into the trach-eobronchial lymphnotes. (The conditions described above under (a) and (b) do not constitute the disease silicosis)

"(c) The gradual development of fibrous tissue within such accumulations of phagocytes and the formation of characteristic nodules of hyaline fibrous tissue.

"(d) Degenerative changes in these foci.

"(e) The hyaline nodules increase in size by extension at their periphery. Coalescence of adjacent nodules takes place and brings about involvement of further areas of the lung."

(The conditions described under (c), (d), and (e) consitute the disease silicosis)

Microscopically the changes observed in silicosis are:

"(a) In the early stage. A variable number of palpable pearly-white nodules up to 2 or 3 mm in diameter on the pleural surface of the lung. On section, the cut surface of the lung is studded with pigmented foci, widely scattered, a moderate proportion of which are only just palpable. The tracheobronchial lymph notes may be slightly enlarged and deeply pigmented, and may exhibit foci or fibrous induration.

(b) Later stages. The fibrotic nodules are increased in number, size and density, and coalescence of these may be found. The portions of the lung between the fibrotic nodules may be smaller in size than those seen in the early stage and are fibrosed."

"The presence of tuberculous infection usually modifies the pathological appearance."

Special attention was drawn to the three following types:

"(a) In which the picture of silicosis above described may be little, if at all, modified, but in which only a biological test can demonstrate the presence of B. tuberculosis.

(b) In which the coexistence of silicosis and typical tuberculosis lesions is easily recognizable.

(c) In which the presence of tuberculosis is easily recognizable, but the existence of silicosis is more difficult to determine."

Silicosis, at any stage, when complicated with active pulmonary tuberculosis, shall be deemed total disability; in the absence of such infection only second and third stages shall be compensable.

In order to establish a claim for compensation for silicosis, the claimant must have had a total of two years' aggregate employment in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, all occurring after the passage of an Act, in an occupation or occupations recognized as involving exposure to silica dust.

Note (b) Special Discussion on Chronic Incapacitating Miners' Asthma

With respect to chronic incapacitating miners' asthma, the Medical Committee is of the belief that there is a disabling occupational disease of this character. Appreciating, however, the lack of any precise information as to the exact nature and the prevalence of this disease, the Medical Committee wishes to go on record as recommending that a further study and investigation of occupational diseases among anthracite coal miners be made by the U. S. Bureau of Public Health Service, with the full cooperation of the United Mine Workers of America and of the coal operators in the anthracite region. The United States Bureau of Mines in cooperation with the U. S. Bureau of Public Health Service has conducted many such investigations and is now concluding a study of occupational diseases among bituminous coal miners in West Virginia, making possible a correlation of the facts ascertained from that study with those which would be obtained from a study in the anthracite region.

In any case, in order to establish a claim for compensation for chronic incapacitating miners' asthma, the claimant must have had not less than five years aggregate employment in the coal mining industry in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, two years of which must have occurred after the passage of an Act.

Forms of Pneumoconiosis Not Included in the Schedule

Anthracosis is a well recognized pulmonary condition, but in uncomplicated form there is a lack of definite information as to disabling effects such as would justify its inclusion in the schedule. A large proportion of the disabilities occurring in anthracite miners is believed to be due to silicosis rather than tc anthrocosis. The discussion of Item 13 "Chronic Incapacitating Miners' Asthma" sets forth the most important facts with regard to these conditions and the reason for the non-inclusion of anthrocosis.

Asbestosis. There is sufficient definite proof that exposure to asbestos dust in plants where asbestos is fabricated causes pneumoconiosis. Asbestosis is, therefore, a recognized pulmonary affection, demonstrable by x-ray examination, but its appearance in the x-ray film is somewhat different from that of either silicosis or anthrocosis; skilled technicians are able to differentiate one from the other. The occurrence of asbestos pneumoconiosis or asbestosis is not accompanied by a clinical picture similar to silicosis. In the majority of cases there does not seem to be any definite disability associated with it, and in this respect it resembles anthracosis. In a few instances recorded in this country and in England death has apparently resulted from asbestosis, due as for as could be ascertained to the fibrous conditions of the lung with resultant secondary heart failure. Apparently there is not associated with asbestosis the predisposition to tuberculosis which occurs in silicosis. It has not been definitely established that the inhalation of asbestos dust causes either diseases, or injuries to other organs in the body. It is likely that further research into this subject will be carried on in the next few years and may yield additional information. The present knowledge of the subject is too meagre to justify the inclusion of asbestosis in the schedule. Practical experience in communities where asbestos is fabricated does not reveal a definite clinical picture of disease and disability such as is encountered among those exposed to the hazards of silicosis. From a practical standpoint, therefore, there seems to be no necessity at the present time to include asbestosis in the schedule.

Pneumoconiosis from cement dust. The United States Public Health Service has made an exhaustive study of this condition occurring in workers in cement plants, the results of the studies being set forth in U. S. Public Health Service Bulletin No. 176 The Health of Workers in Dusty Trades. This study indicates that exposure to cement dust does not cause a disabling pneumoconiosis nor is it associated with any predisposition to tuberculosis. In the light of the best information obtainable, therefore, there would seem to be no reason to include the effects of exposure to cement dust in the schedule recommended for adoption.

Siderosis. Siderosis is a recognized pulmonary affection, but there is insufficient information as to any disabling effects such as would make its inclusion in the schedule justifiable.

Additional Diseases or Injuries Considered with Reasons for Omission from Suggested Schedule

In the preparation of the schedule the following additional diseases or injuries which are reported in medical literature or included in the schedules of diseases for occupational disease legislation in other States and Countries were considered. The reasons for their omission are herewith briefly set forth in tabular form.

Substance, Disease or Injury	Reasons for Omission from Schedule
Glanders	No evidence of occurrence in Pennsylvania in recent years.
Hookworm Disease	Too closely associated with public life and exposure.
Tenosynovitis and Prepatellar Brusitis in miners (Miners' beat knee, beat hand, beat elbow, beat wrist)	No evidence of significant occurrence of disabling injury.
Miners' nystagmus	Not observed in Pennsylvania mines.
Mill cramps	Occurrence can be attributed to a particular instant and should be considered under the provisions for an occupational accident.
Gonioma Kamassi (African boxwood)	No evidence of occurrence in recent years, but would come under the scope of item 10 of suggested schedule.
Hydrogen sulphide or hydrosulphuric acid	Acute poisoning manifested as an accident. Sub-acute or chronic poisoning manifested as inflammation, and covered in schedule.

Formaldehyde and acrolein	Not a recognized disabling[1] occupational disease except irritation of the skin which is within the scope of item 9 or 10 of the suggested schedule. Acute injury should be considered under existing provisions for occupational accidents.
Carbon dioxide	Does not produce a recognized type of chronic poisoning. Acute poisoning would be considered an accident.
Carbon monoxide	Not a recognized disabling occupational disease. Acute poisoning would be considered under existing provisions for occupational accidents.
Tetrachlorethane	Provided for in schedule, item 2.
Lacquer solvents	Too definite and general. Should be considered under heading of specific injurious substances.
Toluene and xylene	Disabling[1] occupational disease has been attributed to these substances but is at present a controversial subject.
Nickel carbonyl	Not observed in Pennsylvania.
Metal fume fever	Covered in schedule under item 4.
Vanadium, tellurium, selenium, thallium, antimony poisoning	Not observed in Pennsylvania.
Potassium cyanide	Not recognized as a disabling[1] occupational disease other than possible "cyanide rash" which should be within the scope of item 10 of the suggested schedule.
Hexamethylenetetramine	Irritation of skin covered in suggested schedule, item 10.
Rubber	Irritation of skin from compounds in rubber, covered in suggested schedule, item 10.
Sulphur dioxide, sulphur trioxide, sulphurous acid and sulphuric acid	Not a recognized disabling[1] occupation disease or injury except irritation of the skin which is within the scope of item 9 or 10 of the suggested schedule. Acute injury should be considered under existing provisions for occupational accidents.
Iodine, bromine, chlorine, fluorine, or halogen acids	Not a recognized disabling[1] occupational disease except irritation of the skin which is within the scope of item 9 or 10 of the suggested schedule. Acute injury should be considered under existing provisions for occupational accidents.
Oxides of nitrogen, nitrous and nitric acids	Not a recognized disabling[1] occupational disease except irritation of the skin which is within the scope of item 9 or 10 of the suggesterd schedule. Acute injury should be considered under existing provisions for occupational accidents.
Cataract in glass workers	No longer observed in Pennsylvania.

Additional Comments and Discussion of Scheduled Items

Item 1. There is little need of comment. Lead poisoning particularly is one of the most widely distributed toxic hazards in industry. Mercury and arsenic poisoning are often recognized and are not unusual. Phosphorus poisoning should be included in the schedule because of exposure occurring in the manufacture of fireworks.

Item 2. This item includes a group of volatile solvents, all of which are toxic. The extent to which they are used varies from time to time and will continue to vary. In the development of industries it may become desirable to elide some and to add others, but the group as presented is satisfactory in the light of our present knowledge and industrial use.

Item 3. Manganese Dioxide Poisoning is the cause of a comparatively newly recognized disease. There is definite recognized manganese dioxide poisoning in Pennsylvania.

Item 5. Poisoning by Benzol and its derivatives constitutes a considerable group of occupational disabilities. The symptoms produced are severe and lasting, and may be fatal. Many, if not all, of the derivatives of benzol are toxic by skin absorption as well as by inhalation.

Item 6. Compressed air illness is a recognized clinical entity occurring in various industrial undertakings.

Item 7. The great increase in the use of ex-rays in industry for the purpose of recognizing internal flaws in manufactured material, and the distressing results of radium poisoning, as shown several years ago in northern New Jersey, indicate the need for including the effects of both x-ray and radium. Radioactive material is now used on watch dials in at least one large factory in Pennsylvania.

Item 8. The designation 'chrome ulceration' rather than 'chrome poisoning' is adopted since its action is that of a local irritant and escharotic rather than a toxic one. Industrially it produces only unceration in the skin and mucous membranes.

Items 9 and 10. Dealing with affections of the skin. The wording in Items 9 and 10 has the precedent of some years of actual inclusion in various schedules, both in this country and in Great Britain.

Item 11. Anthrax is typically an occupational disease as evidenced by a number of synonyms such as wool-sorters' disease, rag-pickers' disease, and others. In those cases in which it results from introduction into the circulation through an abrasion in the skin such as a slight puncture or scratch, it may, of course, be considered as an accident and has indeed been so construed in Pennsylvania. There are other cases, however, in which accidental incidence cannot be proven which are notwithstanding, the result of an occupation. There is in this Commonwealth a definite expectation of from 6 to 20 cases per year, among which 1 to 5 deaths occur. The average time lost in the non-fatal cases is over 30 days, all the foregoing statistics being based on a 20-year experience.

Item 13. Chronic Incapacitating Miners' Asthma. It is believed that it is impracticable to include anthracosis as such in the schedule. No country in the world attempts compensation for this condition. There are thousands of people directly or indirectly associated with the coal and allied industries in whom the x-ray pictures of the chest would show indefinite signs of fibrosis due to the inhalation of coal dust and who are yet in ordinary good health and able to work for a living. It is, of course, true that the fundamental idea in a compensation law is to pay for disability, but there is certainly precedent to show that given an x-ray picture showing pulmonary fibrosis and a statement of the claimant that he is unable to work would result in the payment of compensation to a large majority of such cases.

Practically all of those engaged in coal mining become the subjects of anthracosis in the course of a few years. It is well known that an advanced grade of anthracosis may exist without producing disability. In the case of rock drillers using jack-hammers, the condition is one of anthracosis and silicosis. Disability occurs much earlier and in much higher percentage in those engaged in rock drilling, either part time or full time, than is the case with those working exclusively in coal veins.

The anthracite coal industry of Pennsylvania is one of its largest industries, employing many thousands of workers, representing large capital investments, facts fully recognized by all the members of this Commission.

In the endeavor to determine the incidence of disability among hard-coal workers as the result of their occupation, and the costs to the industry of disability insurance, it early became evident to the Commission that there was no experience in other States or Countries by which reasonably accurate estimates could be made since the anthracite coal industry is almost wholly restricted to the State of Pennsylvania. The effects of soft coal mining upon workers in the mines is very different from that of anthracite, and not comparable.

[1]"Disabling" injury is interpreted to be an injury of sufficient duration to fall within the period of compensation.

It soon became evident to the Commission that it should undertake an original investigation. The investigation was assumed by the Medical Committee, the purpose of which was to gather information regarding disabilities directly the result of the occupation of hard-coal mining.

It is recognized that the designation "Miners' Asthma" is not entirely satisfactory or scientific. It is, however, an affection well recognized in the coal-fields by both the laity and the medical profession, and represents the chief disability growing out of anthracite coal mining. The term indicates a disabling consequence rather than the underlying causative condition, and is, therefore, a symptom complex rather than a pathological entity. Nevertheless, it seems the most satisfactory descriptive term to indicate disability.

The endeavor to obtain reasonably accurate information as to the incidence of this condition will be briefly outlined:

Two hundred and thirteen physicians and nine hospitals situated in the anthracite coal region were requested categorically to supply certain information with such comment upon the problem presenting itself to the Commission as they might deem pertinent. Replies were received from 133 physicians and 7 hospitals. Eliminating replies from those who were either unable to give any information, or who supplied information too vague to be statistically utilized, there remained replies of more or less value from 89 physicians, 78 of whom gave numerical statistics, actual or estimated. The 78 physicians who gave figures, either taken from their records, or estimated, reported 45,207 miners under observation, of whim 10,214 were said to be the subjects of well-developed Miners' Asthma, representing a percentage incidence in their opinion or experience of 22.6%. Eleven additional physicians, after examining their records and considering the question, estimated 17.7% as the incidence of well-developed Miners' Asthma, which latter figure is, of course, almost 5% less than the more accurate studies of those who gave exact figures. It is believed that the smaller group not being based upon accurate studies, and being a small number of physicians, is much less dependable than the first figure.

The difference in incidence itself given by different physicians is, doubtless, in part as least, to be accounted for by the difference of exposure resulting from the different kinds of dust exposure in the mines.

For the purpose of this discussion, such workers might be grouped as follows:

(1) Those almost entirely engaged in rock drilling with the use of the jack-hammer.

(2) Those largely engaged in coal mining, but occasionally using the jack-hammer for drilling in rock.

(3) Those engaged almost exclusively in mining coal.

Rock drill workers with the jack-hammer in Group 1 constitute a small percentage of all those engaged in mining, being approximately a little more than 2% of the whole number of miners. It is emphasized, however, that the incidence of silicosis and Miner's Asthma occurs after a relatively short exposure, and in high percentage, reaching perhaps 80 to 85 per cent of those so engaged after two or three years of work.

Group 2 represents a large number of workers (approximately 5%) in whom the incidence of asthma is much less, and occurs after a longer exposure, than in Group 3.

Group 3 represents the large body of workers, 80 to 85 per cent of the whole number, and in them the percentage incidence is much lower than in either Group 1 or Group 2.

A weighted average of all the foregoing is approximately 22%. Individual estimates run anywhere from 15% to 25% of the whole group of miners. Most of those, the subjects of Miners' Asthma are either partially or totally disabled. The greater hazards of rock drilling are well recognized by both physicians and workers.

One of the reports from the medical staff of the Ashland State Hospital gives a detailed study of 54 patients actually engaged in anthracite coal mining under treatment for various conditions; 11 of the 54 had well-established Miners' Asthma. Their ages, and the number of years of employment in mining were given as follows:

	Age	Years worked in mines
1.	37	16
2.	49	30
3.	35	10
4.	46	15
5.	42	20
6.	42	25
7.	79	4
8.	62	40
9.	42	26
10.	36	20
11.	42	18

There is general agreement that Miners' Asthma depends principally upon the amount of rock dust present rather than the coal dust itself, although the latter may produce the condition after many years of exposure.

It is somewhat beside the technical discussion to quote opinions of physicians with regard to the desirability of recognizing Miners' Asthma as an occupational affection which should be made compensable. This comment was invited only in a general way, and was not made a matter of a specific inquiry; however, seven voluntarily expressed the opinion that Miners' Asthma should be compensable; while five definitely expressed a contrary view.

Definition of Disability and Its Various Grades

There would seem to be no need to define disability and its various grades in any way different from the definitions applied in Acts compensating for occupational accidents.

The New York Law provides that disability means the state of being disabled from earning full wages at the work at which the employe was last employed. This disablement shall be treated as an accident except if it shall be determined that such employe is able to earn wages at any occupation which shall be neither unhealthful nor injurious, and such wages shall not equal his full wages prior to the date of his disablement. The compensation payable shall be a percentage of full compensation proportionate to the reduction in his earning capacity.

In Puerto Rico disability begins on the date on which the laborer shall present himself to the physician for treatment, provided, of course, that this date comes after the seven-day limit during which no compensation is payable.

There is in the New Jersey Law a provision excluding willful exposure to occupational diseases by

1. Not observing the rules of the Department posted in the plant.
2. Not truthfully stating the case to the employer as to previous hazardous employment.

Medical Board

It is strongly recommended that any Act passed for the purpose of compensating those incapacitated from occupational diseases shall provide for the creation of a Medical Board as an integral part of the administrative body, the special functions of which Medical Board shall be:

(a) to consider questions relating to occupational effects in individual cases; their decision as to medical facts to be regarded as final;

(b) to recommend to the Department of Labor and Industry the inclusion of occupational effects and conditions not specifically included in the language of the Act; as well as the elision of minor conditions which might be interpreted as compensable under the general provisions of the Act;

(c) in the event that the provisions of the Act limit the filing of claim to a period of one year following the cessation of employment, the Medical Board, upon reference, should have authority to give special consideration to such cases as may appear to have developed the effects of occupation after the expiration of a one-year period and not exceeding two years.

The members of the Commission are unanimously of the opinion that however the bureau or board having to do with the administration of a law for the compensation of occupational diseases may be constituted, the assistance of an impartial medical board would be of the greatest importance and advantage. One has only to read the decisions handed down by compensation tribunals as well as court decisions relating to the validity of compensation claims to realize the large number of absurdities that are perpetrated through the inability of lay officials to grasp the medical complexities involved. Not only does the lack of unbiased medical advice defeat the ends of justice, but the fact that claimants are usually given the benefit of a doubt results in a very large financial burden being unjustly placed upon industry. Doubts are easily created in the minds of those not familiar with the medical complexities involved. The diagnosis of occupational diseases and the correlation of the type and intensity of exposure with the symptoms developed are essentially technical and medical problems.

As to the number, qualifications, and manner of appointment of a Medical Board, there may be considerable latitude. Three well-qualified full-time medical men of special qualifications and experience, with a salary sufficiently attractive to retain them permanently on the Board, might be adequate to the requirements. An alternative might be one or two full-time men with well-qualified and satisfactorily paid medical referees in various parts of the State, giving part-time to the work of the Board.

In membership on the Medical Board should be:

(1) A physician who has devoted special attention to industrial hygiene and public health and who would be competent to evaluate the hazard factors. This member need not necessarily have any clinical experience.

(2) It seems probable that by far the largest number of claims which would come before such a Board would be for Silicosis and Miners' Asthma. There should, therefore, be a member or a number of members having special clinical experience with these two conditions.

(3) One or more members with general clinical experience and perhaps some special clinical experience and some knowledge of public health work or industrial medicine such as would come from experience with workers in large industrial plants.

The appointment of such a Board should be surrounded by such safeguards as would insure its non-political nature and a permanent tenure of office. The appointments might be made by the Governor, or by the Board itself, due consideration being given to recommendations made by such bodies as The Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania, organizations of industrial physicians, other industrial organizations, and labor organizations.

It has been suggested that if this Board acted in an advisory capacity, its various members would be subject to cross-examination. There are at least three precedents in various State Occupational Disease Laws which do not indicate that this is correct.

The Wisconsin Law provided that if a panel physician (one of a panel selected by the manufacturer) is not deemed to have impartially estimated the degree of permanent disability or the extent of temporary disability, the Commission shall have power to cause such employe to be examined by a physician selected by the Commission. The inference is that this physician's opinion is final.

The Ohio Statute specified that no compensation shall be paid to any claimant on account of any occupational diseases or accidents unless a medical advisor shall have examined such claimant for the purpose of determining the extent of such disease and the approximate time, place, and cause of its inception. This medical advisor, it is to be noted, is not subject to cross-examination.

In Massachusetts there is a provision that the Department or a member thereof may appoint a duly qualified, impartial physician to examine the employe and report. The fee for this service is Five Dollars and traveling expenses, but the Department may allow additional reasonable amounts in extraordinary cases and the insurer is required to reimburse the Department. These examiners are not subject to cross-examination.

Report of Legal Committee

Your legal Committee submits the following report:

We started our inquiry with a consideration of the terms of the amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania adopted in 1915, amending Section 21, Article 3 thereof so that it reads, inter alia, as follows:

> "The General Assembly may enact laws requiring the payment by employers, or employers and emloyes jointly, of reasonable compensation for injuries to employes arising in the course of their employment, and for occupational diseases of employes, whether or iot such injuries or diseases result in death, and regardless of fault of employer or employe, and fixing the basis of ascertainment of such compensation and the maximum and minimum limits thereof, and providing special or general remedies for the collection thereof."

I. Definition of Occupational Diseases

Any legislative act must, of course, be within the scope of the Constitution. In our judgment, we are confined in our legislation to "occupational diseases." This phrase has a significance in common speech and its interpretation as used in the Constitution should be confined to that significance.

Like many such phrases it is not capable of exact definition. We will not attempt one. Nevertheless, we can indicate what is and what is not an occupational disease. Lead poisoning, for example, has been recognized for some thousands of years as an occupational disease. It arises as a matter of common experience out of contact with lead occasioned by certain employments. Typhoid fever, although its origin might be traced to a water supply used by the employe in the course of his employment, would not be an occupational disease. It would be merely a coincidence that the sufferer became exposed to the disease in the course of his employment.

It is our judgment that a Pennsylvania act must be so drafted as to recognize this distinction and its phraseology, therefore, may not be as broad as that found in the laws of certain of the states.

II. Advisability of Legislation by Amending Definition of "Inquiry in Workmen's Compensation Act of 1915

Your Committee as a matter of logical process, next considered the advisabality of extending the present Workmen's Compensation Act to cover occupational diseases by the simple process of amendment of the definition of the terms "injury" and "personal injury" as found in Article 3 Section 301 of the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1915. There are a number of objections to this method of procedure which may be pointed out. Basically, however, there are marked differences between accidents and occupational diseases which make it necessary to provide different methods of procedure for each. This difference has been frequently commented upon by the courts.

III. Advisability of Separate Act Supplemental to Workmen's Compensation Act of 1915

Your Committee has also considered the advisability of providing for occupational diseases by a series of amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1915. It is satisfied that confusion could not be avoided if an attempt were made to weave this new and complicated subject of compensation into the present Workmen's Compensation Act. The act should be in the nature of a supplement, complete in itself in so far as the subject involved differs from that of accident, but should by reference adopt the basic principles and definitions and the machinery provided for the administration of the present law relating to accidents.

IV. Advisability of All Inclusive Coverage as Against a List or Schedule of Diseases

"All inclusive coverage" in the sense in which it is urged by some of its advocates would include all diseases arising out of the employment. Such a provision would not be a proper application of the language of our constitutional amendment.

If the coverage should be limited to "occupational diseases" generally with no definition of the phrase attempted, the compensation board and the courts would be called upon to determine whether a given disease was or was not "occupational." Some diseases, such as lead poisoning, which has been recognized as occupational for centuries, might cause no great difficulty, but many others of more modern development, concerning which there is no common knowledge, could only be brought within the act by presenting extensive expert testimony for the instruction of the board and the courts, testimony of a nature sufficient to warrant a finding of fact and a conclusion of law on the question. It should be noted in passing that competent testimony of this nature would not be easily secured. The field to be covered would require hightly specialized knowledge. There are relatively few persons who have studied the subject intensively enough to be able to give an opinion upon which reliance might safely be placed. This would be particularly true in a litigated case which would naturally give rise to divergent opinions.

If the legislature attempted a general definition in language sufficiently broad to be generally inclusive, it would not simplify the problem for the board and the courts.

It seems to your legal committee that the determination of what is or is not an occupational disease is a scientific question which should be settled by scientists, who have given special study to the subject, in advance of litigation and that it should not be left to the decision of boards or courts in litigated cases.

This view is confirmed by a reading of the decisions of the courts in those states in which no precise definition of occupational diseases is provided.

It will be true that in certain cases a newly dicovered occupational disease would be found not to be included in the list or schedule. It might be equally possible, however, for a person suffering from an occupational disease to be denied compensation for the reason that he was unable to secure the proper expert testimony to support his case upon presentation to the board and the courts, or that he was unable to convince the board or the courts that the disease from which he was suffering was within the meaning of the word "occupational." This situation we believe would undoubtedly develop in the case of diseases of a temporary nature that did not warrant the expense incident to such procedure.

The suggestion of the Medical Committee that a board of competent experts be created, which could, by administrative act extend the list of diseases in the light of new scientific inquiry and knowledge and eliminate such as were determined not to be occupational, would be the best way of handling the matter. Your Legal Committee agrees with this suggestion as a proper solution. Its comment upon its feasibility will be discussed under a different head.

V. Advisability of Column Two "Description of Process"

Your Committee has considered the advisability of continuing, as a legislative matter, to employ the two columns which have been set up by the Medical Committee. We are of the opinion that the two columns should be used with a proper interpretation as to their meaning. The following indicates the form of the two columns as contained in the Medical Committee's report:

Column One Description of Disease	Column Two Description of Process
1. Poisoning by lead, mercury, phosphorus, arsenic	Any process involving the handling of or hazardous exposure to lead, mercury, phosphorus, arsenic, their preparations or compounds.

We note that there are two rather widely divergent views as to the use to which the second column should be put. In some jurisdictions the second column has been interpreted as a limitation so that an employe suffering from the disease set forth in column one is not entitled to compensation if it appear that he was not engaged in the process or processes set opposite to it in column two; notwithstanding the fact that the evidence disclosed that he acquired the disease in the course of his occupation, his claim being barred upon the ground that he was not actually engaged in the process described in column two but was engaged in some collateral process. Your committee is of the opinion that the act should not permit of such an interpretation of column two.

On the other hand, there is a suggestion that column two should raise a presumption in favor of the clamiant and that if he establish that he was employed in connection with any of the processes listed in column two and suffered from the corresponding disease set out in column one, that this would constitute prima facie evidence of the fact that his disease occurred in the course of and arose out of his employment.

As between the two constructions your Committee would favor the latter with the further qualification that a claimant suffering from a listed occupational disease would not be barred from compensation although not engaged in the corresponding process listed in column two if he should establish as a matter of fact that he acquired the disease in the course of and as incident to his occupation.

If this should be considered as swinging too far toward the claimant, it is suggested as a matter of procedure that column two be employed to avoid the necessity of proving by expert testimony that the corresponding disease in column one is incident to the process described in column two, but that it shall not relieve the claimant of the necessity of offering evidence to show that he was engaged in the particular process described and of presenting such additional testimony as may be required of him to indicate the exposure or hazard to which he was subjected in connection with such processes.

It is also suggested that the heading of column one should be so phrased as to limit the operation of the act to the disease therein listed and to avoid thereby any contention that the act constituted a limitation upon the right to suit at common law for damages for a disease not listed, but alleged to be due to the employer's negligence.

VI. Point of Time at which Rights and Duties Begin

It is obvious that in the operation of any legal system involving the establishment of reciprocal rights and duties there must be a point of time at which those rights and duties are determined to arise.

Examination of the British and American acts that give expression to this necessity and of the court decisions in those state where the legislature has neglected such expression, indicates that the time for most purposes should be fixed as of the date of disability. Other suggestions have at times been made, but in most instances the date of disability has ultimately been selected.

It is, therefore, recommended that the date of disability be the date as of which the duty of the employer to pay compensation shall arise and as to which certain duties imposed upon the employe shall be related.

This will make the date of disability correspond to the date of injury or personal injury by accident in the present act.

In the British Workmen's Compensation Act of 1925, rewriting the act of 1906 in this particular, it is provided that:

"The disablement or suspension shall be treated as the happening of the accident."

This phraseology is followed by the New York and Minnesota acts which are based upon the British. The New Jersey act also makes the time of disability correspond with the date of the accident as contemplated by the laws relating to accident; chapter 124, Laws of 1924; chapter 134, Laws of 1926.

In the cast of Textileather Corp. v. Great American Indemnity Co., 108 N. J. Law 120; 156 Atl. 840 (1931) it was held that the time fixed for compensation for a disability or death occurring by reason of an occupational disease is when incapacity or death occurs and not when the poison specified makes its first appearance. The Wisconsin act of 1931 expressly provides that "the time of 'injury,' 'occurence of injury' or the 'date of injury' is the date of the accident which caused the injury or the date when the disability from the occupational disease first occurs." Prior to the passage of this act it had been held in Wisconsin that the time of accident within the occupational disease statute is the time when disability first occurs; Zurich General Accident etc. Co. v. Indus. Co., 203 Wis. 135; 233 N. W. 772 (1930).

Before the passage of the act of 1931 it was necessary for the court to establish the foregoing rule as a judicial rule rather than a statutory one.

In the states wherein no statutory provision has been made to cover this point the courts have established as a judicial matter the rule indicated in the Zurich case.

In California, in the case of Blanshard v. Indus. Acc. Com. 68 Cal. App. 65; 228 Pac. 359 (1924) it was held that the statute of limitations commenced to run from the date when the injured employe had knowledge of the disease, but this rule was subsequently changed in the case of Assoc. Indemn. Corp. v. Indus. Acc. Com., 12 Pac. (2d) 1075 (1932), in Connecticut a similar rule was laid down in Roufsu v. Collins Co., 114 Conn. 24 (1931). In Massachusetts it was laid down as early as Johnson's case, 217 Mass. 288; 104 N. E. 1735 (1914) and followed in Bergeron's Case, 137 N. E. 739 (1923) and other cases.

VII What Should be Considered Disability

Under the British act two elements are considered in connection with disability. One, the physical incapacity to work, either total or partial, and second, the suspension from usual employment on account of having contracted an occupational disease. The American acts which follow the British, namely Minnesota and New York, refer to disability as the "state of being disabled from earning full wages the work in which the employe was last employed."

It is obvious that the disability might arise either from incapacity to work at any employment or simply from the inadvisability of continuing in the employment to which the disease is attributed.

There would seem to be considerable reason in describing the employe's condition, as the British do, as disablement or suspension. Nevertheless, none of the American states in their statutes on the subject have seen fit to deal with the matter as the British did, but, of course, in those states with the general laws no such provision has been made by court ruling.

Your committee, therefore, is of the opinion that it would be reasonable to adopt some such definition as that found in the New York statute.

It is anticipated that some difficulty will arise in determination of the date of disability. This is frequently a difficult question even in accident cases.

Referring again to the British act we find that the matter has been simplified by the provision that the certifying surgeon and official of the government shall examine the claimant and certify the date of disability (Act of 1925 Section 43 (2)). His certificate is final as to this particular question. Wilsons & Clyde Coal Co. v. Flynn, 1930 A. C. 513, Scottish House of Lords.

Such a provision would not, in the opinion of your Legal Committee, be feasible under our law. This duty might, however, be imposed upon a medical board in accordance with the suggestions hereinafter set forth.

VIII Provisions as to Time

The element of time presents more complexity in connection with occupational disease than with accident. This has appeared from the discussion under the two prior heads. So far as your Committee can determine, the time limitations in the various acts are arbitrary ones and no reasonable conclusion can be reached based upon a process of reasoning. The following are various elements of time as they appeared to your committee:

1. The Period of Time Elapsing Between Termination of Employment and the Date of Disability.

This period has been fixed at one year by the British Workmen's Compensation Act. It is followed in the American acts of New York, Minnesota, Ohio, and New Jersey with some qualifications.

It is in line with the rule as to accidents in Pennsylvania and should be followed.

2. Extension of time.

In the New York Act provision is made by which the Compensation Board can extend the one year limitation to two years in cases where justice requires it. This is in accord with the Medical Committee's report.

3. Limitation as Based on Date of Exposure.

In New Jersey the claim must be filed within a year from the date of the last exposure.

4. Requirements as to Residence.

The Ohio Act contains a provision peculiar to itself, namely, that the employe claiming compensation shall have been a resident of the state of Ohio "for ninety days next preceding the contraction of the disease * * * or for ninety days next preceding the contraction of the disease has been employed by an employer" who is within the industrial disease provision of the Ohio Compensation Act.

5. Special Limitations Relating to Disability.

The Ohio Act in Section 1465-72b of the Workmen's Compensation Law provides that claims shall be barred "unless within four months after the disability, due to the disease began, application shall be made to the Industrial Commission of Ohio or to the employer in the event that such employer has elected to pay compensation direct."

In New Jersey the disability must be shown to have commenced "within five months after the termination" of the exposure alleged to have caused the disease.

6 Exposure as Related to Date Act Goes into Effect.

Another element of time to be considered is that relating to the passage of the act. In Connecticut where the phraseology of the act changed from time to time, the date of the disability was considered as the determining one, notwithstanding the fact that the disease might have been contracted at a time when it was not compensable; Roufsu v. Collins Co. 114 Conn. 24 (1931); Dombrowsky v. Jennings & Griffin, 103 Conn. 720; 131 Atl. 745. In this connection it should be observed that a situation might arise by which a man who has contracted an occupational disease was out of employment from a date prior to and until a date after an occupational disease act should go into effect, and might then become disabled. If the date of the disability were considered as the date of the accident he could be held entitled to recover compensation although the entire exposure occurred prior to the passage of the act. It has been suggested that some provision should be made requiring at least thirty days' employment at an occupation to the nature of which the disease is attributed, within the first year following the date when the act becomes effective.

7. In Death Cases.

Another consideration of time relates to death cases. By the present compensation act the defendants are given the right to file a claim within one year after the death provided, however, that the death must occur within three hundred weeks of the date of the accident. A number of the state provide for an extension of time in the case of death. It would seem advisable to employ the rules relating to accidents as far as possible. The provisions of Section 315 of the Compensation Act of 1915 should, therefore, be followed.

8. Notice to Employer.

Provision should be made for the giving of notice as promptly as possible of the existence of an occupational disease to the employer and of any disability arising therefrom. It is suggested that notice should be given within ninety days of the date of disability to correspond with the present accident law, with proper provisions as to protection to cover cases in which the disability is not at first known to be due to the occupation.

9. In Silicosis Cases.

The Medical Committee further recommends in the case of silicosis that in order to establish a claim for compensation the claimant must have had two years aggregate employment involving exposure to silica dust, all occurring after the passage of the act in an occupation or occupations recognized as involving such exposure, and all of which exposure must have been in the State of Pennsylvania. Your Legal Committee sees no reason why this provision may not properly be given legislative expression.

IX What Rule or Rules Shall be Applied in Determining Which Employer Shall Pay?

This query brings into question the basic frame work of our act. We have heretofore suggested that compensation be provided for death or disease due to the nature of any employment in which the workman was employed at any time within one year previous to the date of the disability.

We have defined occupational diseases by name and the process in which they may be expected to occur.

We have made some provisions for the manner of proof of the relation of the disease to the employment.

We have established the date to which the obligation to pay compensation shall be related; but we have not definitely determined who shall pay the compensation. This latter question presents one of the most difficult problems to be met in the consideration of the subject.

The British Act prescribes a definite rule. Where the "disease is due to the nature of any employment in which the workman was employed at any time within the twelve months previous to the date of the disablement or suspension, whether under one or more employers," the last employer pays the compensation, and recovers if he can all or part of such payment from prior employers, who are within the twelve months period.

He cannot be heard to explain that the workman's disease was neither contracted, aggravated or accelerated while in his employ.

Neither the American statutes nor the American judicial rulings as we read them follow this doctrine fully.

Under them the last employer appears to be in position to defend upon the ground, that he neither caused, aggravated or accelerated the disease, and in some states, he may show that the disease was only aggravated or accelerated by the employment and that some prior employment was responsible for the origin of the disease, or its development, in which event he is chargeable with but a proportionate part of the award.

But the general rule would seem to be that where the last employment was of the nature to which the disease was due and it is found to be a contributing cause in the disability such last employer pays the compensation. In two states, he has the right to bring in other employers to contribute thereto as provided in the British Act.

This latter rule either with or without the proceeding for contributions would seem to be the soundest procedure from an American view point. And if there were any questions as to the source of the disease the employe should be permitted to name in his claim all of his employers within the year, to the nature of whose business his disease might be attributed.

The rule as indicated would make the disability the determining factor and in cases of conflict between successive insurance carriers would throw the burden on the last one, unless perhaps it could be shown that during the period covered by the final carrier the conditions of employment were such that the disease was neither contracted, aggravated or accelerated therein.

The rule as laid down by the courts of Massachusetts and Wisconsin is in accord with the foregoing suggestions. This rule appears to come as near to covering the facts of the various cases as any that can be made, although at times it may seem to operate inequitably.

X. Statement of History from Employe in Connection with Employment or Re-Employment

If the last employer as to the nature of whose business the occupational disease from which the claimant is suffering is to be held liable for a condition which may have accumulated over a period of time and have had its origin in other employments, it would seem reasonable that such employer should have a very real means of protection. This necessity for protection is recognized in a number of the statutes beginning with the British and followed in all those acts, the framework of which is based upon the British act. This protection is given in a provision to the following effect.

> "If it is proved that the workman has at the time of entering the employment wilfully and falsely represented himself in writing as not having previously suffered from the disease, compensation shall not be payable."

It would seem to your Committee that this provision constitutes a rather limited protection. Many diseases are of such a nature that the employe himself may not know his own condition and certainly may not know the source of any trouble from which he is suffering and a history of the exposure would be necessary to put the employer on his guard as to the possible condition of the applicant for employment.

A number of the statutes beginning with the British contain a provision requiring the employe to give the names of his former employers. This statement is related primarily to the possible need of the employer to fall back on former employers for a contribution to compensation to be paid. Whether our act provides for a system of contribution or not it would seem that the history as to the former employers, the character of the business conducted and the nature of the exposure to an occupational disease similar to that to which the employe will be exposed in his new employment, is a material element of information. Therefore, the employer should be entitled to inquire and the employe should be required to give information as to the names and addresses of former employers and the character of work performed by the applicant certainly in so far as it relates to the relevant exposure.

XI. Medical Board

Your legal Committee has considered the suggestions made by the Medical Committee relative to the creation of a medical board and the function of that board. In its opinion expert medical advice or the advice of chemists specially qualified should play an important part in the administration of the law. Your Committee, however, as a legal matter must consider the question in this way.

A board of experts, either entirely medical or medical and chemical could be appointed to handle the subject of industrial diseases in the same manner in which the present Workmen's Compensation Board functions in connection with accidents. The board of experts would have to hear testimony, make a record upon facts presented and make its findings, reach its conclusions of law and take its action in such a way that the matter could be reviewed by a court on appeal. Upon this appeal the rules applicable to the present board would be applicable, namely that the record would have to show evidence legally sufficient to sustain the findings, conclusions and action of the board. The findings of fact of the board, however, would be accepted by the court as final if they were supported by competent testimony of record but they could not be based upon the independent medical or expert knowledge of the board not presented in evidential form. Of course, the expert knowledge of the board could be employed in determining from the facts and evidence presented what should be the correct conclusion. But the basic facts of the conclusion would have to be a matter of record.

If a medical board or a board composed of medical men and of chemists were to be appointed, not as a substitute for the Workmen's Compensation Board, but as an additional unit in the compensation system, the purpose of which would be to assist the board in the proper administration of the occupational disease act, the findings of such medical board or its advice or the findings or advice of any of its members would be in the same position as that of the impartial physician or expert, provision for whose appointment by the board or referee is made in Section 420 of the present act. If the Workmen's Compensation Board or a referee founded his findings, conclusions and action upon the advice given him by the expert, that advice would have to appear upon the record and unless both sides agreed to the contrary the expert giving the advice would have to appear upon request and submit to cross-examination.

As a practical matter your Legal Committee would suggest that such a board as that proposed by the Medical Committee should be appointed, made up of qualified physicians and perhaps including a qualified chemist having knowledge of plant conditions. And provision should be made in the act to the effect that it shall be the duty of the Workmen's Compensation Board in every instance in which a claim for compensation for an occupational disease is filed to refer the matter to the medical board who should, or a member of which should examine the claimant and the plant in which the disease is said to have arisen, and the medical board as a board should then file a report with the compensation board which should include the findings of the medical board relative to the following matters.

1. Whether or not the claimant was suffering from a listed occupational disease.
2. Whether or not the claimant was disabled by such disease and if so the date of the disability. If no date were determined the date of the examination might be taken as the date of the disability.
3. Statement as to the degree of disability, particularly relating to the question as to whether the claimant was disabled from carrying on with the occupation to which the disease was attributed and if not whether he was capable of engaging in other lines of physical or mental activity wherein he would not be exposed to the hazard of the occupational disease.
4. The opinion of the board as to the probable future duration of the disease.
5. The opinion of the board as to whether or not the disease was due to the occupation to which it was attributed by the claimant.
6. The name or names of the member or members who made the actual examination of the claimant and the plant and upon whose report as to the facts found and observed the report of the board is based.

Copies of the report as filed with the Compensation Board should be sent to the claimant and the defendant or the recognized representatives of either one of them at least twenty days before the time fixed for a hearing with the direction that either party should sreve notice on the other and and upon the board not less than ten days before the hearing of their desire to contest the report. If they should so desire to contest the report, the member or members of the board upon whose direct observation either of the claimant or the plant the findings of the board had been based should be made available for cross-examination.

In any event the report of the board should be admitted in evidence as to the medical and chemical matters stated therein. Such report, however, should not be accepted as conclusive of such matters.

Recommendations as to Extension of one year rule as to Limitations

In addition to the matter suggested above as properly to be included in the report of the Medical Board, there might also be included, when the facts justify it, a recommendation relative to the extension of the Statute of Limitations from the general one year provision up to the ultimate two-year limit. We assume that the justifying facts would include a finding that the disability had not occurred within the period of one year from the date of the termination of the employment or that the disability had occurred but the claimant had not received competent advice as to the cause of his disability and was, therefore, not put on notice as to the necessity of filing a claim within the one-year period. These two findings should be the basis of any recommendation.

Recommendation as to the Extension of the Schedule of Diseases

A further function of the Medical Board might properly be the recommendation either to the Workmen's Compensation

Board or to the Department of Labor or to the Industrial Board to the effect that a disease had been determined by the Board to be occupational in nature and that its inclusion in the list of occupational diseases was advisable with a statement as to the process in connection with which the disease occurred.

It might be advisable to provide for the giving of notice of the intention to make the recommendation so that a full discussion thereof might be had before the Medical Board, and provision should also be made relative to the time and manner in which the Workmen's Compensation Board or the Department of Labor and Industry should include the additional disease and the process among those stated to be compensable.

It is clear to your Committee that the inclusion of a new disease could not be made retroactive but, otherwise, such provision might be held valid, although the Committee would hesitate to commit itself finally on this phase of the matter.

Discussion

The basis of the committee's opinion relative to the status of the Medical Board is found in the cases of Seitzinger v. Fort Pitt Brewing Co., 294. Pa. 253 and Jones v. United Iron and Metal Co., 99 Super. 394. In the latter case it was pointed out that under Sections 420 and 422 the Act of June 26, 1919, P. L. 642:

> "A referee may appoint experts to make an independent investigation. Before a referee or board can legally base any findings upon facts ascertained from an independent investigation or upon the opinion of experts selected and appointed, the expert witnesses must appear for examination and cross-examination, under oath, as in the case of any witness."

XII Conclusion

Your Committee in conclusion can merely state that it regrets that limitations of time have prevented it from completing what is an extremely interesting study. The best that it could do under the circumstances was to examine the present existing acts both in Great Britain and in the United States and to secure through leading decisions arising under those acts some comprehension of the questions that had to be met and the manner in which they were met. These decisions were necessarily confined to those of the courts. It would be necessary in order to get a more intimate view of the operation of these acts to discuss administrative problems with members of the various compensation boards and to examine the opinions of such boards. This it was impossible for your Committee to do. This report is submitted in the hope that it may to a degree aid the Commission in understanding some of the legal problems involved.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania

Commission on Compensation for Occupational Diseases

Report of Committee on Scope and Cost

Your Committee on Scope and Cost has endorsed to determine the extent of the effect which occupational disease legislation would have if applied to Pennsylvania industries; the cost which would be incurred thereby; and the probable economic effect. In this connection it has been necessary for us to carefully study both the legislation and the experience of other States, and with the aid of such other statistical and actuarial facts as have been made available to us from many sources, to establish a basis for measuring the effect of such legislation in our own State.

At this point, it is important to note that we have been unable to find any record of a report covering a thorough investigation into this question prior to adoption of legislation by any other state. We, therefore, found it necessary to construct our own plan of procedure without the aid of such possible prior experience. From the information received by us it appears that in many, if not in most cases, the legislation was adopted without any particular attempt to measure either the actual extent of its application or the cost, and very few states appear to have considered it necessary to differentiate between the peculiar problems of disease compensation as compared with those of accident compensation. The only recent reference to this subject is found in the action of a Commission appointed by the Governor of Maryland in 1930 and which reported in 1931 as to the advisability of any changes which might be made in the Workmen's Compensation Act of that State. The conclusion of that Commission was negative as to the inclusion of compensation for occupational diseases and the subject was not referred to in their report.

Primarily, of course, the studies made by this Committee while general in character in so far as the experience of other States is concerned, have been definitely directed in a very particular sense by the report of the Medical Committee and by such unanimous conclusions as have already been reached by the Commission. For example, the scope of such legislation in the sense of the extent to which it would apply to Pennsylvania industry is dependent in a large sense upon the diseases listed for consideration and the precision with which they are defined. And, likewise, any estimate of the cost of such legislation would be modified by the degree of limitation and/or legal presumption indicated for the Schedule of diseases and occupations. Discussion of these matters with particular reference to their importance as elements in our studies will be made later on in our report.

The structure of workmen's compensation legislation in the United States and the results obtained from such legislation are sometimes compared with the structure and the results existent in Europe and it is at times inferred that what is acceptable in Europe can be equally acceptable in the United States. We feel that that inference is not entirely safe, for the social influences at work in Europe are not the same as those at work in the United States. As a specific and an important example, it should be remembered that many of the European countries have in effect a somewhat general system of social insurance and that where such a system is in effect there is not as much conscious or unconscious urge for the liberalization of workmen's compensation legislation as there is in the United States.

Legislation in Other States

In foreign countries, occupational diseases are generally compensated, and have been in some instances for over fifty years. For example, Switzerland's law was passed in 1877 and the German one in 1883. Most of the foreign laws give a schedule of diseases for which compensation should be paid.

"General Coverage" laws compensating occupational diseases are in force in California, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Missouri, North Dakota, and Wisconsin.

A schedule list of diseases is incorporated in the following states—the number of diseases compensated are in parentheses —; Illinois (3), Kentucky (1), Minnesota (23), New Jersey (10), New York (27), Ohio (21).

A second column, indicating the processes or occupations in which occurrence of the disease appears, in a part of the laws of Minnesota, New York.

There is a separate law in Illinois covering occupational diseases not part of the Workmen's Compensation Accident Law.

The last employer is held responsible following the English procedure, in two States, Minnesota and New York; in those States he is held responsible for the disability but may appeal to the Industrial Commission for a distribution of the cost of the compensation among other employers.

The claim must be filed within twelve months after the termination of employment in Minnesota, New Jersey, and New York, again following the English procedure.

The responsibility is placed upon the employe in cases of intoxication or self-inflicted injury in California and New Jersey, because of the incorporation of the Act in their Workmen's Compensation Law for accidents.

In order to further protect the employer, an untruthful statement to an employer in regard to previous experience of the disease places the responsibility upon the employe in Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, and Ohio.

A physician of the Compensation Board may examine the individual claiming compensation in Ohio and in Massachusetts. In the former State an autopsy may be performed by a medical representative of the Industrial Commission. In Wisconsin an employe has the right to a choice of any physician on a panel presented by the Board.

There are a number of special clauses in the various laws. In Ohio, an employe to claim compensation must be a resident of the State for a period of ninety days. In Minnesota, provision was made that no disease contracted prior to the enactment of the law was to be compensated

Not Health, Old Age or General Sickness Insurance

The Committee has felt that its field of inquiry was definitely limited to a consideration of Workmen's Compensation and that its field did not include the consideration of other and more general forms of social insurance. The Committee has consequently intended to consider only those diseases definitely and commonly associated with industrial processes and only those characteristic of such diseases as may arise out of the employe's actual performance of his normal duties. We recognize and wish to avoid the possibility that occupational disease legislation, either by law or by administration of the law, may be so extended as to cover practically all manner of illnesses with which the individual employe might be afflicted. Under such conditions, compensation would become, in effect, a form of health insurance.

Again, compensation for occupational diseases might readily be so developed in certain industrial communities that it would amount, for all practical purposes, to old age compensation or to insurance against unemployment. It is most definitely the opinion of this Committee that every precaution should be taken in law or in the administration of the law to prevent any form of workmen's compensation from being extended or diverted into fields other than that which is properly its own.

General Law or Schedule

One of the major questions studied by the Commission early in its deliberations was whether the so-called schedule type of occupational disease legislation would be preferable to the so-called blanket or all inclusive type. The Commission decided that in its opinion the schedule type would be preferable for the following reasons:

In a disease schedule of reasonable length, it is possible to include all occupational diseases which can properly be considered as of real importance in Pennsylvania.

Employe, employer and insurance carrier alike will have a reasonably sound and definite basis for mutual understandings as to the intended scope of compensation.

The inclusion of a schedule is an aid in the administration of an occupational compensation act.

The inclusion of a schedule provides some basis for preestimating the cost of compensation for disease disability.

Quite incidentally, and without attaching too much weight to precedent, it is of interest to note that the schedule plan was followed in the early European laws, in many of the compensation laws of South and Central America, in Great Britain, in most of the British Dominions, in all of the Canadian Provinces, and in six of the eleven states in the United States in which the Workmen's Compensation Act has been specifically extended to include any occupational diseases. The twelfth state providing occupational disease compensation is Massachusetts, in which the wording of the compensation act has been construed by the courts to include occupational diseases.

Perhaps the only important disadvantage to the use of a schedule of diseases is the fact that a disease not now considered of recognizable importance may become of relatively great importance at some future date because of a change in industrial process, the development of new industrial processes, or the introduction into the state of large industries new to the state. It is felt, however, that this difficulty, if it be a dfficulty, is not insurmountable and that certain provisions of the report of the Commission will provide proper offsetting measures.

As to the general coverage laws, it is to be noted from the legal record of the states having them, that the courts have been compelled to legislate by judicial decision in the place of the Legislatures, and not with unqualified success. In Massachusetts, for example, and in Wisconsin as well, the feeling is general that the law is still open to dispute as to its coverage and administration.

Minnesota, New York, and Ohio have schedules consisting of two parallel columns, Column One being headed "Description of Diseases," and Column Two being headed "Description of Process." In most instances, Column Two has evidently been intended to provide a limitation as to the occupations in which an individual must have been employed if the disease for which he claims compensation is to be considered occupational. In all three States the contracting of a scheduled disease by an employe engaged in an occupation listed in Column Two constitutes prima facie evidence of employer liability.

The reason for this is evident, if the philosophy underlying existing Workmen's Compensation legislation is considered. Such legislation is, in effect, a modification, extensive though that modification may be, of the old Employers' Liability Laws. It still leaves with the individual employer the responsibility for the compensation of those who are injured because of being in his employ. In view of this fact, it is only equitable to provide a reasonable amount of protection for the employer against false claims. As a single example of the need for such protection, it is known that there are on record a large number of cases of lead poisoning involving persons not connected in any way with the handling of lead or lead products in their industrial occupations.

"Description of Process"

Because of its obvious bearing on the scope and therefore the cost of compensation, the Committee made a study of the effect of including a column equivalent to "Description of Process" in any new occupational disease legislation. In considering that question, it must be recognized at the start that the usefulness of such a column, in assuring proper compensation to employes occupationally injured and in providing proper compensation to employes occupationally injured and in providing proper protection to employers against claims for non-occupational disability will depend upon the limitations placed upon such a column and upon the type of presumption its inclusion is intended to infer.

For instance, in England, if any employe develops a scheduled disease and has been exposed to the process described as being pertinent to that disease, the legal presumption is that he contracted his disease in the course of his occupation. If an employe contracts a scheduled disease while engaged in some occupation not mentioned in the description of process pertinent to that disease, the burden of proving that his disease is of occupational origin lies with the workman, although he is not barred from claiming compensation solely because his occupation was not mentioned in the appropriate place in the schedule.

The Committee fully realizes that costs will be affected by the limitation or by any direct or implied presumption of a second column and by the interpretation of the word "hazardous." This latter difficulty will be removed if there is a Medical Board with full power.

Tendency to Expand Compensation Legislation

Although Occupational Diseases should be considered as distinct from accidents, the experience of the State in this latter field must be borne in mind. Certain tendencies therein are clearly evident in this Commonwealth as well as elsewhere and it is considered probable that similar results will be produced if provision is made for the compensation of Occupational Disease disability.

This Committee believes that experience has generally justified the existence of Workmen's Compensation as applied to accidental injury as a social and as a business measure. It feels that neither employers nor employes would desire to revert to the conditions preceding the enactment of the principle of compensation into statute law, nor would desire to again rely on employers' liability laws for the compensation of industrial accidents. Nevertheless, there is ample evidence that during the past few years insurance carriers have found in Pennsylvania and in many other states that their Workmen's Compensation business as applied to accidents or to diseases, has been an unprofitable line. This condition also applies to the State Insurance Funds, at least as far as the last few years are concerned.

The indicated compensation insurance rates in a number of the more important industries in Pennsylvania over a period of years reflects a similar tendency for compensation costs to increase. That tendency is shown by the following table—

The original Pennsylvania Workmen's Compensation Law of 1915 was materially liberalized by the amendments of 1919 and of 1927. By those changes, the length of the waiting period was reduced, and the amout payable as compensation was increased. In addition, there has been a distinct extension of the law beyond its original intent, by the decisions of the Workmen's Compensation Board and of the Courts.

For instance, it is not believed that the original intent of the Workmen's Compensation Law in Pennsylvania was to include within its scope compensation for disease disability. But, there are at least forty-eight different diseases for which compensation has been allowed, as listed in the following pages. Other examples of the extention of Compensation to disability for diseases are shown in the cases of Sincavage v. Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company—"Neurasthenia—inability to will to do work, caused by disease—total disability." Workmen's Compensation Board XII, 1927, p. 475-6-7. McClay v. Keystone Spring Mills Company—"anthrax—anthrax bacilli getting in contact with the body is violence." W. C. Board XII, 1927, p. 424-5.

Common Law Cases

In some industries in which diseases commonly recognized as occupational may occur, employers have made special provisions for the protection of their workers, and to provide for them in case of illness. In some instances wages have been paid for the period of disability, and, in others, medical care has been provided. In some of these cases, of course, the interest of the employer in the welfare of his employes may be due to his desire to reduce or eliminate the possibility of a suit at Common Law. An effort has been made to determine the number of cases brought under Common Law by an employe suffering from diseases attributable to industry. A number of such cases in this and in neighboring jurisdictions have come to the attention of the committee. Very recently a settlement was made in the amount of $8,000 to a man who had manganese poisoning. A relatively large number of cases in New Jersey have recently been compensation for silicosis. It is estimated that Common Law suits covering silicosis claims in the United States now amount to nearly fifty million dollars. Court cases covering radium poisoning in New Jersey were matters of wide newspaper comment several years ago. Just how general or wide such decisions have been, this committee was unable to learn. However, there seems to be a growing tendency for bringing suits of this kind and for juries to render verdicts favoring the plaintiff and awarding relatively large sums for damages. On the other hand, we have no evidence of widespread litigation in Pennsylvania as compared with other industrial states. It appears that such claims are much more common in states having laws providing for compensation for occupational diseases than would be expected in view of the fact that they have such legislation. Ohio is an exception because its compensation law bars common law recovery against employers complying with the act.

Increasing Costs of Compensation

As affecting compensation in general, there have appeared a number of other tendencies which this committee feels should be weighed in considering any new compensation legislation. These have been well summarized in a statement of the Industrial Commission of Ohio, which operates the State Fund of that State. The quotations are from the Ohio State Insurance Manual of Rules and Rates No. 20, dated 1932, Pages 4 to 11.

"The average compensation cost per claim has developed an increase of 6.7% during the last year, while the increase of 1931 over 1929 amounts to 9.4%.

During a period of depression when the injured employe's job is not available, there is a tendency to prolong the recovery period into the period of unemployment. This is presenting a serious problem to the fund and demands the utmost cooperation of employers and attending physicians if the interests of these beneficiaries with meritorious claims are to be protected, and prevent the increasing of rates to employers to a point that will seriously handicap Ohio industry.

However, there has developed an increasing tendency in cost of new claims as well as older claims due to the prolonging of the healing period and tendency to over stress the extent of disability.

Attending physicians, hospitals and the courts have contributed in this increasing trend which is of great concern.

The fund is experiencing an abnormally increasing cost per claim in compensation to the injured employe, and in medical cost to attending physicians, nurses, and hospitals.

There is a marked tendency for some physicians and hospitals to prolong the treatment of injured workers, and unnecessarily require special nursing services. This has resulted in the average medical cost per claim increasing 12% during the past year, and an increase of 20% over 1929.

The trend of reduced wage rates becomes a factor in reducing the premuim income per man exposed as the rates are based upon the payroll of the employer, while the benefits do not decrease in the same proportion.

The amount of payments by the fund on claims of employes of uninsured employers increased 15% during the past year.

The general surplus of the fund has been reduced from $2,117,962.22 to $750,568.58 during 1931, a total reduction of $1,367,393.64, thus disclosing the serious problem to which the fund is being subjected. This condition is the result of factors accompanying the industrial depression which is giving the Workmen's Compensation principle throughout the entire country a severe test and grave concern to its administrators.

Due to the various factors previously referred to, it has been found necessary to increase the average basic rate level approximately 17%.

Workmen's compensation rates throughout the country have been increased. During the past year rates of private insurance carriers in other states have been increased approximately 10%, and private carriers of Workmen's compensation insurance are now appealing for another increase of 25% in rates due to the serious emergency presented by the effect of the industrial depression upon Workmen's Compensation.

The experience of the Pennsylvania State Fund, from 1930 to 1932 in particular, offers similar evidence. The cost of compensation per accident among commercial employers has risen from $42 to $53 per case, and in the coal industry it has risen from $103 to $174 per accident reported. For the anthracite coal industry alone, the pure premium (by which is meant the losses paid in relation to audited payroll) has risen from $1.38 in 1922 to $4.34 in 1931. In the bituminous industry, the pure premium has risen from $1.40 in 1922 to $3.78 in 1931. These increases are due in some part, of course, to the liberalization of the law. Similar figures available for other industrial states indicate a similar condition.

This question of cost is a matter of prime importance. The committee recognizes that the continuance and proper working of a compensation system has a direct relation to the burden of cost imposed by that system. The committee has had its attention drawn to the fact that there has been a continuous increase in the cost of compensation under the Pennsylvania act since 1916. This increase is made perfectly clear from an examination of insurance rates covering different forms of employment. It has been suggested that this increase has been due to changes in the legislation, to interpretation of that legislation and currently, at least, to a reduction and disorganization of payrolls. It is not the purpose of the committee to endeavor to determine the point at which the cost of compensation will tend to break down its operation. Nevertheless, it is obvious that there is such a point and this thought must be taken into consideration in connection with the extension of compensation legislation to cover occupational diseases.

Danger of Racketeering

We have previously referred to some of the factors responsible for the trend upward in the cost of compensation for accidental injury and to the fact that these same factors may tend to have a similar effect upon the cost of compensation for occupational disease disability, unless carefully and properly limited. There is another, perhaps a more insidious, and certainly an equally important factor which we have not previously mentioned. We refer to the racketeering which is reputed to exist in relation to and as an outgrowth of Workmen's Compensation in certain states. As a recent indication of this abuse in the Workman's Compensation field, the following quotation from the New York Times for December 23, 1932, is pertinent:

"Albany, N. Y. Dec. 22.—Governor Roosevelt announced today that he had turned over to the New York Academy of Medicine for recommendations and suggestions from a professional standpoint a special report on medical abuses in compensation cases submitted to him by the Committee to Review Medical and Hospital Problems in connection with Workmen's Compensation Insurance, appointed by him early last year.

"The report was filed with Governor Roosevelt by Howard S. Cullman, chairman of the general committee, and by Dr. Adrian V. S. Lambert, chairman of the subcommittee on medical problems. An accompanying letter signed by Mr. Cullman and Dr. Lambert stated that the data contained in the report furnished 'uncontroverted evidence of existing rackets' in workmen's compensation in cases that should be eliminated at the earliest possible moment and urged the immediate appointment of a 'commissioner under the Moreland Act' with full power of subpoena and with the command of necessary funds, 'to clarify the present iniquitous and insidious system' and to 'strengthen the intent and operation of the workmen's compensation act for the benefit of those injured in industry, as well as for the benefit of industry itself.'

"Governor Roosevelt, in a letter to the New York Academy of Medicine, stated that he 'heartily concurred in the statement of Mr. Cullman and Dr. Lambert that the commercialization of human health and happiness and medical racketeering have no place in any social order.'"

It is obvious that the racketeering existent in the general field of Workmen's Compensation can readily be extended to include the field of compensation for occupational disease disability—in fact the danger is infinitely greater.

Responsibility Between Several Employers

One matter which the Committee feels is of major importance in the planning of any legislation looking to compensation for occupational diseases and as having a direct bearing on cost is that of determining the responsibility for compensation between or among employers in those cases in which an employe has worked for more than one employer within the number of years which can reasonably be assumed to cover the development of the disease from which he is suffering. It must be remembered that disability from disease, unlike disability from accident, may not develop for a number of months and in the case of at least several diseases may not develop for a number of years. By the time there is actual disability, the chain of causes leading to disability may be very much obscured, and the obscurity may have been increased by one or more changes of employer within a given occupation or by one or more changes of occupation itself. Even if an individual has worked for a given employer continuously over a period greater than the recognized normal exposure period for a given occupational disease, unless that employer has been self-insured throughout that entire period, or has been insured in some one insurance company throughout that entire period, there will remain the necessity for determining the actual time in which disablity was created and the actual responsibility or relative responsiblity for the payment of an award for such disability. This problem is by no means easy of equitable solution.

Wage Earners and Wages in Pennsylvania

We are told by the Department of Labor and Industry that the total number of gainful workers in Pennsylvania in 1929 was 3,722,428. Of that total about 3,000,000 were industrial wage earners, the balance being engaged in agriculture, interstate commerce, domestic service and casual service. From the same source we understand that the total of 3,000,000 industrial workers included about 300,000 wage earners in anthracite and bituminous mining of which about 162,000 were in the anthracite fields and about 135,000 were in the bituminous fields.

Deducting a total of 300,000 in the coal mining industry from a grand total of 3,000,000 industrial wage earners would leave a total of 2,700,000 non-mining industrial workers. The Bureau of the Census reported for 1929 a total of 1,014,046 average wage earners for the year in the Manufacture Classifications. for 1929 of $1,379,444,293. The Department of Labor and Industry supplied us with wage earner and wage statistics for 1929 covering a total of 257,256 wage earners in 54 census classifications, most of which would come within the census of 'Manufactures." The wages for those 54 classifications for 1929 totalled $372,000,000. On a purely approximate basis, therefore, the census figures would indicate that the total non-mining industrial payroll in Pennsylvania 1929 was about $3,670,000,000 and the statistics furnished by the Department of Labor and Industry would indicate a similar figure of $3,910,000,000. Still on an approximate basis, therefore, the data available would indicate a total non-mining industrial payroll of about $3,750,000,000 for 1929.

Cost Experience in Other States

There are no statistics pertaining to actual occupational disease disability in Pennsylvania which can be used as a measure of the probable cost to Pennsylvania if certain occupational diseases are made compensable. It was therefore initially considered necessary to turn the statistics of States in which occupational disease disability is compensated. Feeling that perhaps the most representative results could be obtained from such a procedure, this Committee considered primarily the States of New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois and Minnesota.

We have not been able to obtain from any State, a complete analytical report of the results of the operation of its occupational disease compensation law. By a complete report we would mean one including statements as to the division by indutries of the number of employes exposed to specific potential occupational disease hazards, the percentage relationship of such exposed employes to the total number of employes by industries, and the variation within a given industry in the percentage of the total employes exposed to the hazards existent in that industry.

In considering comparisons with the occupational disease experience of other states, the following data is of interest. The figures were taken from the reports of the U. S. Bureau of the Census for Manufactures in 1929.

State	Av. number wage earners	Wages
Connecticut	251,861	$ 328,865,412
Massachusetts	557,494	694,805,312
New Jersey	442,328	610,596,378
New York	1,105,966	1,650,378,858
Ohio	741,143	1,102,166,499
Pennsylvania	1,014,046	1,379,444,293

A crude comparison could be made solely on the basis of the total number of industrial workers in the various States under consideration. In other words, if occupational disease compensation is costing so many dollars in New York, with an industrial population of so many millions, a comparison could be made on the basis of the relative number of workers in Pennsylvania. It is obvious that such a comparison would disregard the differences existing between the types of industries in the two States, between the relative numbers of workers engaged in various specific industries, and particularly between the relative numbers engaged in those industries in which there may exist an occupational disease hazard.

On the basis of compensation and medical expense representing the usual 60% of the premium paid by industry, and making due allowance for the difference in the number of wage earners and in the benefit levels, the Ohio figures for 1929 represent for Pennsylvania Manufacturing Classifications, an expense of over $260,000 while the 1931 figures for Ohio indicate a relative Pennsylvania expense of about $342,000. Taking the New Jersey figures for 1929 as a basis, the indicated occupational disease cost for Pennsylvania is about $550,000, while the New Jersey costs for 1931 indicate a Pennsylvania cost of over $1,000,000. None of these figures include compensation for silicosis or miners' asthma, both of which are included in the disease schedule of the Medical Committee.

The Committee realizes that figures from other States, because of variations in nomenclature and because of differences in statistical method are probably not fully comparable; nevertheless, it feels that these additional figures should be submitted and considered in connection with its estimates of the cost to Pennsylvania industry. It should be borne in mind in considering these figures that they appear to be in each instance the amount of compensation and medical benefits paid, and not the cost of compensation to industry. The Committee has been unable to secure accurate definitions, and there is without doubt a variation in the classifications of the various States.

There are wide differences as between the States in the percentage paid for occupational disease in relation to the total amount paid for compensation. For example, the reported experience of New Jersey in the payment of compensation in occupational diseases cases indicates that such payment has been about 3.75 per cent of the total payments for workmen's compensation. In Ohio the payments have averaged slightly more than one per cent. Estimates received from Wisconsin and California indicate that the payments run about the latter figure. New York reports one-third of one per cent in 1929.

The following table shows the Ohio expenditures over a period of years:

Report of Ohio Industrial Commisison for disbursement covering all classes of benefits

Year	Accidents	Occupational Diseases	Per cent Disease of Total
1931	$15,349,007	$185,346	1.2
1930	15,457,520	170,041	1.1
1929	15,530,753	140,802	0.9
1928	13,414,428	149,971	1.2

As another example, the Committee submits these figures from New Jersey for the years stated; 1929, compensation awarded $160,328, and medical costs reported in 80 cases out of a total of 203 cases, $6,397; 1930, compensation awarded $175,390, and medical costs in 88 out of 272 cases $21,006; and in 1931, compensation awarded $287,258 and medical costs in 73 out of 297 cases $10,751. The medical costs are unreported in the balance of the cases and may not be complete in the case reported. Realizing the reduction of employment in 1931 as compared with 1929, the Committee fails to understand the increase in dollar cost except on the basis of the general indication that disease compensation cost is rising rapidly.

Considering the number of claims, rather than cost, the percentage of occupational disease claims, to total claims, in various States, is shown by the following data:

	Calif.	Mass.	N. J.*	N.Y.	Ohio	Minn.	Wisc.*
1927	1.3	1.3	0.4	0.3	..	0.6	..
1928	1.5	1.6	0.6	0.3	..	0.8	..
1929	1.6	1.8	0.7	0.3	2.1	0.7	1.8
1930	1.8	..	..	..	2.9	1.0	..

Your Committee has been unable to reconcile these percentages, which vary from three-tenths of one per cent to two and nine-tenths per cent in the seven states, but the upward trend is well defined.

*For calendar year. Figures for other states cover fiscal year ending June 30.

On the whole, disease claims appear to cover more days of disability that do those of accidents, as is shown by the following table giving average days per claim awarded, including permanent, partial, and total disabilities and deaths.

		Days Per Claim
		Accidents	Disease
Wisconsin	1929	151	189
Minnesota	1929	161	108
New Jersey	1929	201	588
New York	1929	156	168
Massachusetts	1929	121	204

Again, the Committee is unable to reconcile these differences.

Comparative Incidence

In attempting to estimate the probable extent of occupational disease in Pennsylvania, your Committee has attempted to estimate the incidence of occupational disease in Pennsylvania as deduced from the occurrence of occupational disease compensated in other States. If the ratio of disease incidence to the total number of employes classified in industry in Illinois and New York is applied to Pennsylvania, we find that the number of cases of compensable occupational disease in 1930 would have been 397 if the Illinois experience were used as a basis, and 527 if the New York experience had been the criterion. It should be borne in mind that only three diseases are compensated in Illinois against 27 in New York.

*Illinois compensates for the following occupational diseases: Poisoning by lead, arsenic, brass or zinc.

New York compensates for the following occupational diseases: Poisoning by lead, mercury, phosphorus, arsenic, carbon bisculphide, wood alcohol, brass or zinc, benzol and nitro and amido compounds, gasoline and petroleum, nitrous fumes, nickle, carbonyl, dope (tetrachlorethane), formaldehyde, methyl cloride, carbon monoxide, acids (sulphuric, hydrochloric and hydrofluoric), chrome ulceration; anthrax; glanders; dermatitis venenata; blisters and abrasions (caused by friction, etc.); epithelioma and cancer from carbon, pitch, tar, etc.; compressed air illness; radium necrosis; cataract in glass workers; hookworm disease; miner's mystagmus, beat hand, beat knee, beat elbow, beat wrist; bursistis or synovitis.

Comparative Estimate on Classification Basis

From a competent source, it was learned that there are on the order of one hundred and twenty-three industrial occupations in which it is anticipated that occupational disease can occur to a serious degree. It is felt that those particular industrial classifications will probably embrace in their total all of the major occupational classifications including potential occupational disease exposure in Pennsylvania with the exception of coal mining. From the standpoint of Pennsylvania, it is of the greatest importance to note that exception.

The Committee felt that if it could determine, for each of, say, five states, the actual cost of properly compensated occupational disease disability for each of these one hundred and twenty-odd industrial occupations, if it could determine for each of those occupations the number of employes and/or the payroll for each such occupation in Pennsylvania in a comparable year, it could, by comparison, set up for each of the industrial occupations an estimate of the cost of occupational disease compensation in Pennsylvania, and that the total of such amount so set up would be fair measure of the probable cost of occupational disease compensation in this state.

The Committee asked for the assistance of five states in this research, and specifically for the data which it would need if it were to make a comparison on the foregoing basis. The states to which inquiry was made were unable to supply sufficient statistical information, and the committee was therefore forced to abandon a proper and promising line of inquiry.

Direct Estimate on Classification Basis

The Committee turned to an occupational disease compensation rating plan recently developed by the National Council on Compensation Insurance and resulting from an engineering and underwriting investigation of occupational disease costs which had extended over a period considerably in excess of a year. That plan contemplates a flat occupational disease coverage rate, applicable to all industrial classifications, plus a specific occupational disease coverage rate, applicable to certain definite industrial classifications, both to be in addition to the rate existing for accidental injury coverage. The amount of the specific occupational disease rate proposed varies for the different occupational classifications and depends upon the type of disease to which the workers may be exposed, the estimated severity of that exposure and the estimated percentage of the total employes exposed in a given occupation. The plan proposed by the National Council is, in effect, a projection of the insurance carriers' experience in occupational disease compensation costs. It is understood to be an attempt to measure, in the light of past experience the probable occupational disease compensation costs of today, taking into account the fact that the cost of compensation for occupational disease disability has been rising steadily in the last several years.

If we could obtain, for the latest statistical year, the wage earners' payroll in Pennsylvania for each of the one hundred and twenty-three industrial classifications included in the National Council plan, it would be possible for us to estimate the total specific compensation premium increase, as well as the total flat occupational disease compensation premium increase, which would be produced if that plan were put into effect in Pennsylvania. Such a procedure could not be expected to provide, of itself, an extremely accurate or a necessarily complete measure of the cost to Pennsylvania if occupational disease disabilities are made compensable, but it could be expected to provide a reasonably logical index of the relative importance of the costs which may be added to present compensation costs in, especially, the manufacturing industries.

Despite the fact that about one-half of the industrial payroll in Pennsylvania is self-insured, this procedure would not give rise to any very serious error because the self-insured payroll includes primarily mining, railroads, oil refining and other industries which are not included in the occupational disease plan of the National Council. Further, a manufacturer's cost for occupational disease compensation will not be greatly different whether he be self-insured or carrier-insured.

Proceeding along the lines mentioned above, we submitted to the Department of Labor and Industry of Pennsylvania a list of the one hundred and twenty-three so-called "manual" classifications, with the request that that Department give us the number of firms, the number of wage earners and the amount of wages for the calendar year 1929, that year being chosen because it was the most recent for which general statistics are available.

The Pennsylvania statistics, so far as classifications are concerned, follow the practice of the United States Census Bureau. It was therefore, necessary to establish a correlation between the "manual" classification and the census classifications. The Department of Labor and Industry did not find it possible to effect such a correlation in every instance. The attempted correlation resulted in a grouping of some of the "manual" classifications in single census classifications and a reduction in the total number under consideration for Pennsylvania to one hundred and five. Of that number, the Department of Labor and Industry was able to give us statistics on fifty-four, and figures covering one more were secured from another source.

The total number of wage earners included in the fifty-five classifications was 262,256. The payroll involved was about $375,000,000, this being about ten per cent of the total non-mining industrial payroll for 1929. Applying the specific occupational disease coverage rates proposed by the National Council to each of the fifty-five classifications indicated a total specific occupational disease rate increase chargeable by those classifications of approximately $547,000 per year. The flat all-classification occupational disease rate is not included in the estimate of $547,000, but was separately estimated as is later detailed herein.

The fifty-five classifications producing an estimated occupational disease charge of $547,000 a year are approximately one-half of the one hundred and five classifications identified by the Pennsylvania Department of Labor and Industry. In the face of lack of statistics as to the number of wage earners and as to the 1929 wages in the remaining one-half of these classifications, we can perhaps do no better than to assume that the occupational disease cost indicated by actual calculation would be a pro-rata share of that applicable to the total of one hundred and five classifications. It is properly admitted that such a procedure is purely a matter of assumption, but there is no more definite basis on which to proceed. On that assumption then, the total indicated specific occupational disease cost applicable to definite industries, and not including mining, would be $1,045,000 per year.

With a few relatively minor exceptions, the classifications included in the National Council occupational disease plan can properly be included in the census classifications constituting "manufacture." The estimated occupational disease charge is therefore properly comparable, not with the total industrial payroll of the State, but with the total wage earners' payroll for the "manufacture" classifications of the census, plus the wage earners' payroll for eight non-manufacture classifications included in the National Council plan for which the Department of Labor and Industry supplied statistics. The wages for the eight non-manufacture classifications total $25,431,817 made up as follows:

Mining, iron	$542,000
Mining, no coal (surface and shafts)	452,600
Quarries, crushed stone	4,311,700
Quarries, noc	5,286,900
Sand and gravel digging	2,330,900
Shaft sinking	3,414,250
Stone cutting and polishing estimated	2,000,000
Subway construction	7,093,467
	$25,431,817

The United States Department of Commerce in its 1929 census of manufacture for Pennsylvania, reports total wages, exclusive of salaries, amounting to $1,379,444,293. The total payroll to which the estimated occupational diseases charge should be related is therefore $1,404,876,110. For that amount of wages, the flat occupational disease charge of one cent per hundred dollars of payroll proposed by the National Council would amount to about $140,000 per year. We have previously estimated, on the basis of the National Council plan and exclusive of this one cent charge, a specific occupational disease cost amounting to $1,045,000. Adding the $140,000 produces a total estimated cost of $1,185,000. That total is equivalent to an average cost for occupational disease compensation of about 8.4 cents per hundred dollars of payroll reported for the "manufacture" classifications plus the egiht "non-manufacture" classifications.

The average manual compensation rate for insured risks in Pennsylvania for policy year 1928 was about 89 cents for the Manufacturing Classifications alone and was about 95 cents for the Manufacturing Classifications plus the Mining and Quarrying Classifications. For policy year 1929, the average manual rates were respectively 88 cents and 94 cents. The total estimated cost for occupational disease compensation will, therefore, mean an average increase of about 8.84% in compensation costs if the 95 cents figure for policy year 1928 is used as a basis. In some manufacturing classifications the estimated increase will be as high as seventy per cent, in others as low as one per cent.

It is recognized that this is at best an incomplete presentation of the picture of cost to industries other than mining if certain specific occupational diseases are made compensable in this State. The estimates made do include an allowance for compensation for silicosis in industries other than mining, but it must be borne in mind that the experience in other states with silicosis compensation has indicated that such compensation is extremely costly as the following figures show.

In the quarrying classifications and for policy years 1925 to 1929 inclusive, the compensation pure premium (losses in relation to payroll) for five representative states not compensating for silicosis (Alabama, Indiana, Maine, Texas, and Virginia) can be represented by the figure 629, whereas for four representative states compensating for silicosis (California, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Wisconsin) the comparable figure is 935. In other words, on a common benefit level, the losses per unit of payroll in the silcosis-compensational group of states averaged 148 per cent of those in the non-silicosis compensating group. The total payroll involved in the five year period was about $50,000,000. The states selected were those reporting the greatest payrolls, with a minimum of about $3,000,000 for the five years.

Cost of the Mining Industry

The schedule of diseases suggested in the report of the Medical Committee includes chronic incapacitating miners' asthma and silicosis. Neither of these diseases is included in the schedule of occupational diseases in any state which operates on a schedule basis. It is, we believe, almost impossible to determine with any degree of accuracy the compensation cost which will have to be met by the anthracite industry alone if miners' asthma and silicosis are made compensable in Pennsylvania. It is, however, indicative that several of the larger anthracite mine operating companies estimate that the passage of occupational disease legislation of this character would add to their compensation costs an amount equal to two and one-half to three times their present costs. One of the coal companies estimates that he inclusion of miners' asthma, alone would add over $2,000,000 a year to its compensation costs, because it is felt that such compensation would, in effect, become unemployment and old age insurance. On the latter basis, estimates for the anthracite industry run very high, some figures given, ranging from 12 to 15 million dollars per year. These figures are quoted for what they may be worth and not as estimates of the Committee.

Summary and Conclusion

The Committee is of the opinion that if occupational disease disability is to be compensated, the legislation should provide that—

(1) The disability is actual and well defined.

(2) The source of the disability is actually in the industry and occupation in which the person alleging disability has been employed.

(3) The responsibility for disability be fairly fixed on a specific employer or be fairly apportioned among several employers.

(4) The administration of the law be made sufficiently definite and be so safeguarded as to limitations that the cost of compensation can be estimated in advance and that the insurance principle can be applied to such compensation.

The Committee offers no definite statement as to the probable cost to Pennsylvania industry of occupational disease legislation. Such estimates as have been developed on various bases vary as widely as might be expected from the lack of definite and reliable background. Generally speaking, there is no substantial body of facts available from any source. Reference is made to the various estimates in the body of the Committee's report. They range from a minimum of less than a half million dollars, exclusive of coal mining, to several million dollars including the coal industry.

The important point developed by the Committee's investigations is that in any consideration of cost the greatest emphasis must be placed on administration of the law. If that is guarded effectually to the point of reasonably exact justice between employer and employe, then the cost may be no great burden on industry and be a boon to labor; but if allowed to follow the clearly marked tendencies of current practice the cost may be prohibitive.
